Two Billions To Aid Rails' Refinancing Is U. S. Plan

ones, of RFC, Reveals Federal Program for Loans in 1934.

Du Pont Is Named To Study Question

By Elliott Thurston.

Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reonstruction Finance Corporation onfirmed yesterday that the Govrnment expects to help finance an stimated $2,300,000,000 of railroad equirements in 1934.

The New York Central, which has 48,000,000 of maturities due on May the Illinois Central and others, e said, have discussed the subject ith the R. F. C. and are asking he Government to finance about alf of the load, assuming bondolders in accepting refunding isues and the banks can be counted n for the rest.

This, roughly, would throw a load f upward of a billion dollars upon he R. F. C., or whatever other gency may be invoked if Jones' stimate of the total requirements, hainly for refinancing, is near the ark. The Railway Labor Execuives Association recently urged reation of a national railroad credit orporation to meet 1934 maturities, hich they placed around $2,000,-00,000.

Du Pont Leads Move.

The Security Owners Association as designated Pierre S. du Pont, a irector of the Pennsylvania Raiload, to head a committee to look nto the question of applying to the overnment for large scale assumpon of the financing burdens. Prite bankers, such as J. P. Morgan Co., and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and anks which might be expected to e the financing normally, already ave indicated their inability to do now.

While Jones would have the Govrnment participation as small as ossible, some Presidential advisers rongly advocate Federal financing ot only of the roads, but of prite industry generally, with the ea of channeling vast sums into irculation and inducing increased rice levels as a result of increased overnment-forced "velocity of the ollar," instead of attempting to aise prices artificially by monetary anipulation.

Hence the question of railroad nancing is closely related to genral Administration policy, which the moment seems to be leaning oward the theory of increasing ollar velocity and away either rom stabilization—which accordng to some advisers would induce rivate capital to assume much of he railroad financing—or from uch further reliance upon the old-buying program or the inciental premium to the silver minrs.

Ends Race With Death

Flying through snowstorms, James Wedell last night raced northward from Texas with a 5-month-old infant, critically ill, as his passenger. He flew 1,400 miles in 12 hours to take the child to Johns Hopkins Hospital, at Baltimore, where an emergency brain operation is to be performed.

Flier Ends 1400 Mile Flight For Baby's Life

Jimmy Wedell Defies Bad Weather to Take Texas Child to Baltimore.

Baltimore, Dec. 27 (Wednesday) (AP).—Jimmy Wedell, rushing Baby Sue Trammell, of Houston, Tex., here for an emergency brain operation, roared out of the night at 1:57 o'clock this morning in a borrowed airplane after a race with death to a hazardous landing on the snow-encrusted local field.

Wedell, in his red monoplane, came to a fine landing and taxied up to the administration building before stopping.

The baby was handed out to a waiting attendant. The two women passengers followed immediately.

The baby was placed in the municipal ambulance sent to the field by Mayor Howard W. Jackson, and immediately the 5-mile trip to Johns Hopkins Hospital began, escorted by motor police.

Defies Bad Weather.

Taking off from Houston at 3 p. m. (E.S.T.), in a fast plane, borrowed from Prince Louis Ferdinand Hohenzollern, grandson of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, the New Orleans speed pilot came down on Logan Field less than 12 hours after he started his 1,400 mile race from Houston.

Wedell stopped to refuel at New Orleans for 20 minutes, at Atlanta for 25 minutes, at Greensboro, N. C., for 5 minutes. Despite warning of hazardous weather conditions, mist, fog and strong winds, he pressed on with a determination to do all within his power to save the child's life.

Parents Accompany Child.

In the plane were the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Trammell; her maternal grandmother, Mrs. W. W. Fondren, and an uncle, Walter Fondren, jr., besides a nurse.

The illness of the Trammell baby appeared Saturday with changes in the contour and size of her head. Houston physicians, declining to venture the cause of the ailment, advised an operation by Dr. Walter E. Dandy, noted brain specialist of the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

There was no indication at the hospital early today whether an operation would be performed immediately. The baby was to receive the customary examination at admittance by the resident surgeon to determine if the case could await Dr. Dandy's regular visit later in the day.

Condition Is Critical.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 26 (AP).—Sue Trammell is suffering from what is commonly known as water on the brain.

The child's condition, it was said, is hourly becoming worse.

Even after the emergency operation is performed, the infant's condition would necessarily be grave for several days, it was said.

W. W. Fondren, wealthy Houston Oil man, tonight kept close watch on the progress of the plane. He and other relatives of the baby here were kept advised of the progress of flight by attendants at the Houston Airport.

The infant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Trammell, Mrs. Fondren, her maternal grandmother, and an uncle, Walter Fondren, jr., were on the plane.

Baby Born in Auto Stalled by Drifts

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—An eight-pound baby boy was born today in an automobile, stalled in a snowdrift.

His father—a New Rochelle rug merchant—was hurrying his wife to a hospital but just before he got to the entrance his automobile bogged in a snowdrift.

Roosevelt's Messages To Be Brief

Same Procedure Which Launched New Deal to Continue.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Indications grew yesterday that the same procedure which launched the New Deal on its dramatic course last spring would be followed again by President Roosevelt in dealing with his second session of Congress.

So well did this program work in obtaining favorable and speedy action during the critical days of last March, it was thought quite likely the President would continue his practice of sending short, specific messages, focusing attention on particular phases of the recovery program.

Speculation in some quarters, based chiefly on the President's demonstrated ability to turn threatening reversals into Administration victories, held that any serious opposition to his program would be met by personal appearances before both Houses.

Work Not Yet Started.

However, whatever plans the President might have for the approaching session were believed still in a nebulous stage, as he has not yet started to write either his first annual message, due to be read the first day of Congress, or the budget message, scheduled the next day. Hence, little of definite nature could be determined in advance.

In preparation for his annual message—still an all-important question mark—Mr. Roosevelt is understood to have ordered reports on the present state of the Nation from Governmental agencies. This would be the usual procedure, it was explained, in compiling both a report of his stewardship and recommendations for the future.

Conferences with Director of the Budget Lewis W. Douglas, for which President Roosevelt set aside yesterday afternoon and several hours today, are entering a final stage. At their conclusion, he will take up the annual message, which is expected to reveal for the first time how far the Administration leans toward inflation and the ultimate fate of the dollar.

Returning to his desk yesterday, after a quiet Christmas that brought renewed evidence of his hold on the country, Mr. Roosevelt saw only a few callers, including Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, George N. Peek, who will head the new agency to promote farm exports, and Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, a guest for luncheon. With them he went over their portions of the many-faceted recovery campaign.

No Conferences Listed.

Contrary to reports, no conferences with congressional leaders to iron out procedure are scheduled this week, it was learned. Similarly, the President has given no consideration to whether he will read his first message personally to Congress, and indications are he would reserve this direct method until necessity—such as a brewing revolt—might prompt.

However, there was little doubt the President would take his fight directly to Congress, and hence to the country, if he believed conditions warranted it. And there was little doubt such an appeal would sustain his apparent domination, although conditions that forced Congress into hurried action last spring no longer exist.

Indications were that Mr. Roosevelt, satisfied with results so far, would ask continuance of emergency legislation with a minimum of change. In this, little danger was foreseen, despite some opposition to expenditures approximating a prospective $6,000,000,000, but the threat of a sharp fight existed in proposals for more drastic inflation than the Administration apparently contemplates.

New York Won't Stop Drinking 'Till Morning

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Broadway will have an extra two hours to see that the new year is properly welcomed.

Chairman Edward P. Mulrooney of the State control board announced that the deadline on liquor selling would be extended from 3 a. m. to 5 a. m. for the morning of January 1. Hotels, restaurants, and cabarets predicted the first legally wet New Year's Eve celebration in 14 years would be something to remember.

Roosevelt and Stalin Get $1,000 Under Will

Los Angeles, Dec. 26 (AP). President Roosevelt and Chief Commissar Stalin of Russia each was bequeathed $1,000 by the will of L. G. McBurney, San Pedro, who died at his home today.

McBurney left $1 each to his children "for reasons best known to themselves." The man died of a heart attack and police, searching his effects, found the will.

Reed Asks "Vocal" Party as Minority Leaders Call Conferences.

By Robert C. Albright.

Preliminary conferences of Republican members of House and Senate have been called to sound out minority sentiment before Congress gets under way a week from today.

Senate Republicans, who for the most part have maintained a stoic silence, will meet in executive session at the Capitol next Tuesday, Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, Senate Republican leader, announced last night.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, House Republican leader, will attempt to get minority party members of the House together late this week, he said.

Reed Demands "Vocal" Minority.

At the same time, it became known at least one prominent Republican conservative, Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, will insist that the party assume an "active and vocal" role immediately.

In an interview, Senator Reed declared the Republican organization "has got to become more active," adding he believed President Roosevelt himself would prefer a "vocal" opposition party.

The Pennsylvania Senator refrained from criticizing Republican National Committee tactics, however, and denied he was "gunning" for Everett Sanders, chairman of the committee.

Decision of House and Senate Republicans to meet separately in advance of the opening of Congress was regarded as significant, in view of the growing number of Administration issues likely to come to a head in the President's message Wednesday.

Concede President Is Popular.

Despite Senator Reed's statement, it was apparent yesterday that neither House nor Senate Republican leaders have determined upon a policy of "aggression," although individual members, such as Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, and Representative Allen T. Treadway will urge a vigorous opposition policy.

Following the theory that discretion always is the better part of valor, minority members as a group have hesitated to buck the personal popularity of the President. Most Republican members will admit that this popularity has not begun to wane.

New Advisory Board to Aid Small Firms

Nye and Borah to Serve on Joint Body, Guard to Independents.

Establishment of a joint NRA-Congress board with authority to investigate the administration of NRA codes and eliminate any monopolistic code practices held unfair to independent businesses was anticipated yesterday when Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson said he favored such a program.

Johnson made the revelation to newspapermen following a conference with President Roosevelt, who also is understood to approve.

Simultaneously, Senator Gerald P. Nye, Independent Republican, of North Dakota, who conceived the idea and carried it forward in conferences with Johnson, said he would seek formation of the board shortly after Congress convenes.

Nye would be one of the board's members. Johnson also has asked Senator William E. Borah, independent Republican, of Idaho, to serve. Because of this, the approval of the program by Johnson was regarded in some quarters as a move which would tend to quiet much of the criticism of the NRA by the Progressive faction in the House and Senate.

Time Believed Ripe.

"Negotiations have reached the point where I should like to have the board established," Johnson told newspapermen. "It would have access to anything it wanted here and would investigate anything it desired, especially with respect to the administration of codes."

Johnson gave the impression he expected the board to take its place alongside the Industrial Advisory Board, the Labor Advisory Board and the Consumers Advisory Board. It would be different from the Industrial Advisory Board, however, in that the latter agency, while supposed to represent all of industry, is composed of and largely represents the views of the Nation's biggest industrialists.

The board, according to Senator Nye, must be composed of anti-monopoly men if the small business men are not to be victimized and forced into ruin by the codes which were formed to save them. It is his view that in certain industries such as electrical manufacturing and aluminum, the codes are largely drawn by the powerful corporations and administered by code authorities of their choosing. Thus, he feels, the little manufacturer or business man is handicapped when in complaining of alleged injustices caused by a code he must appeal to a code authority dominated by his powerful competitors.

Handicap Stressed.

The only way successfully to attack such situations is through a board composed of antimonopoly men, it was pointed out, especially Races to Catch Same Ship With Bullitt.

Moscow, Dec. 26 (AP).—Alexander Troyanovsky, Soviet Russia's first Ambassador to the United States, left Moscow tonight in a race against time to sail to America on the boat with William C. Bullitt, United States Ambassador to Russia.

Troyanovsky departed in response to urgings from Bullitt that they travel together, although plans for his work were not completed.

Bullitt is returning to Washington after making plans for an embassy in Moscow. He is to sail from Le Havre December 30 on the liner Washington.

A number of foreign office officials saw Troyanovsky depart for Berlin. Mrs. Troyanovsky and their 14-year-old son accompanied him.

Treasure of All Lands to Flow Over McCormick Auction Block

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—The magnificence that was once Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick's—fine laces, rare tapestries, and silver that was owned by Napoleon's sister—will go under the auctioneer's hammer next week.

Art dealers, bargain hunters, and curious women will bid for objects on which the late sister of John D. Rockefeller expended her time and wealth.

Buddhas from Chinese temples, tapestries from the famous weavers of Brussels, and silver dating back to Cromwell are included in the collection. There are also a necklace with 1,800 diamonds, silver soup tureens and gilded wine-coolers, and fur coats of Chinchilla and Russian ermine.

Mrs. McCormick's collection of laces was among the finest in America and was exhibited in museums at Buffalo, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Rochester, Detroit and Chicago. A valuable Point de Venise coverlet is believed to have been a votive offering to one of the north Italian cathedrals.

A silver service, once owned by Pauline Bonaparte, sister of Napoleon I, is the most impressive in the array of silver. There are also silver plates and covered tureens dating back to the great Gorgian silversmiths of England.

In the lavish collection of jewels there are a 5½-carat diamond ring and a 15-grain pearl, a pendant with 109 diamonds, sapphire bracelets, and earrings of diamonds, pearls and emeralds. The auctioneers suggested that "under present conditions," the necklace of 1,800 diamonds would better be made over into smaller pieces.

Four Gothic tapestries are works of great beauty and rarity, and have their own pedigree. Two of them are hunting scenes turned out by famous weavers of Tournai, Belgium, in the early sixteenth century.

French furniture in the Directoire and Empire styles, the sables and the chinchilla, some fine Persian rugs, and Chinese lions and Buddhas eleven centuries old, make up the remainder of the collection.

Tragic aftermath of a gay Christmas party for a Washington man and woman was discovered yesterday when the pair were found suffocated in a charred compartment aboard a houseboat near Gunston Cove, Va., 25 miles down the Potomac.

Uncooked Christmas dinner provisions were mute evidence that the couple, Clarence Haislip, 44, and his companion, believed to be Virginia Hensley, both of this city, had been dead for many hours.

The pair were found by a Negro employe, Charles Kye, who made

Cubans Plan To Default Big Chase Loans

U. S. Investors to Lose $1,750,000 Interest on $60,000,000 Lent.

Havana, Cuba, Dec. 26 (AP).—The Cuban government does not intend to meet foreign obligations of $1,100,000 interest due on December 31, Finance Minister D'Espaigne revealed unofficially tonight. The interest is on $40,000,000 of public works bonds for which the Chase National Bank of New York is trustee.

There will also be a shortage of $650,000 interest and commission on $20,000,000 of short term notes held by the Chase National and $2,200,000 arrears and current coupons on gold treasury notes for which the First National Bank of Boston was sponsor.

D'Espaigne said he considered these obligations illegal since they were authorized by the "illegal congress" of Gerardo Machado's administration and the present government needs the money to pay public employes, considering this more important than payment of foreign obligations.

The announcement caused little surprise in financial circles here. It was learned the government was more concerned with the sugar mill situation, and is beginning to realize that Cuba probably will be unable to sell more than 500,000 tons of sugar to United States in 1934 unless a larger quota is granted. This is considered unlikely without United States recognition. Failure to sell more sugar, it was feared, would cause more unemployment and greater unrest.

It was reported that 100,000 persons who formerly earned their living from the Delicias and Chaparra sugar centrals, which are shut down, were in danger of starvation.

French Ban Arms Talks With Hitler

Paris, Dec. 26 (AP).—A scheme for direct conversations between Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Chautemps of France regarding disarmament was flatly rejected at a 3-hour session today of national defense ministers.

Attending the meeting were M. Chautemps, Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour, Minister of War Edouard Daladier, and Minister of Navy Albert Sarraut.

They decided, nevertheless, to continue the "informatory" talks the French Ambassaodr, Andre Francois-Poncet, has conducted in Berlin in the last few weeks.

More Snow or Rain for City Tomorrow, Weather Bureau Predicts.

Fair skies and increasing cold are predicted for Washington today, as slush and ice, following yesterday's sudden flurries of snow and sleet, left a toll of one dead and several injured.

The possibility of more snow or rain is in store for tomorrow, the Weather Bureau declared. A minimum temperature of 25 degrees is forecast before dawn this morning, with increasing cold throughout the day.

High winds sweeping in from the North sent the mercury below freezing shortly before midnight. Special police details were hurried to three ice-coated bridges.

Several cars skidded on the Pennsylvania avenue bridge, creating a traffic tangle which required nearly half an hour to straighten. The Eleventh street bridge into Anacostia was also reported slippery, and motorists traveling Highway Bridge were warned to drive with caution.

Transportation Disrupted.

Minor traffic snarls and disrupted transportation schedules presented the major problem on snow-covered streets and highways. Slowly dropping temperatures shortly after dark last night brought fear of increasing hazards. Thin crusts of ice formed on sidewalks and throughfares.

Charles E. Smoot, 62, railroad steamfitter, was crushed to death beneath the wheels of a switch engine in Union Station yards. He was working near the tracks when he slipped and fell into the engine's path.

Leonard M. Clark, a Pullman conductor, found the man's mangled body. Smoot was pronounced dead by a Terminal staff physician. He lived at 711 D street northeast. Engineer Harry Tievens, of 1826 Wilberton street northwest, said he did

Nine Killed as Mud Flows Off Volcano

Floods Reported in Many Parts of Philippines.

Manila, Dec. 26 (AP).—Loosened by rains of five to six inches daily since Saturday, a torrent of sulphurous mud poured down the sides of the inactive Bulusan Volcano in Sorsogon Province today, killing nine persons.

Complete reports tonight to officials here said the volcano did not erupt as at first reported. It has been quiescent 15 years.

Floods were reported from many parts of the islands. Rains formed lakes 7 to 10 feet deep in Capiz Province.

A parish priest, Father Bayano, reporting from near the Balusan avalanche, said mud and water pushed native huts into the Irosin River. He said nine bodies had been recovered and that a dozen more persons were missing.

8 Fishermen Lost In Lake Michigan

(Associated Press.)

A wave of bitter cold, accompanied by raging winds that brought deaths on the Great Lakes and blizzards in New England, swept across the United States last night on the course of snowstorms that piled high drifts in a dozen States.

Deaths from the cold and from accidents caused by the snow were estimated to have passed 300, including 8 fishermen lost on Lake Michigan and others missing. In several sections, the worst of the weather was yet to come.

Temperatures plunged far below zero in the Midwest. Chicago had a 16-degree drop in five hours, with 10 below predicted. The city reported 6.3 inches of snow.

New York had 10.3 inches or snow in seven hours that tied up shipping for hours, kept airplanes at home, delayed trains and buses. "No visibility" was reported from the New York harbor, and even ships at sea were troubled.

Called Worst in Years.

Coast guardsmen described the storm as "the worst in years." Huge waves threatened to destroy anything afloat, and fishermen were urged to remain at home.

Northwest winds carried the snowstorms eastward from their birthplaces in the Pacific northwest, Montana, and the Canadian northwest. A bitter blizzard howled into Portland, Me., and the New England States generally had tastes of real winter.

The snow just abated and temperatures were rising from extreme lows in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa and neighboring States, but farmers still took precautions to protect live stock, and shippers were warned of continued below-zero weather probabilities.

Snowslides in the mountains had tied up railroad branch lines in Montana, with prospects that one of them, between St. Regis and Avery or St. Maries, would not be open for 30 days. Through trains from the Pacific coast, bearing belated Christmas travelers, arrived at Missoula, Mont., for the first time since Friday.

Spain May Send Ship to Cuba

Cubans Discuss Report Nationals Will Be Protected.

Havana, Dec. 26 (AP).—Reports that a Spanish cruiser had been ordered to proceed here to protect Spanish interests, if necessary, resulted in considerable unofficial discussion in political circles here today. Official comment was not forthcoming.

It was learned on the highest authority that the United States Government does not object to the presence of a Spanish vessel in Cuban waters.

In official circles in El Ferrol, Spain, it was said that the cruiser Jaime I had received orders to proceed shortly to Havana, but in Madrid, Minister of the Navy Pita Romero denied a cruiser would be sent to Cuba.

The Spanish cabinet last week considered the Cuban situation and recent political disturbances in Havana which resulted in the deaths of several Spanish citizens.

President Set To Start Trade Boost Drive

Gets Report From Peek; Program to Congress Is Next Step.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

President Roosevelt, within the next few days will give renewed consideration to proposals aimed at increasing American foreign trade, it became apparent yesterday.

George N. Peek, adviser to the President on foreign trade, yesterday left at the White House a report outlining the present situation in world commerce and recommending machinery to facilitate expansion of this country's export business, chiefly in agricultural commodities. The substance of the Peek report was kept secret.

The Federal Tariff Commission likewise has concluded its survey of sugar imports. Its report, ready for the President, would justify a reduction in the tariff on Cuban sugar from $2 to $1.45 per 100 pounds, it is understood. At the same time the commission proposes the establishment of sugar import quotas.

Filipino Quota Indicated.

Although the commision's report will not be made public until after President Roosevelt has acted on it, reports indicate the commission would apply import quotas not only on sugar from other countries, such as Cuba, but also on sugar from the Philippine Islands and other Territories of the United States. Sugar is admitted now from the latter duty free. A graduated scale of tariffs will apply to Filipino exports to this country during the ten-year probation period under the independence act.

Apparently the Tariff Commission takes the view that a quota system would be of greater help to the American sugar beet producers than a heavy duty. It is not known what attitude Mr. Roosevelt will take on this matter, but a reduction in the sugar duty would be in line with Democratic policy. The Democrats have centered their attack on the sugar duties as the most indefensible of the protective tariff schedules.

The placing of sugar importations on a quota basis would be the second step of that nature recently taken by the Roosevelt Administration. Through an A. A. A. code the administration has limited liquor and wine imports for various countries to the quantity those countries exported to the United States in the prewar period.

Angle for Concessions.

Expansion of those quotas are conditional on the liquor and wine exporting country granting trade concessions to the United States. Negotiations to this end are being carried on with a large number of countries and as soon as the Administration's foreign trade policy is clarified are expected to be pushed with renewed vigor. An agreement with France has been reached whereby the French wine import quota has been raised in exchange for a lifting of restrictions on American apples and pears.

Meanwhile, the President's Commerical Policy Committee, made up of representatives of the various departments, is at work on the preparation of a formula for the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements. The problem before this committee is to determine what commodities this country might take from abroad in exchange for an increase in American exports—regarded as not only a difficult but a delicate question.

As a result of these developments the whole question of this Government's foreign trade policy will go before President Roosevelt for determination within a short time. In the preparation of his message to Congress, the President also must decide whether he wants legislation empowering him to enter into reciprocal tariff agreements with other nations, in line with the Democratic tariff plank.

Will Talk to Peek Later.

The most immediate aspect of foreign trade before the President is the Peek report. On leaving the White House yesterday, Mr. Peek said he would confer with Mr. Roosevelt later in the week. He declined to discuss his report in detail in advance of a Presidential announcement, except to explain that he did not believe "very much legislation will be required."

There have been reports that the Peek plan would propose the creation of a huge Government-controlled export corporation, which would advance long-term credit for the financing of American trade abroad. According to these reports, the R. F. C. would be expected to lend up to $1,000,000,000 to aid in the sale abroad of agricultural surpluses here.

These reports so far have lacked confirmation in any reliable quarter, but Mr. Peek did not close the door on the idea that some kind of finance corporation might be established to deal with specific cases. He said there was no plan, however, of creating a corporation to handle all imports and exports.

G. O. P. Policies To Be Decided At 2 Meetings

Processing Taxes Resented.

He declared the processing taxes imposed by the A. A. A. are generally resented by the farmer and consumer alike.

"I think the NRA has done some good in tending to prevent 'sweatshops,' in tending to abolish child labor and in raising the morale of the people," he said.

"But it has been a dreadful burden on the small business man. It has brought us an epidemic of strikes and it has resulted in increases in the cost of living far greater than the increase in the average income."

Indications were that neither the Pennsylvania Senator nor Senate Republican Leader McNary would join in support of Senator Dickinson's proposed resolution repealing the NRA section of the recovery act. Senator Reed told reporters he thought the "beneficial features" of the act should be retained.

No Violent Opposition Expected.

He made clear he has no intention at present of offering any amendment to repeal or delimit the powers given the President last session. He said some of them will be taken care of by the pasage of time, citing the licensing provision of the National recovery act, limited to a year from the date of enactment.

Other Republicans did not follow Senator Reed's lead for vocal opposition to the Administration's policies. Whether their reticence will be broken by next week's conferance remained a question. The impression persisted that certainly no violent opposition policy is contemplated at the outset.

Decision to hold Republican conferences in House and Senate before arrival of the President's message is believed to represent a change of plans. Intimations had been the minority party in both houses intended to "lie low" and do nothing until after the program for the session had been expounded.

Democrats Serene.

By personal contact, Senator McNary already has succeeded in sounding out the sentiment of most Senate Republicans. Tardy arrivals on the House side have made it impossible for Representative Snell to do this.

Whatever views are expressed at this week's conference of House Republicans and Tuesday's meeting of minority Senators, no action binding on the groups as a whole is expected to be taken.

Democratic leaders meanwhile are not concerning themselves with possible trouble ahead. Representative Joseph W. Byrns, House Democratic leader, said yesterday he looks for harmony within their ranks.

Slayer of Boy Believed Hired To Kidnap Him

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 26 (AP). Sheriff T. Alex Heise said today Robert H. Wiles, 49-year-old unemployed mechanic, confessed he was "hired to kidnap" Herbert H. Harris, jr., 15, and had beaten the boy to death to prevent his escape.

The sheriff depicted the World War veteran as the tool of "another party" in enticing young Harris to a deserted farm house near Columbia Saturday by an offer of employment.

The boy grew suspicious, Wiles allegedly said, adding:

"I picked up a piece of iron about 2 feet long, held it in both hands and hit him twice on the head. When he lay still, I dragged him in the house and covered him up with an old mattress."

Wiles was quoted as saying he shook hands with Herbert H. Harris, the victim's father, and wished him "Merry Christmas" a few hours after the boy was slain.

The sheriff and Federal, State and city officers said they obtained the confession from Wiles early today at the State Penitentiary.

2 Transients Killed In Freight Wreck

2 Others Reported Buried; 13 Injured.

Wadsworth, Ala., Dec. 26 (AP).—Two persons were reported killed and 13 injured today as a Louisville and Nashville freight train was derailed near here. All were described as transients.

Trainmen declined to discuss a report that a wooden block had been placed on the tracks. W. W. Jackson, Wadsworth, said a man and woman were believed buried under a slag car but that wreckers could not clear the debris before tomorrow.

Detroit Bondholders Get $3,400,000 Interest

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—The city of Detroit bondholders' refunding committee announced today that $240,961,332 of City of Detroit bonds and notes had been deposited under the city's refunding plan as of December 15.

B. A. Tompkins, vice president of the Bankers Trust Co. and chairman of the committee, said the amount represented more than 85 per cent of the city's obligations to be refunded. The first payment Detroit bond holders have received since the city defaulted on its obligations last February was distributed in the form of $3,400,000 in interest, Tompkins said.

"Sage of Potato Hill," at 81, Quits Magazine for Leisure

Announcement was made here today that the noted Atchison editor and philosopher is discontinuing publication of E. W. Howe's monthly, his personal journal of "Indignation and Information."

"I never have had leisure and now I want it," Mr. Howe informed his associates here. He is spending the winter at Miami, Fla.

For 22 years the monthly has been the principal outlet for his editorial expression. He founded the magazine after retiring as editor of the Atchison Daily Globe, which he organized in 1877.

Himself never lacking a market for his written advice, he once said: "Good advice is very old, and there has never been much new in it."

An advocate of the doctrine of respectability and conservatism as the best way of meeting life, Mr. Howe's pointed paragraphs have been widely quoted.

A small town man himself, he wrote "The Story of a Country Town" years ago and it proved to be the first of the "Main Street" type of books.

"We are all fools because we do not behave better," is the advice often given by Mr. Howe.

"No man," he wrote, "can handle life to the best advantage until he becomes a conservative. Everyone is born a radical and has to be spanked, whipped, and yelled at until he learns the necessity of conservatism. If he never learns it, he is locked up or hanged."

He urged his fellow man to seek success and to guard health.

"Most persons live like greedy children until something serious happens," he said. "One should begin taking care of himself before the first alarm, which comes long before 40 or 50.

"The alarm bell began ringing very early in my life; I believe it does in the lives of most men, and I beg them to pay attention earlier."

Two Billions For Railways Is U. S. Plan

Jones Confirms Report of Move to Aid in '34 Refinancing.

changed yesterday, the RFC price for newly mined gold being held at $34.06 an ounce for the sixth successive day. Jones announced the RFC has bought 525,000 ounces of domestic gold for $17,594,000, but secrecy still shrouds what became of the rest of the $100,000,000 so far set aside for the gold buying here and abroad.

In any case, wavering price indices and a declining level of wholesale prices of foods, grains, feeds and live stock, as reported by the National Fertilizer Association, served to confirm the impression that the Administration is turning from reliance upon gold buying as a price-raising expedient.

Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, declared yesterday that the gold policy "seems to have failed." He predicted a "battle over currency when Congress meets," and complained of four mistakes in the President's monetary policy so far—first, in not opposing the Thomas inflationary amendment; second, for asking Congress to "repudiate the gold clause in Government securities," third, for adopting Prof. Warren's gold-buying policy, and, fourth, in the "concession to the silver bloc."

Wheeler Hits Silver Action.

He doubted that this would forestall the silver bloc's demands and this view was borne out by Senator Wheeler's criticisms yesterday of the silver action.

Wheeler, incidentally, cited the dangers of "bootleg silver," if unscrupulous miners worked the comparatively low-priced market bullion into their supposedly newly mined supplies. He is daily conferring with others of the silver bloc to demand free coinage.

"One of the difficulties," he said, "that could very easily arise with the situation of paying 64½ cents an ounce for silver is that it creates two prices for silver in this country. Those who have silver on hand will only get market price, but the man who takes silver out of mines gets 64½ cents. This affords an opportunity for those who are smelting silver to bootleg silver. It would be extremely difficult for the Government to prevent this being done for the reason that silver bullion could be very easily added in refining of metals, and thus bring up the percentage of silver content.

"I do not feel that the smelting companies would do this, but there is always a possibility that unscrupulous persons would attempt it."

Carries on for Free Silver.

He said he was "not interested" in "granting a subsidy to smelting companies," and would keep on crusading for free silver coinage. He hit at the "much-heralded agreement on the part of India" to limit dumping to 35,000,000 ounces of silver a year and asserted that there was nothing to stop "the Hindoos from selling privately-owned silver."

Reed, conceding that "we have not had any real inflation yet in any sense," nevertheless called upon the President to take a firm stand against it, to lift the uncertainty and so free private capital from fears of long-term investment. The President, he said, could block any serious inflationary threat in Congress by taking a stand now "against currency debasement."

"It is not too late for the President to put down his foot," Reed added, "and say, 'No, we won't do it.' If he were to do that, there would be an outburst of confidence such as we have not seen in the United States since the depression settled down. And there is nothing we need so much at the moment as confidence in the future.

"Business has improved here to some extent, but not so much as it has in Great Britain and some other parts of the world. I think the whole world has been on the mend for ten months. Our banking troubles, first, and our curency troubles, second, have held us back. If we can get these straightened out so that our people can count on something definite it will enable us to keep step with the rest of the world."

R. F. C. Figures Announced.

Up to yesterday the R. F. C. had subscribed $697,400,000 of new capital to a third of the Nation's banks, Jones announced. This is aside from $562,000,000 of other loans to 1,352 banks. Thus the R. F. C. has already a stake of about a billion and a quarter in the banks, and this will be increased considerably more to qualify other banks for deposit insurance which takes effect January 1.

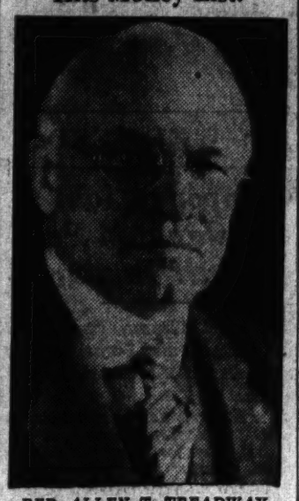
If the R. F. C. or some similar agency, is to go next into large scale financing of railroads and industry, the Government will be in a position to wield incalculable power. Whether such power would be exercised as the economic planners among the Presidential advisers wish, to establish permanent Government controls over all banking, currency and credit would remain to be seen.

In any event, the trend appears to be in this direction and continues to be away from stabilization as a prelude to reliance again upon private capital, though Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau caused renewed speculation on the subject when he declined yesterday to reply to a question as to whether stabilization was being reconsidered.

Financing the railroads would not necessarily lead to financing industry, but if the proponents of having the Government force more and more money out while taking more and more control over credit and currency have their way, both steps will be taken.

"We must find some way to help the railroads meet their security maturities," Jones was quoted by the Associated Press as saying. "The Government can not take all the responsibility for the refinancing, but probably will have to help. We'll have to work out some plan for the Government to assist."

Hits Money List.



REP. ALLEN T. TREADWAY, who says Prof. Irving Fisher in choosing 19 men "who understand the real meaning of money," has chosen "some of his own kind as monetary authorities."

Fisher "Money Experts" Draw Treadway Fire

Ridiculing Prof. Irving Fisher's list of 19 men "who understand the real meaning of money," Representative Allen T. Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts, yesterday declared the Yale educator has chosen "some of his own kind as monetary authorities."

"With what crown of glory does Prof. Fisher decorate this selection of his, and by what authority does he set himself up as the one to make the selection?" Representative Treadway said, pointing out that 16 of Fisher's 19 selections are "college professors."

The 19 names were listed by Prof. Fisher in a letter to E. C. Riegal, president of the Consumers' Guild of America, announced Monday.

"It is not surprising that a man who would testify before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress that money can be made by the application of postage stamps and become legal tender should select some of his own kind as monetary authorities," Representative Treadway commented.

"One of the three non-professors named by him is a former New York official who is reputed to be the chief adviser of Senator Thomas, (Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma), the leading inflationist on Capitol Hill.

"Such self-appointed leadership as is assumed by Prof. Fisher is not convincing to the country of the soundness of a financial program innaugurated by men of this type.

"The highest compliment that can be paid President Roosevelt is that up to this time he has warded off the advisers of Senator Thomas and his followers, among whom Prof. Fisher is undoubtedly prominent."

Byrd Resumes Voyage South

Aboard Admiral Byrd's Flagship, Off Antarctica, Dec. 26 (By Mackay Radio) (AP).—With the lifting of a fog that caused a 40-hour delay, the expedition of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd proceeded today toward Little America.

The delay, however, made possible several investigations, among them a sounding which showed there was no bottom at 9,000 feet, and a study of green, blue, and brown rocks embedded in a broken iceberg which drifted past the ship.

Dr. Charles Gill Morgan, geologist, said the rocks bore evidence of having been broken by heavy masses passing over them and were interesting because no coast had been discovered in the vicinity, 66.30 south latitude and 141.20 west longitude. The iceberg was described as from a fresh-water glacier.

Members of the expedition attended a smoker and a movie on Christmas Day and had a dinner consisting, among other things, of turkey, lobster salad, squash, fruit cake, and candy.

Yule Dinner of Wheat Kills 20-Year-Old Goat

For the last two decades Billy has thrived on a diet of newspapers, cans, and crackers, with an occasional dash of shrubbery from some of the well-tended homesteads in this village. A kind-hearted resident, imbued with the Christmas spirit, fed Billy a Yule dinner of whole wheat yesterday. Billy died.

Long's Return Here to Leave State Seething

Contest Over Mrs. Kemp to Be Capital Feature of Hot Battle.

New Orleans, Dec. 26 (AP).—Senator Huey P. Long today planned an early return to Washington, leaving behind a seething political condition in the State.

Forced to depart by the approaching Congressional session, the Senator is expected to attempt long-range direction of affairs at home from his office in the National Capital. But at least some of those home affairs will be temporarily transferred to Washington with him when Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, his candidate who was declared the new Sixth District representative without a party primary, presents herself in the House next week.

She will be challenged for the seat by State Senator J. Y. Sanders, jr., veteran anti-Long campaigner, who is scheduled for election in a "citizens popular election" to be held in the district tomorrow. Sanders is the only candidate in tomorrow's balloting, which was arranged on a district-wide basis by citizens who protested the method of Mrs. Kemp's nomination and election was illegal.

Sanders climaxed a spirited campaign tonight in a mass meeting at Baton Rouge, the State capital, with his supporters calling on the district to give him a vote larger than the 5,129 total given Mrs. Kemp when she was declared elected in the election suddenly called by Gov. O. K. Allen on December 5. Election machinery and paraphernalia were set up over the district today by those citizens who are in open revolt against the State administration.

In spite of the Sixth District situation, friends of Senator Long said he would be off for Washington as soon as the third mayoralty ticket which he has perfected in copoeration with two lesser-known political groups here had been formally ratified by the three-way coalition.

The Long slate will oppose Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, old regular organization chief and until recently Long's ally, and Francis Williams, one of the Senator's most outspoken opponents.

Martin Denies French Spying

Americans Also Map Plan for Defense as Paris Probe Resumes.

Paris, Dec. 26 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, Americans who with eight others are accused by police of being involved in an international espionage syndicate, studied their defense plans today as the investigating magistrate resumed hearings after a Christmas recess.

Louis Martin, 43, protested his innocence before magistrate, and denied police reports that he was "twisted around the fingers" by another of the accused, Mme. Lidia Tchekaloff Stahl, 48, in order to get secrets of the French navy.

Martin, the master of many languages, worked in a secret code room of the navy ministry. He declared that the charges of alleged espionage were a mystery to him and that he had never met either of the Switzes or any other suspect, except Mme. Stahl, a Russian.

He maintained that his friendship for Mme. Stahl, called a super-spy by the police, had never been of a suspicious nature and insisted that documents seized from him were unimportant letters.

Labels for N. Y. Liquor Must Specify Its Age

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Whisky labels which must be shown on all liquor legally sold in New York were approved today by the Board of Health.

The age and alcoholic content must be listed on labels, which also must specify if the liquor is blended and if artificial coloring or flavoring are used. The commissioners said a "black list" of inferior whiskies is almost completed.

Eddie Sutherland Better.

Hollywood, Dec. 26 (AP).—A slight improvement in the condition of Eddie Sutherland, 37, film director, stricken last Saturday with pneumonia, was reported today. His physicians operated on Sutherland for a lung congestion, and since then he has been in an oxygen tent.

Clerks Uphold Reform Policy In Supply Bills

E. C. Babcock Voices U. S. Employes' Zeal to End Legislative Riders.

A change in House leaders' policy, calling for elimination of general legislative scope from future supply bills, drew wide support yesterday from Federal workers.

E. Claude Babcock, American Federation of Government Employes president, was the first to praise a statement by Chairman Buchanan, of the House Appropriations Committee, promising to limit supply measures to their original purpose of providing funds for operation of the departments. Mr. Babcock declared:

"Mr. Buchanan is in a very powerful position, and if he insists he can obtain the result he is seeking. If he will stick to his purpose there will be no pay cut after July 1. If the appropriations committee always had operated under the theory now favored by Mr. Buchanan, much of the disastrous legislation which has taken place in the last two Congresses would have been impossible of passage."

Pay Cut Was Rider.

Mr. Babcock pointed out the 15 per cent Federal pay cut "was an amendment to legislation, just as were the changes in the retirement law, the changes in the Civil Service law, the marital provision, and all the others which, he says, caused so much damage to the service and the employes, adding:

"While the differences seem slight, in effect it is very important. When a legislative committee handles a matter, custom and justice dictate that the persons interested shall be given a full hearing by the legislative committee. When an appropriations committee handles a matter, speed elements are involved to a degree which prevent in fact complete development of the subject matter."

Sees Better Results.

The employes' leader predicted workers would get better results when issues in which they are concerned are handled by the Civil Services Committees and other legislative committees. He continued:

"We have high confidence in Mr. Lamar Jeffers, who is chairman of the Civil Service Committee of the House, and in Senator William J. Bulow, who is chairman of the Civil Service Committee in the Senate. We feel absolutely confident that their committees will permit such a development of the facts in connection with pay schedules, classification and retirement as will prevent the continuance of the harmful practices now in effect."

The Appropriations Committees, Babcock contended, have insufficient time to develop the facts.

"Moreover," he said, "members of the Appropriations Committees, acting as such, have as an overpowering influence the money side of the question, and without desiring to be unduly critical, it may be said that they are quite impatient with deliberate consideration of the personnel side when they are endeavoring to bring about a money result."

Couple Suffocated Aboard Houseboat

Two visits to the boat before discovering that they were dead and not asleep.

The body of a pointer dog lay in the room near that of his master.

County Coroner C. A. Ransom, of Fairfax County, said death had resulted from suffocation, caused when the fire exhausted all oxygen in the cabin.

Reconstructing the tragedy, police said they believed the couple had been drinking and went to sleep. The fire burning across the ceiling exhausted the oxygen in the room.

Deputy Sheriff George McCann established that the couple had boarded the boat Saturday afternoon. They were supplied with provisions for the holidays.

The fire was believed to have originated in a small wood stove several feet from the bed.

Dr. Ransom issued a verdict of accidental death after hearing testimony. The bodies were brought here last night.

Late last night the woman had not been definitely identified, although investigators were partially convinced she was "Virginia Hensley," of an address on Eighth street southeast.

Fairfax County authorities sent the body of the Hensley woman to Wheatley's undertaking establishment in Alexandria. The woman's husband was in a C. C. C. camp, they learned, but were unable to locate him for notification of his wife's death.

Surviving Haislip, who was a structural steel worker, are his mother, Mrs. Mae Haislip, of Arlington County; a brother, Willard Haislip, of Gunston Cove, and a sister, Mrs. Gladys Sheedy, of 1717 M street, northwest.

Victim of Fall Near Death; Escort Sought

Physicians at Emergency Hospital last night held slight hope for recovery of Alice Livingston, 28, of 1332 R street northwest, whose skull was fractured Monday when she fell 40 feet from a window at 821 Third street northwest to an areaway below.

The victim's injuries came during what police termed "a gay Christmas party." Officers continued their search last night for a taxicab driver, alleged to have been her escort.

Girl, 20, Is Hunted; Missing Since Dec. 23

Police were asked yesterday to search for Anna Quirk, 20, of 1107 Seventh street northwest.

Miss Quirk was reported missing by her mother, Mrs. Anna Quirk. She disappeared December 23, Mrs. Quirk said.

its dead at 16, and Minnesota reported 10 dead. Exposure to the cold was cause of many fatalities.

The Southern States were the only ones to escape winter's vagaries. Flood waters still endangered northeastern Washington and northern Idaho. Los Angeles had a dense fog, with Pacific shipping tied up. At St. John's, Newfoundland, four bodies drifted ashore from the wreck of a schooner in a week-end storm.

The snow was hailed as God-sent by unemployed in a dozen cities. Snow-shovel brigades were made up of the jobless in attempts to keep traffic moving at normal rates.

Reports from scattered sections of the Nation included:

Pennsylvania—Snow ranging to a depth of 6½ inches covered the entire State, air transport plane, with eight aboard, soared over Pittsburgh for an hour before the weather cleared for a safe landing.

Ohio—Zero to five below forecast at Toledo, snowfall of 4 inches in northern section delayed bus and street car traffic.

Milwukee, Wis.—Four and one-half inches of snow and drifting.

Newark, N. J.—Air traffic halted, nearly half a foot of snow.

Albert Lea, Minn.—Five persons treated for exposure after they were marooned in the cold following an automobile accident.

New York Hard Hit.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—A stinging snowstorm covered New York with more than 10 inches of snow today, disrupted air, water and land traffic and gave jobs to more than 10,000 unemployed men.

Two ferry boats collided in the Hudson River and numerous traffic accidents occurred in the blizzard. The storm was driven by a northeast wind and promised a bitter cold snap in its wake.

The city hired 10,700 men to augment its regular force of more than 10,000 street cleaners.

The roar of an airplane flying blindly over the city was reported early in the afternoon. Radio channels were cleared as stations made futile efforts to contact the ship.

The Somerville and the Youngstown—two ferry boats—bumped during the height of the storm. No one was injured, but the ships were damaged. The passengers were shaken and frightened. Both boats proceeded to shelter under their own power.

Shipping virtually was paralyzed and city traffic was impaired. Buses, surface cars and elevated trains were affected seriously.

Six Dead in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—A bitter cold wave settled down over the Midwest tonight, drove temperatures far below zero in many cities, crippled traffic, caused scores of deaths and untold suffering.

At least six deaths in Chicago were attributed directly to the cold wave. Four persons froze to death here. At Milwaukee, a C. W. A. worker, John Moran, 48, died of exposure, and orders were given that the C. W. A. men must not work after the mercury dropped lower than 10 degrees above zero.

Swindled, South Carolina Minister Arrests 2.

London, Dec. 26 (AP).—The Rev. John Daniel Henderson, of Spartanburg, S. C., lost £70 in a confidence game, turned amateur detective, and arrested Robert George, 28, and John Clarke, 43.

A police court magistrate found them guilty of loitering for the purpose of working a confidence trick and remanded them to police custody to permit a further investigation.

The Rev. Mr. Henderson told the court he met Clarke and George in Regent Park November 24. George, he testified, said he had received a £400,000 windfall, of which he had to distribute £50,000 to trustworthy individuals, including £10,000 to the Pope. The Rev. Mr. Henderson put up his £70 to show his good faith.

A short time after Smoot was killed, Joseph C. Ramos, 43, of 1818 Ingleside terrace northwest, an employe of the Ivy City roundhouse, suffered a fractured right arm and severe lacerations when he slipped from a locomotive. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Two persons were slightly hurt when an automobile crashed into a street car on the Eleventh street bridge.

Eugene Tucker, 28, of Fort Foote, Md., driver of the car, and a companion, Lem Barton, 68, also of Fort Foote, received minor hurts. Tucker said his car skidded into the street car, then careened into a parked automobile.

More than 200 employes of the District Highway Department were called yesterday morning to clean streets and sidewalks. Capt. H. C. Whitehurst said conditions did not warrant employment of men outside District pay rolls.

Temperature to Drop.

Air schedules both into and out of the city were canceled. Flying conditions throughout the East are rapidly becoming worse, airline officials said.

The Capital Transit Co. used 40 sweepers to clear their tracks. Bus service into nearby Virginia and Maryland was reported 15 to 20 minutes behind time.

The snow reached blizzard proportions in the Cumberland, Md., regions. J. A. Miller, Government weather observer at Keedysville, said snow came as a surprise after a near record-breaking Christmas Day.

Adverse weather conditions in many nearby counties forced curtailment of civil and public works projects.

Ouija Shooting Victim Is Dead

Shot by His Daughter, 15, Who Got "Command" in Seance.

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 26 (AP). Ernest J. Turley, 46, retired Naval officer, died in the Naval Hospital here today from gunshot wounds inflicted by his daughter, Mattie, 15.

Authorities at St. John's, Ariz., the Turley's home, said the girl asserted she shot her father.

Turley was wounded last Thursday in his home and was rushed here in an airplane.

The daughter testified in an Arizona juvenile court that in an ouija board seance with her mother, the board told her to kill her father so her mother, Mrs. Dorothia Irene Turley, "could marry a young cowboy."

At St. John's, Judge Lewis S. Udall, of the Apache County Superior Court, after hearing arguments of opposing counsel, tonight took under advisement a petition for a writ of habeas corpus brought by Mrs. Turley, held as an accessory in the shooting.

Drunkard Sent to Woodpile.

Lewiston, Me., Dec. 26 (AP).—Municipal Judge Parent, deploring the lack of a rock pile at the county jail, today sentenced an "habitual drunkard" to the city welfare woodpile for 15 days. "Too many like to go to jail," he declared.

Watchers See Two Lake Ships Sink in Storm

8 Sailors Drown Fighting to Reach Shore; Third Vessel Missing.

South Haven, Mich., Dec. 26 (AP). Whipped into fury by the worst storm in years, the waters of eastern Lake Michigan claimed eight lives today as two fishing tugs floundered, carrying their crews to death within sight of the shore.

First to capsize was the Martha, which sank off the Michigan City, Ind., lighthouse. Four men perished.

A few hours later, the tug Bremen sank 300 rods from shore south of the South Haven breakwater. By the time Coast Guardsmen who saw the Bremen founder could put out their boat, the high seas had left no trace of the craft nor her crew of four.

Another Ship Missing.

Coast Guardsmen report the Tuscarora, another fishing tug, has been unreported since she put out to lift her nets this morning, before the storm came up.

A strong wind was blowing, but no particular fears were felt when the Martha put out here this morning, about the same time the Bremen and Tuscarora were setting out from South Haven.

The wind rose and by noon a blizzard was sweeping the lake.

Washed Out Into Lake.

The Martha was far out when the storm came up, the crew lifting their nets. The vessel Battled the waves until within 300 feet of the lighthouse and watchers from the shore believed she would reach shelter. Suddenly a huge breaker capsized her.

Two of the crew clung to the sinking craft for a few moments until swept away by another wave. One man was swept to some rocks at the end of a pier, but before help could reach him he was washed out again.

Johnson Puts Ford Charges Under Inquiry

A. F. of L. Complaints Are Given to Compliance Division.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson yesterday revealed he had turned over to the NRA compliance division for inquiry charges by the American Federation of Labor that Henry Ford had specifically violated collective bargaining clauses of the recovery act, in dealings with strikers at his Edgewater (N. J.) and Chester (Pa.) plants.

If the division finds there is ground for action against Ford, Johnson said, he will have conferences with the Federal Trade Commission and Justice Department before proceeding.

President William Green, of the A. F. of L., meanwhile has said the affidavits from strikers collected by his organization and turned over to the NRA, show Ford to be a violator of labor provisions of the recovery act.

Other developments of the day, Johnson said, included the signing by the President of seven minor codes in order to clear the way for consideration of the newspaper, construction, and a number of other controversial pacts now on his desk. Action on these is expected soon.

Johnson Plans New NRA Board

since Gen. Johnson has said that to be in accord with the recovery act a code must be drawn to reflect the views of the majority of any industry. Such recovery act stipulations constitute a handicap on the independents, it was stressed, in cases where the Aluminum Co. of America dominates the aluminum industry, and concerns like General Electric and Westinghouse dominate electrical supply manufacturing.

The idea had its inception six weeks ago, when Senator Nye wrote Gen. Johnson, complaining that the electrical manufacturing code was oppressive to small independent manufacturers. After considering the situation with Donald R. Richberg, his chief counsel, Johnson admitted there were injustices in the electrical and many other codes, and that they should be eliminated by cooperative action.

Impressed by what he characterized as Johnson's sincerity, Nye suggested formation of a board on which Congress would be represented, but which would turn to NRA and not Congress for its authority.

General Liked Idea.

So impressed was Johnson by the plan that he asked Borah to serve on such a board. Borah, too, had been complaining about certain aspects of codified industry, especially those which have developed from the phases of the recovery act permitting price control and other practices which he considers to be in violation of the antitrust laws. Borah has announced he will seek legislation to prohibit such practices.

Nye, too, had been so incensed, and was prepared to raise a similar Congressional rumpus. Now, however, he is ready to back down if the board can be established.

He said yesterday the general plan for the board will be worked out in conferences with Johnson, and that it will be established either through an act of Congress or a Presidential executive order.

Atlanta Man's Life Is Saved by Watch

Atlanta, Dec. 26 (AP).—Richard Bone is doubly thankful for his Christmas watch—it saved his life. He was sitting on his front porch when an unidentified assailant fired a shot at him from an automobile. The bullet fractured his left arm and embedded itself in the watch.

Physicians said that if the watch had not stopped the bullet, Bone would not have had the story to tell.

Four Men Arrested In Hammer Slaying

Mother of Six Is Found Beaten to Death.

Corbin, Ky., Dec. 26 (AP).—Four men, including her estranged husband and a music teacher with whom she had quarreled, were held today pending an examining trial Thursday at which authorities hope to shed light on the hammer slaying of Mrs. Mollie Egner.

The woman was found dead in bed at her home Christmas day, her 13-month-old child nearby and almost frozen. Her skull had been crushed with a hammer. All four men denied any knowledge of the slaying. The woman, who had six children, was an expectant mother.

Mrs. Egner and the music teacher, H. S. Douglass, were fined $20 each a few weeks ago on disorderly conduct charges arising from a quarrel on a downtown street. Douglass told police he had been with his invalid mother at the time Mrs. Egner was killed.

An autopsy to determine the cause of death will be performed on John Leahy, 50, of 3230 N street northwest, who died in Casualty Hospital yesterday, after being struck by a street car December 22. At the time of the accident, which occurred on Benning road northeast, Leahy was said to have suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

The body was taken to the District morgue yesterday. The autopsy will be performed by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald. An inquest will be held to morrow at 11 a. m. Police held no one in the accident.

Full Report Asked On Watson Charges

Hazen Seeks Findings on Fire Department.

Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the board of District Commissioners, yesterday instructed Corporation Counsel William W. Bride to complete his report on the investigation of the administration of Fire Chief George S. Watson, and submit findings.

Paul E. Jamieson, attorney for the City Fire Fighters Association, yesterday declined to submit more specific evidence in support of his general charges against Watson, saying he would be out of the city for several weeks.

It is expected the commissioners will either approve the administration of the Fire Department or take no action whatsoever, as the evidence is considered insufficient to substantiate charges of harsh treatment of firemen.

Patman Still Seeks Support To Pay Bonus

But Texan Will Not Push Plan if Administration Stands Firm.

Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, said yesterday he still hopes to convince leaders that the soldiers' bonus should be paid, but that he would not push the measure if the Administration stands firm in its opposition.

"I still believe," Patman said, "that payment of the $2,000,000,000 bonus with new currency would be the best method of distributing money among the people and of bringing about a business revival. However, I have no intention of throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery."

Patman added he will seek repeal of that part of the economy act reducing service-connected disability payments to World War veterans, and reducing pensions of Spanish-American veterans. He said also that he plans to fight for revision of the act so that the Government may give hospital treatments to veterans with nonservice connected disabilities.

Payment of the bonus, Patman said, would not only be a means of distributing a large amount of new money, but it would save the Government $112,000 a year, the amount added annually to compensation due veterans.

Patman estimated that changes he contemplates in the economy act would cost the Government $50,000,000 a year.

Red Tape Costs CWA Workers Here Day's Pay

Prevents Employment on Removal of Snow From Streets.

Hundreds of C. W. A. workers lost another day's pay yesterday because no provision has been made for their assignment to snow removal jobs. Many are suffering because recent holidays and bad weather have cut their weekly wage below a bare living scale.

Leroy A. Halbert, director of the District Emergency Relief Division, revealed yesterday that scores of C. W. A. workers who were formerly on his relief rolls have appealed for additional aid. In many instances, he said, they have received less money from the C. W. A. in certain weeks than they formerly got from the relief bureau, although the C. W. A. hourly wage scale is higher.

A scheme to cut the red tape which kept the C. W. A. workers idle yesterday has been adopted by J. B. Gordon, District sanitary engineer, although it will not be put into effect until the job of removing snow from the city streets proves too much for the regular street cleaning force.

Gordon plans to hire the C. W. A. workers, or as many of them as he can afford, and pay them out of the regular street cleaning appropriation. The snowfall yesterday was removed with little difficulty.

Until the District was forced to cut its budget to a minimum, Congress made an annual appropriation of $25,000 for snow removal, and outsiders were hired after every heavy snow to help clear the streets. Now they are hired only when the job proves too much for the regular employes.

Stratosphere Rocket Tested

Tiny Model Shows Larger One Can Rise 15 Miles, Ohioans Hold.

Cleveland, Dec. 26 (AP).—Plans to shoot a self-propelled rocket 15 miles into the air for scientific research were disclosed today when Ernst Loebell, German engineer, tested—with apparent success—a miniature model of the rocket's tremendously powerful "motor."

The Cleveland Rocket Society, believed to be the first organization of its kind in this country, conducted today's test on the suburban estate of Carl H. Hanna, whose son, Ted, is one of the members.

Loebell's miniature motor is 6 inches long. The power plant, a combustion chamber only, receives oxygen through one tube, and gasoline from another.

Protected in event of explosion, Loebell stood behind a steel shield to adjust the valves. Other witnesses remained behind a wooden barricade, except Ted Hanna, who pressed the switch.

As he did so the highly explosive mixture ignited with a loud blast, and the cylinder leaped upward the length of its mooring.

Another model, much larger, will be constructed at once. When it has been fully tested, the attempt to penetrate the stratosphere by rocket then will be attempted—probably next summer.

Cuba Liberates 606 Prisoners

Only 38 Army Officers, of 404, However Are Given Freedom.

The hundreds of political prisoners released over the holiday included 38 former Army officers imprisoned after their unsuccessful defense of the National Hotel against Col. Fulgencio Batista's Army last October.

Prison doors, at Cabana, Principe and Atares Fortress and the Isle of Pines model prison swung open to permit the exodus of the prisoners and it was said in official circles that more former Army officers would be turned loose shortly.

The Havana Audiencia Court yesterday ordered the release of 404 former officers until their trials are called, but Col. Batista this afternoon had not signed orders of freedom for the majority.

The Christmas holidays brought almost complete cessation of the strenuous political activity that has marked the Republic's recent months.

St. Louis, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Officials of a cab company here called it "just a harmless prank," so Johnny Blood, professional football star, eluded prosecution today for taking his girl to ride in a cab he found purring at the curb.

"It was Christmas eve, and you know how a whim will strike a man occasionally," Blood said when arrested with his friend, both of whom were released on bonds of $1,000.

Here on Vacation, She Yearns For Alaskan Gold Field Home

Chicagof, where the days are long and you sometimes shoot a bear before breakfast, is calling to its lone woman prospector, Mrs. Helen Bolyan. With her husband, George, and their gold mining partner, Frank Cox, they are vacationing here, but the spell of Alaska has made all three impatient to return.

Especially so is Mrs. Bolyan. She likes Washington, and New York, but she will be eager to return to her Chichagof Island home and feel the touch of gold ore again.

A bright-eyed pioneer, Mrs. Bolyan has been prospecting with her husband since 1926. They have been successful, too. The Federal Government's gold buying program, which shot the price up, has been of no small benefit.

May Go to Florida.

They feel prosperous enough, indeed, to take in Florida on their current biennial visit to the States. Two years they work and then take a splurge across the continent. They left in October and plan to return in the spring.

It was not until they sailed two and a half months ago that they heard of such things as the NRA, PWA and AAA. Their two mines are isolated on the rockbound island of Chichagof and a trip to meet the mail boat is too rigorous to be often undertaken.

Last Christmas Mrs. Bolyan invited all prospectors within a radius of 20 miles to her holiday dinner. Only 12 persons were present.

She can run an ore mill with the best of the men, pack a deer on her back and address a charging Kodiak bear with a Springfield rifle. She has done all of them, several times.

But she is no less graceful in a drawing room—soon after her arrival she had tea with Mrs. Roosevelt.

No Depression There.

Her part of Alaska—Chichagof is in the southeastern panhandle bordering on the Pacific—has not felt the depression, says Mrs. Bolyan, but it may have such a problem on its hand if too many unemployed Americans migrate to seek their fortunes.

Gold is a great attraction, and the prospecting field still holds great promise. But immigrants from the States should be sure first that they can stand the test of weather, loneliness, tough living and self-reliance, Mrs. Bolyan said.

As much as she loves her primeval home, there where the weather is moderate but it rains almost continually, Mrs. Bolyan is uncertain whether she could remain without a long vacation to plan for every two years. A Seattle street car certainly looked great this trip, she said.

But the reaches of Chichagof with perhaps a grazing deer or a covey of ptarmigan on the landscape, will be just as welcome to her eyes, she said. Maybe more so.

Gold Purchase Plan Is Wrong, Says Expert

Prof. Brown Is Opposed to Return to Old Standard.

Columbia, Mo., Dec. 26 (AP).—Prof. Harry Gunnison Brown, head of the economics department at the University of Missouri, named by Irving Fisher of Yale as one of the nineteen men who "understand the real meaning of money," in an interview today termed as inadequate the present gold purchasing program of the Roosevelt Administration.

"I am not urging a return to a discredited and unstable gold standard," Prof. Brown said.

"I approve of a monetary system which provides for changes in the prices of gold but I insist that gold purchases, taken alone and without increase of circulating medium, can not be counted on either to stimulate business or to raise the level of prices."

Declaring that if the Government were paying for the gold it purchased with new and additional money not previously in circulation, instead of with R. F. C. debentures, trade would be stimulated and business improve, he said, "the fact is that purchase of gold by the Government has in itself no more tendency to raise the general price level or to promote recovery than would have the purchase of building or building stone or the purchase of rolltop desks."

"The truth is that our problem centers in the securing of expanded bank credit—or additional money. With a definite policy of and proper technique for price-level stabilization, I see no justification for the horror often felt toward additional paper money.

"But bank credit expansion will accomplish the same result even though at some added cost (in interest on borrowings) to the Federal Treasury."

Prof. Brown came to the University of Missouri in 1915 after having taught at Yale, where he studied under Prof. Fisher. He is the author of several widely used textbooks in the field of economics.

No formal charges were made, police picking him up as result of a tip which came during the course of a check-up of Providence gangsters. Search was continued for an inmate of the State insane asylum who escaped December 21.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 26 (AP).—An increase of $2,197,000 in the gross income of the Seaboard Air Line Railway for the first 11 months of 1933 over the same period of 1932, was announced today by L. R. Powell, jr., one of the receivers for the railway.

Business in general for the road is on the increase, Mr. Powell stated. A marked increase in passengers has occurred since the road reduced passenger fares.

Russians Hunt Grave in Arctic Of Explorer Who Died in 1597

Relics of Expedition 337 Years Ago Entered in Leningrad Museum.

Moscow, Dec. 26 (U.P.). — Soviet Polar explorers are seeking to locate the grave of Villem Barents, the great Dutch scientist who perished somewhere near Novaya Zemlya, in the icebound Arctic Ocean, in 1597.

Relics of Barents' last expedition, 337 years ago, have just been turned over for study and permanent preservation to the Arctic Museum in Leningrad.

Remnants of the hut in which Barents and his companions lived in Novaya Zemlya and of the personal possessions of the Dutch explorers were recently discovered by Boris Miloradovich, 26, the youngest man ever to head an Arctic expedition from Russia.

The site of the Barents hibernation was discovered in 1871 by Norwegian explorers. Four years later part of his journal was found.

His last journey, started in 1596, reached the northern part of Novaya Zemlya. His ships were wrecked, and the party built huts from the wreckage for the first known hibernation by Europeans in the region for the long six months of darkness.

The winter passed successfully, reports of the expedition showed, although one man died. On the effort to return to the mainland, however, using flimsy craft, Barents lost his life. He presumably was buried on Novaya Zemlya Islands, but the spot never has been found.

Ickes Assures Help to Oil Independents

Secretary Denies Code for Marketing Favors Big Companies.

Notice that the pending oil marketing agreement, a vital element in Governmental supervision of oil production, will protect independent dealers to the fullest extent was given yesterday by Secretary Ickes, oil code administrator.

Ickes disclosed a considerable number of objections to the agreement have been filed. He stated many concerns were protesting the proposed charter would throw control of the oil industry into a few large companies.

The administrator, however, said this would not be allowed.

"If the agreement does not protect independents to the fullest extent, it will not be approved by the administration," Ickes declared.

"If the agreement will give all concerned a run for their money, that is one thing. If 'catches' in it will harm independents, it is entirely another matter.

"We certainly are scrutinizing the whole thing carefully."

Ickes discussed the proposed agreement at his first press conference since leaving Naval Hospital, where he was confined with two broken ribs. Braced by tight bandages, he received reporters in his office shortly after he arrived from his home, where he spent Christmas.

Among the objectors to the oil agreement, Ickes said, was Senator Borah. Ickes wrote him last week for specific objections after the Idaho Senator had made a generalized criticism. It was indicated yesterday that Borah had not seen the proposed agreement.

The charter, which Ickes held does not constitute price-fixing, provides a margin of 2 cents per gallon of gasoline for wholesale jobbers and a margin of 4 cents above cost for retail dealers. Many jobbers have protested their margin is insufficient.

The oil administrator pointed out that the agreement is not inflexible and if sections do not work after trial they may be changed. He said all objections to the charter would be heard before it is promulgated to the industry.

Chinese Bombs Hit U.S. Church

Consuls Tell of Airplane Raids on Two Towns; Many Killed.

(Associated Press.)

Vice Consul Gordon L. Burke, at Foochow, China, reported to the State Department yesterday that the church and other property of the American Board of Mission there had been damaged when eight Nanking government planes dropped between 20 and 30 bombs on the city December 24. No Americans or other foreigners were injured, but 15 Chinese were killed.

Six Nanking planes bombed Foochow again on Christmas afternoon at 1 o'clock, Burke reported, causing property damage, but no injuries to foreigners.

Consul Lynn W. Franklin, at Amoy also reported that no Americans were injured or American property damaged when 12 Nanking planes bombed Changchow, 32 miles west of Amoy, on December 22.

News Ban Ordered.

Nanking, China, Dec. 26 (AP).—Official secrecy was applied today to operations of the National Government's air force, bent on suppressing a revolutionary government in Fukien Province, as unofficial reports told of a heavy loss of life.

Headquarters of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek in Hangchow has forbidden publication of dispatches from the Fukien area.

From unofficial sources, however, came reports that 58 persons—three of them soldiers—were killed during aerial attacks upon Foochow, capital of Fukien Province, and Changchow.

Airplanes roared over Foochow Saturday and Sunday, the reports stated, and dropped 16-inch bombs. Twenty-five civilians were killed.

From the same sources came reports that 16 planes dropped a hail of bombs on Changchow Friday, killing 30 civilians and three soldiers.

Snow Blockades Canadian Roads

Temperature Drops, With 42 Below Coldest.

Toronto, Dec. 26 (AP).—Snowdrifts blocked Ontario and Quebec highways tonight as temperatures tumbled. The storm that appeared Christmas Day continued, making highway travel hazardous and delaying trains.

A blizzard that spread from northern Ontario to Montreal had claimed two lives and injured several persons.

Alabama G. A. R. Chief Dies of Fall Injury

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 26 (AP). Charles E. Jones, 86, commander of the Alabama Division of the Grand Army of the Republic, and past National senior vice commander of the G. A. R., died today at United States Veterans Hospital here after six weeks' illness, resulting from a hip injury received in a fall on a train.

Jones was widely known in G. A. R. circles. He served under Grant in a New York Infantry unit during the Civil War, and after the war engaged in railroad work until his retirement in 1911.

Pennsylvania Vexed By High Liquor Prices

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 26 (AP). Pennsylvania, home of rye whiskies that have tickled the palates of connoisseurs the world over, is having trouble stocking its liquor stores with good brands that can be sold at reasonable prices.

The liquor-control board, created by a special session of the Legislature, says the problem is three-fold: Unsettled domestic conditions in the postrepeal era, limited supplies of straight domestic liquor, and scarcity of imports. The board said the uncertainty and high prices will be short-lived.

Wreck Victims Mount to 200; Child Vanishes

French Keep National Day of Mourning as Probe Is Continued.

Paris, Dec. 26 (AP).—The death list in the Lagny railroad catastrophe reached 200 today, as all but two bodies were identified. One child on the ill-fated Nancy Express disappeared completely.

Two families disputed for possession of the body of an 8-year-old boy, too mangled to be recognized. Police, after studying marks on the clothing, gave it to one family, while the other parents, overwhelmed by grief, sought vainly for their missing son.

Only 30 of those injured in the wreck, which occurred Saturday night when the Strasbourg Flier ran into the rear of the express, remained in hospitals. A day of national mourning will be held tomorrow when the victims are to be buried.

A fight to place responsibility for the accident will go to the Chamber of Deputies. Deputy Louis Rollin, defender of the engineer and firemen of the flier, said he would demand that safety measures of the railroad company be investigated.

An investigating magistrate today heard witnesses declare that warning torpedoes left on the track for the flier failed to explode until the last car of the train was passing. The engineer of the express said the warning whistle of his cab failed to function when his train was fogbound.

The engineer and firemen were released from prison tonight and allowed to go to their homes pending the conclusion of the investigation.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion.—Adv.

G.O.P. Assailed By Saturday Evening Post

(United Press.)

Something approaching a journalistic earthquake struck last night when politicians and writers here settled down to read their Saturday Evening Posts and discovered an editorial denouncing the Republican party and talking about need for "a political realignment and formation of a new party."

The Post long has been considered the last word in standpat Republicanism and Washington gasped to read in it:

"We can see no future for the Republican party as it is at present constituted and as it has operated. The only element that is content to go along with the party is the extreme conservatives. Its old leaders have not sensed the temper of the times and of the country if they think that they can come back on the strength of the mistakes of the Administration and the blunders of the brain trust * * * The fact remains that under Republican rule abuses of power and trust flourished that the country can not and should not forgive."

Roosevelt Also Criticized.

The editorial criticized the Roosevelt Administration as tending toward the left, expressing disappointment that the President had not brought his party to stand for "clean cut, sensible liberalism."

"The time is here or coming soon," the editorial said, "when unless the Republican party cleans house, and uses a vacuum cleaner for the job instead of a lick and a promise, there must be a political realignment and the formation of a new party that does not want a Government by the extreme right or the extreme left; that does not want a Government of and for either the creditor or the debtor class, but that will deal impartially with both; that will play no favorites among organized classes as against unorganized; that will recognize and correct the grave injutices of our system of justice * * *."

Revolt in Party Threatened.

George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, told the United Press by telephone from Philadelphia that he had no comment to make on the editorial, preferring to let it stand alone as an exposition of the publication's views.

The unexpected attack upon Republican leadership from what has been considered almost a party organ seemed particularly significant at a time when considerable restlessness has been observed among Republicans dissatisfied with the present National committee set-up.

Crew Swept Away, Schooner Helpless

Craft Is Caught in Storm Off Newfoundland.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Dec. 26 (AP).—The hulk of the schooner Monica Hartery tossed helplessly in the rollers of Newfoundland's south coast tonight—crewless. The bodies of four seamen of its complement of five were found on the shore.

Anxious landsmen continued to search for the body of Leo Button, of Glencoe, Newfoundland, owner of the little craft, among the flotsam drifting ashore after a raging week-end blizzard.

Scattered bits of wreckage were picked up that had belonged to the Monica Hartery, which sailed from North Sydney, N. S., on December 17, bound with a cargo of coal to the home port of Channel, Newfoundland. The families of the crew expected them to arrive Christmas Day, but a December storm smothered the schooner when 20 miles from port.

Portsmouth, Dec. 26 (AP).—Jesse Roark, 24, of Salyersville, Ky., drowned in 6 inches of water today when his automobile struck a bridge and plunged into a creek.

Roark was pinned face down by the overturned car. Kenneth Holsinger tried vainly to extricate Roark after he had rescued Roark's 3-year-old daughter. Roark's wife escaped injury.

Doctor Says Sun Wrinkles Body Like Top of Auto.

Chicago, Dec. 26 (AP).—There are, in the opinion of Dr. Carl Loeb, too many new wrinkles under the sun.

The doctor, president of the International Biotherapy Association, speaking at the organization's convention today, gave out a warning to nudists.

"Sunlight," he said, "has the same effect on the body as on the top of an automobile. It causes dehydration and premature wrinkling.

"The nudists are victims of a mistaken fad, for by increasing the speed of metabolism, sunlight causes the body to age more rapidly."

WholesaleRum Prices to Drop, Doran Asserts

(Associated Press.)

Dr. James M. Doran, supervisor of the Distilled Spirits Institute, said yesterday reductions would be made in some of the wholesale prices for blended liquor that he submitted to the Federal Alcohol Control Administration last week.

"We expect to shave some of them down but I can't say which ones," he said. "The list I gave the F. A. C. A. was not complete. I expect to submit a full list after the first of the year. That list will contain revisions of the early prices."

Viewed as Good Thing.

"Any whisky from any place would be a good thing," he said.

The supervisor said he believed the shortage of supplies throughout the country had resulted, in part, from holiday festivities, but added normal demands would have exceeded the supply.

He indicated a belief that the liquor permit import racket unearthed in New York was attributable to inability of importers to fill the demands.

Doran said he expected to submit labeling data to the Alcohol Administration this week.

Meantime Greece is to be permitted to send 125,000 gallons of wines and liquors to the United States in exchange for 3,000 tons of American rice.

Completed With Envoy.

This trade was completed between the Greek Minister, Charalambós, and members of the interdepartmental alcohol committee which is handling the admission of liquors.

The Portuguese Minister, Dr. Joao Antonio de Dianchi, also discussed a possible increase of the initial quota of 60,000 gallons alloted to his country.

Trials Separated In Arkansas Feud

City Marshal and Sons to Be Heard Early.

Marshall, Ark., Dec. 26 (AP).—As a precaution against a new outbreak in the Henley-Barnett feud, authorities today set court hearings for the two factions on assault-to-kill charges several hours apart tomorrow and said they would seek promises from them to keep the peace.

City Marshal J. H. Barnett and his two sons, Rubert and Oscar, were ordered to appear before Mayor Frank Smith at 10 a. m., for a hearing on charges growing out of the street battle Sunday night which brought National Guardsmen here to patrol the town on Chirstmas. Jack, Nobe and Alf Henley and Ted Switzer, other accused participants in the gun fight, will have their hearing at 2 p. m.

Mayor Smith said he would order all of them searched before the hearings. The National Guardsmen left today after the seven men had been placed under bond.

Man Granted Reprieve On Eve of Execution

Huntsville, Tex., Dec. 26 (AP).—As he sat in death row scribbling a farewell note to his wife and mother, Paul Mitchell, 24, Lubbock, received word late today his life had been spared by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson for another 30 days.

After the telegram announcing the reprieve was read to him, Mitchell tossed the stub of a pencil he had used in scribbling the note to a table and remarked he had had a "dickens of a time thinking up what to say in that farewell note."

Stewart Jones Trial Due to Open Today

Richmond, Dec. 26 (AP).—The trial of H. Stewart Jones, former clerk of the State Supreme Court, is due to start before Judge Ernest H. Wells, in Hustings Court, tomorrow. He is charged with having a shortage in excess of $81,000 in his accounts.

The case was continued several times because of illness of counsel for Jones. Judge Wells will sit at the request of Judge John L. Ingram.

"On Our Way—the First Year," Due in March, Written Alone.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—President Roosevelt's new book—"On Our Way: The First Year"—will appear in March and will expand his theories of government as expressed publicly during his first year in office.

His publishers announced today that the President had signed a contract for publication of the book.

He is writing it without any supplementary literary assistance, and his publishers said the book will be a development of the closing paragraph of the President's inaugural address. It was:

"We do not distrust the future of essential democracy. The people of the United States have not failed. In their need they have registered a mandate that they want direct, vigorous action. They have asked for discipline and direction under leadership. They have made me the present instrument of their wishes. In the spirit of the gift I take it."

The book will include a lengthy introduction and conclusion in which the President will discuss the past and point to the Administration's future program.

The book will be President Roosevelt's second. His first—"Looking Forward"—was published last March.

Pennsylvania Spends Millions on New Laws

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 26 (AP).—Lawmaking in Pennsylvania has become an industry in itself. In the past three years it has cost taxpayers of the State more than three and one half million dollars.

The special session which ended last week—the third called by Gov. Gifford Pinchot during his current administration—cost approximately $300,000, the Budget Bureau announced today.

Police Push Search For Slayer of Mute

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 26 (AP).—Search for William McMann, 20, in connection with the slaying of Miss Margaret Peevey, 22-year-old deaf mute, went forward with renewed vigor tonight after issuance of a warrant formally charging him with the killing of the young woman whose body was found in a meadow outside the city limits Saturday.

Shortly before the warrant was issued at the request of Prosecutor Bartel J. Jonkman, McMann's mother and stepmother asked newspapers of the State to publish an appeal from them that he give himself up to police and face the charges.

Ax Fails to Yield Clew In Killing of Recluse

Alvin, Tex., Dec. 26 (AP).—The ax which felled Roy S. Lapham, 50, a recluse, in his barn-home here Christmas morning, had failed to yield a single finger print that might lead to the murderer tonight.

Police said they believed Lapham was slain for his last $10—a Christmas present from his sister, Mrs. Ben C. Kennerly, Manatee, Fla.

35 Artists Now Work for CWA

Painters are outnumbering sculptors in the C. W. A. program to decorate Washington's public buildings with works of art.

Thirty-five artists have been hired to date, it was announced yesterday at regional headquarters, and only a few are sculptors. All are working on designs or sketches, which must be approved before actual work is started, except the painters at the Zoo's reptile house, who are doing native backgrounds for snake cages.

The committee, of which Duncan Phillips, director of the Phillips Memorial Gallery, is chairman, will meet tomorrow night to pass on submitted designs and discuss new projects. Murals, sculptures, panels and other forms of artistic decoration are planned for a still undecided number of libraries, schools and public buildings throughout the city.

The Will of Washington.

As the liquor-control bill for the District of Columbia goes to Congress it has behind it the support of the District government and the approval of many influential groups of citizens. It may fairly be said to represent the consensus of opinion in Washington. In view of that fact the bill will carry a great deal of prestige in both houses of Congress.

The District Commissioners deserve commendation for taking the initiative in drafting this liquor-control measure. Too frequently in the past issues of this kind have been left entirely in the hands of Congress. By conducting public hearings the Commissioners have obtained the views of public groups and, to a large extent, mobilized opinion in support of the bill. It is true, of course, that Congress is free to accept, amend or reject this measure. But the very fact that the Commissioners have made an exhaustive study of liquor-control machinery and are giving Congressional committees the benefits of their efforts should go a long way toward the enactment of a measure desirable for the people of the District.

The arrangement under which Congress serves as the city council of Washington has never been entirely satisfactory. Under the growing pressure of national and international affairs our local problems are frequently neglected. Some members who deal with District affairs seem to have little real interest in the subject. Under these circumstances an aggressive attitude on the part of District officials is necessary to secure the enactment of needed legislation in a form beneficial to the voteless citizens of Washington.

The procedure followed in formulating the liquor-control bill should set a precedent for handling other vital District problems. Public hearings on an important measure tend to crystallize opinion and increase the cogency of the Commissioners' recommendations. Through this means the Commissioners may be able to wield a great deal more influence over District legislation, and thus overcome, to some extent, the disadvantages of disfranchisement.

Christmas Retail Trade.

Reports from widely scattered sections of the country indicate that the Christmas retail trade has exceeded expectations and that it will compare most favorably with the records of a year ago.

The Southern States appear to have benefited especially from the combined influence of increased employment, higher prices for cotton and the disbursement of over $100,000,000 of public money in the form of benefits to cotton farmers. In the Southwest, improvement in petroleum prices is said to have aided retail trade. From Minneapolis, too, come reports that receipts of Federal checks by farmers in that part of the country have been responsible for a sudden upturn of retail trade in rural areas.

The stimulus to retail buying afforded by fears of inflationary price advances ceased to be felt some time ago. In the nature of the case, such panicky expenditure could not provide a foundation for an assured and steady increase in retail buying. Increased employment of workers at higher wages is essential to healthy trade activity at all times. Some permanent recovery in this direction is indicated by the latest trade returns.

It is noticeable, however, that the most conspicuously cheerful reports regarding the Christmas trade and the immediate outlook come from those parts of the country in which workers are employed in producing goods for immediate consumption and from districts in which Federal funds are being put into circulation.

A rapid expansion of activity in the heavy industries as well as in the finished goods lines is needed to make effective inroads upon the existing army of unemployed by normal means. The Federal Treasury can not provide sufficient purchasing power in the forms of doles and benefits to offset the depressing effects of the relatively low state of activity prevailing in the capital goods industries.

How to Get Harmony.

Eighteen men who understand the "real meaning of money" have had their names placed upon a roll of honor compiled by Prof. Fisher of Yale, in response to a request from the Consumers' Guild of America. Prof. Fisher admits that "there are doubtless several others" who might be added. But their names do not occur to him at the moment. He confesses, too, that some of the deserving younger economists may be unknown to him.

To those who dislike to see a friendly group disturbed by the intrusion of alien or hostile elements, this select list of eighteen will seem ideal, perhaps because it is so incomplete. If the men singled out by Prof. Fisher were condemned to spend an evening together discussing current monetary policies, it is safe to say that no casualties would be reported the morning after. At worst, a few discordant notes might be sounded, as is always the case when good fellows get together with "Sweet Adeline."

When a literary critic generally is bold enough to list a few titles of so-called "best books," the average reader immediately thinks of plenty of classics which have failed to qualify for honorable mention. Similarly, a list of individuals who possess a unique capacity to understand the "real meaning of money" calls to mind at once the names of numerous neglected economists and bankers who are reputed to be well qualified to discuss the functions of money and credit. Unfortunately, most of these have expressed opinions widely at variance with those held by Prof. Fisher. Fortunately, they may be counted upon to continue to do so.

Results at Montevideo.

When Secretary Hull and his delegation sailed for Montevideo, there was a feeling that this Pan-American Conference was foredoomed to innocuous desuetude. That feeling was emphasized by President Roosevelt's statement, on the eve of the delegates' departure, that the United States would not be in position to discuss monetary or tariff questions. Stripped of the power to deal with these issues, the conference seemed destined to be only a pleasant goodwill gathering.

Viewed in the light of its promise, the conference may be termed a distinct success. It is true that economic questions, such as monetary and debt matters and the Mexican general-moratorium proposal, were shunted into 1934, when they are expected to appear on the agenda of the Pan-American Commercial Conference at Santiago, Chile. It is also true that there can be no immediate action to implement our resolution for a general lowering of tariff barriers. Secretary Hull made it perfectly plain that there is no hope of restricted regional action along that line. In his own words, "No small group of nations would dare to lower trade barriers with the rest of the world sitting tight."

In the economic sphere, then, the conference was virtually barren. But in the diplomatic field, several important gains were made. An extradition treaty, which is expected to receive general ratification with little trouble, binds signatories to observe petitions for extradition and standardizes procedure. We promised our signature to the Argentine anti-war pact, which is, in effect, a Kellogg-Briand pact for the Western Hemisphere. Our signature to the Argentine pact carries with it the implication, at least, that the Senate will be asked to reconsider its reservations to the compulsory arbitration treaty of 1929. If that is accomplished, the Pan-American states will have a peace machinery of their own, supplementary to rather than in rivalry of Geneva.

The convention on rights and duties of states, during consideration of which Secretary Hull declared that the Roosevelt Administration would pursue a policy of nonintervention in Latin-America, is neither so clear nor so certain of ratification as, for instance, the extradition agreement or the overdue equal nationality treaty, designed to terminate sex discrimination in the law and practice relating to nationality. The rights and duties convention will need clarification before its import is fully revealed, and there is some risk that it will be challenged in the Senate as restrictive of the standard American conception of sovereign rights. It may be no easy task for the Administration to convince the Senate that whatever voluntary surrender of rights is implied in the convention is not only just but wise.

The conference was particularly gratifying in that a minimum of unfavorable Latin-American attitude toward us was revealed. At least three factors were responsible for that: The tact and frankness of the Secretary of State himself; the fact that we have not intervened in Cuba; and the signing, in August, of the Haitian agreement by which we are restoring to that government a greater measure of authority over its own finances. There was no "anti-Yankee" solidarity at the conference whatever.

During the sessions, two of the major Latin-American problems moved toward solution. Under league auspices the Chaco dispute seems to be at least in process of settlement. And the Cuban government continues to give evidence of authority and stability. The fact that the Grau San Martin regime feels it possible to release the civil prisoners and a number of officers involved in the revolution only a few weeks ago indicates confidence as to its ability to maintain itself without primary reliance upon force. When the State Department becomes convinced that this confidence is justified, our recognition, essential as a preliminary to reconstruction of Cuba's economic life, will doubtless quickly follow.

Where Criticism Helps.

Senator Borah recently complained that the pending agreements to regulate the price and marketing practices of the petroleum industry constitute a threat to small independent companies. In a letter replying to Senator Borah's criticism, Secretary Ickes says that he welcomes suggestions from interested persons that will assist him to reach a decision regarding the plan now before him for study. However, he notes that the chairman of the Petroleum Administrative Board has made several fruitless attempts to communicate with the senator and has received no response to requests for an interview.

A communication of this sort calls attention forcibly and opportunely to the value of constructive criticism to responsible Government officials who are compelled to make important decisions. Often the pressure from opposed groups representing special interests makes it extremely difficult to act with impartiality or with due regard for the public interest.

Disinterested critics like Senator Borah, whose objections in this particular instance are based upon sound reasoning, can be of great assistance to harassed officials if they are willing to make definite suggestions instead of merely sounding a general alarm. But the critic who insists upon remaining aloof while policies are being defined and commitments irrevocably made, usually gains a reputation for sniping and futile fault-finding which sometimes makes his motives suspect. Certainly such tactics deprive him of the influence which otherwise he might exercise in modifying policies that he believes to be unwise and contrary to public interest.

No Surreptitious Legislation.

Representative Buchanan's plan to eliminate legislative "riders" from appropriation bills is one which merits firm support from the forthcoming Congress. The chairman of the House appropriations committee voices a widespread criticism when he states that "in recent years we have been using supply measures too broadly for legislation." The case against the legislative rider is so clear that the House leaders should be able to pass appropriation measures unencumbered by extraneous provisions, if they take the firm stand for adherence to the rules which Mr. Buchanan advocates.

The fundamental purpose of appropriation bills is to provide funds for carrying on the activities of the Government. Injection of strictly legislative provisions into these measures is confusing to the public and obstructive to free expression of the will of Congress. Appropriation bills must be enacted, or the Government would be left without funds. Hence, extraneous provisions sometimes become law, not because they have the approval of a majority in both houses of Congress, but because members hesitate to vote against essential supply bills.

Last year Congress included in the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation act a provision under which President Roosevelt was empowered to consolidate, transfer or abolish any executive agency of the Government, except the ten executive departments. Under this sweeping grant of authority the President abolished the Farm Board and, in effect, erased from the statute books part of the agricultural marketing act. When measures of such vital importance are interpolated into supply bills there is a strong tendency to "railroad" them through without adequate deliberation.

Of course, appropriation bills are not the only ones that are cluttered up by irrelevant amendments. The Thomas amendment, permitting revolutionary changes in the monetary policy of the Government, was made a part of the agricultural adjustment act. But because of the perennial necessity of passing supply bills, these become the chief targets of senators and representatives with the "rider" habit.

House leaders plan to eliminate legislative matter from the appropriation bills, except when the White House "specifically asks that legislation be handled in this manner." But why should the White House ask for such exceptions? The more important the legislation, the less desirable that it should be handled on the "rider" principle. With the abolition of the "lame duck" session, the almost surreptitious easing of important legislation through Congress, in the form of amendments to appropriation bills, is now less justifiable than ever before.

Navy and Coast Guard.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Even as our statesmen wrangle over liquor taxes and import duties, the President is having the Navy study a plan whereby the Coast Guard can be operated by the Navy Department (this is the thirty-fourth attempt to chisel the Coast Guard out of he Treasury Department). As a military writer I've listened to politicians, fishermen, shipping men, and editors moan about the danger of this transfer insofar as the Coast Guard is concerned. But let's worry about the Navy, our "first line of defense." There is an angle to this merger which Post readers will appreciate.

Both the Navy and Coast Guard build warships. Both services are paid, dress, maintain academies, and swear to die for their country. The savings by placing the Coast Guard under the Navy as a bureau has already been admitted, so we will presume that the President has ordered that hereafter the Navy will boss the works.

Rumrunning is a highly specialized business. The public during the past 14 years have appreciated these gentlemen and will continue to patronize them so long as they can obtain their favorite brand of foreign liquor at about one-half the legal market price.

Because there is a Coast Guard is no reason why a man can't run liquor in. In memoirs of rumrunners on bookshelves you will discover that a Coast Guard is the fourth worry of rumrunners—storms, hi-jackers, and bootleggers take the first three places to make their racket tough.

The United States Coast Guard, while once the sixth largest naval power in the world, at present is a half-starved organization which has taken all the cuts in pay and operation allowances without a murmur. The men who are placed in charge of inadequate patrol boats to roll and toss four or more days at sea are paid as low as $17.85 per month, and they don't receive all the comforts Army and Navy men enjoy. Rumrunners, on the other hand, spend a few short hours at sea in sleek, high-tuned speedboats. The crew are paid a minimum of $50 per trip. Their chances of getting caught by the Coast Guard is about 1 in 10. In one trip a small speedboat will clear $1,000 easily. Engineering skill has made the boats almost invisible and soundless at night. A rumrunner once boasted to me that he could pass 30 feet from a cutter and never be spotted, unless they smelled his exhaust. There is an idea in my mind that American distillers should pay for the Government organization which is protecting their interests. In other words, why not let the Coast Guard go about its proper duties, that of protecting life and property,

But to get back to the story. We are to suppose that the Secretary of the Navy, who now has supervision over the Coast Guard by direction of the President, receives a report that, due to heavy Federal, State and local taxes on legal liquor, rumrunning is increasing. Washington is flooded with distillers demanding that F. D. R. do something about it. (Follow me closely, here is where the morale of the Navy is shot to pieces.)

The Secretary reports to the President. The President will say, "Stop it!" It would take millions of dollars to recruit an auxiliary navy to combat the rumrunners, so the Secretary of the Navy takes the only logical and practicable step. He orders up half the Navy personnel to emergency duty in the Coast Guard, and the Navy stops training to take up rumchasing. Granting that the intelligence of the rummy doesn't break down within ten years, the Navy will still be at it when foreign warships are sailing impudently around the Philippines, Hawaiian Islands and the Panama Canal. Then, I ask you, where is our "first line of defense"?

JAMES C. McCARTHY.

The Cleaning Code.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The most ridiculous thing that has happened in this country since the signing of the Declaration of Independence is the attempt of the NRA to fix minimum prices in the code of the dry cleaners, and the utterances of Mr. William Davis, National compliance director, at the hearing (prosecution) conducted on the 12th. His utterances hurled at men trying to make an honest living, of such un-American terms as "crazy," "fools," &c., indicates only one thing, namely that he is endeavoring to outdo his boss, Gen. Johnson, in the application of jungle terms which have no place in the enforcement of any law, including the NRA.

Let it be understood thoroughly that this is not an attack on the NRA, for I am 100 per cent for it and I believe the great majority of all the people are in favor of it. But it has not been the practice of the NRA to fix minimum prices for products in the codes thus far adopted except in the dry cleaners' code. In this code the NRA went out of its way and contrary to its actions in previous codes in fixing the minimum prices for pressing and dry cleaning suits.

While I am not in any way connected with any person engaged in this business, several persons who are engaged in the operation of this business have told me that they could make a reasonable profit here in Washington by charging the same prices that have prevailed in Washington for the past two or more years, namely 25 cents for pressing men's suits and 75 cents for dry cleaning them, even after complying with the provisions of the code as to hours and labor provisions. Notwithstanding this fact and the fact that they are anxious to continue these prices the NRA has greatly increased the prices and is now demanding that violators be jailed and fined—and for what? Because these dealers have hearts, sympathy and some regard for those thousands of us who are unable to pay the higher prices.

If Mr. McCorkle, of Charlotte, N. C., and others are prosecuted for their humanly deeds—for refusing to charge more for their services than they are worth, for befriending the little fellow whose income is at the vanishing point, every American with red blood in his veins will turn to Congress and demand a change in the NRA law which will prevent any such injustice in the future and at the same time repay any of the fines that may have been imposed.

Compare the attitude of the officials on the dry cleaners' code with the action taken by the Administration on the steel industry. In the latter case the steel industry agreed to and signed a code which greatly increased their cost of operations. Hardly had this code been signed when the manufacturers of steel were forced by another branch of the Government—not to increase their prices—but greatly to reduce them.

Properly Outfitting the Rat Catchers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We understand that it is thought necessary to furnish men in this city with uniforms, plus a three weeks course in politeness, before they are eligible to be rat catchers. We are curious to know why it is necessary for the city to supply these gentlemen with "snappy uniforms." Remembering the old adage that uniforms and brass buttons appeal to the ladies we failed to realize that they also might attract rodents.

It would seem a waste of time to train these gentlemen in the finer arts of "politeness, courtesy and promptness," so long as the traps work with promptness. Is not that all that is necessary to rid our city of these pests?

Iceland a Free and Sovereign State.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Washington Post for the 17th instant contained a very sympathetic article on Iceland by Lora Kelly.

The article contained, however, a slight error in stating that "Iceland's government—nominally under the protecting wing of Denmark—enjoys a modified home rule." According to the Dano-Icelandic union act of November 30, 1918, Iceland is a free and sovereign state, united with Denmark by the common King of Denmark and Iceland and by the agreement contained in the said act.

I would much appreciate if the above fact could be noted in case your paper should publish articles in the future regarding the government of Iceland.

Humility Is the Reward of Those Who Are Not Conscious of Being Humble

By Robert Quillen.

Adhem was a good man.

He gave generously to the poor and made no display of his giving.

"Every man's motives are mixed," said he, "and it may be that I desire gratitude or public praise. If so, I am sorry. I try to be sincere."

He lived a life singularly virtuous and his heart was free of greed and malice. Also he wrote songs in praise of the good life and the songs brought him fame, but he was not content.

"There is something wrong with me," he said. "There is some one thing I lack. For all my trying to be good, I am never content. I wish I could be like the great St. Abou, and enjoy the peace he has."

One day Adhem rode his horse on a lonely trail and caught up with an older man who walked with a staff. His clothing proclaimed his poverty.

"God be with you, father," said Adhem.

"And with you, Adhem," said the older man. Then, in answer to the other's surprised look, he added: "Yes, I know your name and fame. Your sweet songs are sung by every fireside and all men know of your good deeds. It is an honor to know you."

Adhem's heart warmed to the old man, for the compliment pleased him greatly.

Soon the travelers came to a wood carver's hut near a spring and a bent little cripple came out and begged them to share his dinner.

The old man assumed the role of host. He fetched water from the spring and held the basin while Adhem washed his hands. He questioned Adhem about his work and served him as he ate, and his eyes were bright with interest.

"It has been a privilege to hear you," he said when the meal was finished, "and I regret that our ways part here. I follow a path through the forest."

When he was gone, Adhem turned to the wood carver and offered a coin, but the bent little man rejected it.

"It is alms enough for one day," said he, "when a saint enters my poor hut."

"Alas!" said Adhem, "I am not a true saint."

"I was speaking of the other," said the wood carver. "He was St. Abou."

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

A LOT of people don't think so, but in so far as I am concerned, nothing has been more cheering during the Yuletide than the news that the Administration will not change its gold policy. I don't know what it is and neither does any one else but it has always appeared most attractive in color and design, much more so than the policies of previous Administrations.

BARGERON.

It is so original and distinctive, too, that it is a pity the Adiminstration can not keep it in peace. Frankly, I think it sets the Administration off, makes it look right chic, in fact, particularly when it is worn just under the right ear, as the Administration often wears it.

• • • •

Frankly, it is the seeming stability or durability of the thing that strikes my fancy. Everything else is being changed, our entire country is being made over, our business, our industry, our agriculture—but the gold policy, we are told, is not to be changed, not for the present at least.

The changers that we have turned out to be, why shouldn't we be delighted, certainly contented, that here is one thing that won't be changed. Admittedly, the gold policy could be brightened up a bit. I have never, for one thing, understood why it had to be of hexagonal shape, yet that does give greater prominence to its facets and a sparkle that it would not have if it were square, for instance.

All things considered and looking at it from every angle, through a microscope and holding it out this way and that, it is prettier than the designs that have been suggested to take its place.

I'll bet that history will give it a greater importance than we are inclined to attach to it. There is reason to believe that in future years it will be struck off in plaques and presented to museums all over the world, the original being held in our own Smithsonian Institution here, as the only thing that went through the Revolution without change. I don't see why it isn't possible that the gold policy will come to rank higher than gold itself; why it will not come to have more durability. Indeed, it has more durability now.

Not being listed among Prof. Fisher's 18 who understand money, I can't profess to speak authoritatively but it has always been my understanding that the reason all money was based on gold was because of all material things it was the most constant in value, yet we know that the "yellow metal" (as we economists call it) has been subjected to some severe ups and downs.

• • • •

But the Administration's gold policy is something else. We have had it now for several months and while periodically we hear reports that it is to be changed the change does not come about. It can't be said that it has shown anything like the permanence of gold as yet. It has not been with us that long.

The time it has been with us, though, has been a most unusual time and, to be fair, we must give it some quality of permanence to have been with us that long without being changed. Frankly, I would say that it must be a pretty hard nut to crack, so to speak. I can't believe the changers would have just let it alone were this not the case.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

R. B. Cunninghame Graham.

I should like to introduce the works of this man to more American readers. He belongs to that select group of British gentlemen who are equally at home in a university library or on the back of a bucking broncho. And he was brought up by a Spanish grandmother and spoke her language.

Although he is now over 80, his tall, lean figure is full of athletic grace and vigor; and he may often be seen riding in Hyde Park. In the spring of 1932 I had the great pleasure of meeting him in London at an afternoon tea given by Mrs. Bram Stoker, the widow of the author of Dracula. Mr. Cunninghame Graham was talking quietly and most entertainingly of various literary matters, and I remember that when the conversation turned to a discussion of Bernard Shaw, he said that no account of Mr. Shaw would be accurate that did not emphasize his kindness; that Shaw personally was the kindest man in the world. And as I sat and listened to this gentleman, who looked like a nobleman in the court of Queen Elizabeth, I could not help thinking of the wild life he had seen in South America and Texas. In his youth he and his wife rode on horseback from San Antonio to Mexico City.

He was born in 1852 of a distinguished family, was educated at Harrow, has been a member of Parliament. His numerous books are beautifully written. I advise my readers to get "Thirty Tales and Sketches;" and also to read the "Life of C. G." by Herbert F. West, published in 1932. He calls him a modern conquistador.

This rough rider and consummate literary artist would have been at home with Elizabethan sailors; yet in conversation he exhibits that gentleness which goes so well with masculinity.

Floods Recede In Northwest As Snow Falls

Cold Weather Replaces Torrential Rains; Red Cross Gives Aid.

Portland, Oreg., Dec. 26 (AP).—Cold weather today halted floods which for ten days had raged over the Pacific northwest.

All major rivers were falling. Insignificant creeks which had been transformed into raging torrents, were assuming more normal proportions.

Homeless Given Aid.

Several hundred families, made homeless by debris-laden waters, were being cared for by the Red Cross and other relief agencies.

In many sections of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, snow or drizzling rain replaced terrific downpours and the warm weather of the past two weeks—conditions which brought on the unprecedented floods.

Railroads and highways in several parts of the Northwest, however, continued to be menaced by slides as huge sections of hillsides slipped away.

Relief work went forward speedily in Wallace, Kellogg and other north Idaho cities which were swept by the worst flood in history.

Red Cross Asks Funds.

The Pacific area of the Red Cross has appealed for an additional fund to be used in caring for flood sufferers in the three States. About $15,000 has already been made available.

The Columbia River was falling rapidly in its upper reaches, and in the next few days, the Weather Bureau said, the drop will be more apparent at Vancouver, Wash., and Longview. The Cowlitz was down at Kelso, and the Willamette was due to fall at Portland.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

TESTIMONIAL PISCATORIAL.

All my life I had suffered from a lack of sailfish. I was depressed, despondent, moody. I lacked pep and vim. I had a feeling of frustration. Nothing seemed to give me relief. Then a friend, a Mr. Davis, recommended Camp Key Largo, Florida. Now I am a different man. I have a new outlook on life. My circulation has improved and life seems worth living. What a sailfish has done for me it will do for you.—Testimonial by the author.

* * * *

Yes, I caught a sailfish. Only a 40-pound one. But that is plenty. I am no glutton for holding a sailfish for the long pull. A half hour will do any time.

* * * *

* * * *

You go out in a power-boat and trail about eight inches of tropical tripe on the hook about 50 feet from the stern until you feel a sudden yank. (Always you have a feeling that the Yanks are coming.) Then you release the brake and let the line unreel while you count ten slowly.

* * * *

And then you get a workout that will reduce the waistline, take away that double chin and give you the impression that you have spent a day wrestling with two moose, an income tax investigator, a delirious longshoreman and a free balloon.

* * * *

* * * *

The fish would have won with another punch.

* * * *

It had me groggy.

* * * *

I was out on my feet and on Capt. Hatch's feet, too.

* * * *

The boys were bringing up the smelling salts and playing the fish across the board when it ran into a wild swing or something and threw in the towel.

* * * *

As Mae West would say: "It isn't the fish in your life, it's the life in your fish.

* * * *

I hauled the schnozzlefish, the Bergerac of the seas, back to Camp Key Largo and ordered it stuffed to be hung over the ancestral fireplace.

* * * *

But I will never look at it without a feeing that if the fish had held out a little longer it would have hung me over the fireplace.

* * * *

UNSAFE? IT'S DANGEROUS.

Elmer Twitchell says it is difficult getting around Washington safely these days. He says he knows a dozen men who were run over by buses full of economists and professors.

Princeton and Harvard report deficits in sports, largely due to poor attendance at football games. It is barely possible the Big Three will have to put on double-headers next season.

DIPLOMACY.

At one of the white-tile restaurants in New York where drinks are sold a customer had too many cocktails with his lunch the other day and became a little noisy.

"You'll have to get rid of him," the manager told his assistant.

"What'll I do?" asked the assistant.

"Speak plainly to him," was the reply. "Tell him he's had enough wheat cakes."

World Famed Metropolitan Opens Season With American Work.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—In the little Italian town of Ferrara, 40 years ago tonight, a young naval student-turned-impressario presented his first opera.

He was Guilio Gatti-Casazza. The scene was the obscure Teatro Communale.

Tonight, Gatti opened his twenty-sixth season at the world-famous Metropolitan Opera. There was an American Motif to the night.

The inaugural work was Deems Taylor's "Peter Ibbetson," based on the Dumaurier play. This was the first time an American work has opened a Metropoltan season.

The tenor, in the title role, was Edward Johnson, a Canadian by birth, an American by naturalization. Lawrence Tibbett was the barytone.

Recognition for Bori.

Lucrezia Bori was the soprano. Her particpation in the opening opera was recognition of her work as chairman of the committee that last spring raised the $300,000 guaranty fund to insure this season.

Gladys Swarthout, the pretty, young, brown-eyed contralto from Chicago, was the other principal.

It was the thirteenth performance for the Taylor opera, commissioned by Gatti, and given its premiere February 7, 1931.

The season will be only 12 weeks, the shortest in the Metropolitan's history.

The financial condition of the opera during the lean years since the turn of the decade allows only for a season of such short length. But the artistic standard has not been lowered.

It will bring several revivals and new singers. With Lily Pons in "Rigoletto" Thursday afternoon, young Nino Martini will make his opera debut. And musical circles await it with an eagerness not shown since Pons came over from Paris several years ago.

The high spot of the revivals will be the Richard Strauss opera, "Salome," with Gota Ljunberg, the pulchritudinous Swedish prima donna, as the lover of John the Baptist.

Thought too Risque.

The "Golden Horseshoe" frowned quite severely on the operatic version of Oscar Wilde's work when it was revived back in 1907 by Gatti.

The society folk thought it a little too risque. And the "Dance of the Seven Veils"—oh, my!

But Mme. Ljunberg is already rehearsing the dance—under the eye of the ballerina, Rosina Galli—who is also Mrs. Gatti-Casazza.

The season will also bring a new American opera, in English, "Merry Mount," the story of the clash between Puritans and cavaliers in the early days of the Massachusetts colony.

Chicago Opera Opens.

Chicago, Dec. 26 (AP).—Deserted these two years, the pink and gold opera house that was Samuel Insull's pride, swung open its portals tonight to welcome back a glittering stream of grand opera lovers.

The name of Jeritza, the glamour of a first night, and the event of "homecoming" opera backed by Chicagoans, filled every seat in the gilded auditorium, notwithstanding the 10-below-zero blasts that swept down the long colonnade on Wacker drive.

"La Tosca" was the opera selected for the opening, with Maria Jeritza in the name part.

She is but one of the operatic great whose names adorn the five-a-week program—names that include Marion Talley, Rosa Raisa, of Chicago's old Civic Opera Company; Mario Chamlee, Tito Schipa, John Charles Thomas, Chase Baromeo, Elisabeth Rethberg, Grace Moore, and others, enlisted for brief or extended periods of performance.

Johnson Denies Row With Hopkins

Discounts Differences on NRA and CWA Wages.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, who recently criticized wages paid civil works employes, yesterday denied he was engaged in any dispute with Harry L. Hopkins, civil works administrator, as has been persistently reported.

While a difference of opinion might exist between the two on wages, Gen. Johnson made plain it was not in the nature of a "row." The difference in C. W. A. and NRA wages, he pointed out, is largely made up by the shorter hours allowed civil works employes, although some dislocation exists, particularly in the South.

Memphis Banks Show Big Gain in Accounts

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 26 (AP).—Debits of individual accounts in Memphis banks for the three weeks prior to Christmas this year were $93,000,000 compared with $67,000,000 for the same period last year.

The announcement came from J. L. Kennedy, head of the Memphis Clearing House Association, who explained "the increase in currency activity over last year amounts to more than $1,000,000 a day for each Christmas shopping day."

My Dears, You'll Swoon When You Read This!

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 26 (AP).—A practical joker being sought by the Manchester police today will not have the last laugh, if caught.

He is likely to have a difficult time explaining to official satisfaction why he had 21 trucks, laden with Christmas trees and ice cream, and three ambulances sent to the home of a popular young woman.

Just Folks.

By Edgar A. Guest.

Friendly Greetings.

Once in an old-time picture book
My father called on me to look
Upon a miser, counting gold
Within his hovel bleak and cold.
A little chest of brass-bound wood
Upon the floor beside him stood.
The room was bare and he appeared
As ragged as his untrimmed beard,
A creature most forlorn and sad,
Counting the dearest friends he had.

'Tis strange that picture I should find
Still fresh and vivid in my mind,
And after all the years recall
That miser of my boyhood small.
Yet suddenly I seem to be Countin' my friends the same as he
And gloating (yes, the term is right)
Not over coins of metal bright
But over stacks of Christmas cards
Which brough us love and kind regards.

Here for a happy hour or more
I've run these Christmas greetings o'er.
Each one a friend who, far or near,
Has sent to me a line of cheer.
Behold the stack! I'll swear it seems Beyond a miser's wildest dreams.
Again I gloat: "Friends, everywhere!"
And still not one that I can spare,
Here in this lovely tinseled heap
Are riches that I hope to keep.

Women Fliers Sight Record

Tomorrow Afternoon May See New Endurance Mark Set.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP).—Weary from six days circling through the skies, Frances Marsalis and Helen Richey tonight were within striking distance of a new woman's refueling endurance flight record.

Should the flight continue, the women will equal the present mark of eight days, four hours and six minutes at 5:09 p. m. Thursday. They will have to remain aloft an hour longer to officially break the record.

Mrs. Marsalis observed her twenty-ninth birthday in the skies today, but in a note dropped to the ground crew, declared, "it won't be any happy birthday for me unless we break the record and set a new one that won't be reached."

Both fiers expressed a desire for a bath in a tub and an opportunity to visit a beauty parlor.

Court Plea Denied To Duncan Sisters

Lose Action to Discharge as Bankrupts.

Los Angeles, Dec. 26 (AP).—The petition of Rosetta and Vivian Duncan, "Topsy and Eva" of stage and screen, for discharge as bankrupts from further liability as individuals and in partnerships, was denied today by the Federal court.

The action was taken upon recommendation of a trustee in bankruptcy, who reported that the actresses had been "flippant" in their attitude and failed to account for receipts totaling more than $900,000.

When the sisters filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, they asserted their liabilities totaled $1,257,762 and their assets $76,152.

President Will Meet Filipino Mission Today

The long-delayed meeting between President Roosevelt and the Philippine Independence Mission led by Manuel L. Quezon, President of the Philippine Senate, has been fixed for today, when the President will entertain the delegation at the White House.

Gen. Creed Cox, head of the Insular Affairs Bureau of the War Department, is expected to represent Secretary Dern, the Associated Press said.

Julian's Bond Ordered Paid.

Oklahoma City, Dec. 26 (AP).—The Federal Government today won judgments against the signers of C. C. Julian's $25,000 bond, which the oil promoter forfeited when he failed to appear for trial here on mail fraud charges and fled to China, where he is beyond extradition on mail fraud indictment.

Mother Dies

Succumbs After Gift From Soldier Son Reaches Her.

Detroit, Dec. 26 (AP).—A Gold Star Mother, Mrs. Michaelina Wojewoda, 65, died today, only two days after receiving a prayer kit which her son, Peter, handed to a comrade as he lay dying at Soissons 15 years ago.

The prayer kit contained the prayer book, rosary, and crucifix of Corpl. Peter Paul Wojewoda, 20, who as he lay in the mud and mire of the battle field gasped to a passing soldier, "Get these to my mother, Soldier!"

Thomas Caito, St. Louis, was the soldier, and after 15 years he located the mother, the search being made difficult because Peter had shortened his name while in the Army.

Sunday morning, Mrs. Wojewoda suffered a stroke while in church.

Blanton Urges Reprimand for P. O. Solicitor

Representative Thomas L. Blanton, (Democrat), Texas, who was revealed in The Post on December 20 as pressing a claim of a constituent against Postmaster J. E. Meroney, of Ranger, Tex., for $2,500, yesterday wrote to First Assistant Postmaster General O'Mahoney, demanding that Karl A. Crowley, Solicitor of the Postoffice Department, be reprimanded for a "base, inexcusable, apparently strictly political attack, which he caused to be precipitated against me in the press."

Apparanetly under the impression that the The Post's information came from Mr. Crowley, Representative Blanton replied with a lengthy attack against the Solicitor, his war record and present salary, and termed Mr. Crowley's attack ridiculous.

Solicitor Crowley yesterday pointed out he had made no statement regarding the matter to the press, and had given out no information from the Postoffice Department record.

A claim against Postmaster Meroney has been referred to the Department by Representative Blanton, however, and is receiving the usual attention.

In his letter to Mr. O'Mahoney, Representative Blanton, apparently unaware that his correspondence with the Ranger postmaster had been printed in full in The Post of December 20, complained against a series of alleged omissions, declaring Solicitor Crowley "didn't have the decency to publish the facts."

Economy Act Cited.

In addition, Representative Blanton referred to his opposition to repeal of the President's economy act, and charged Mr. Crowley with seeking "to get the opposition out of the way, maybe so the act can be repealed, and salary cuts restored."

Representative Blanton concluded his letter by saying:

"Crowley should advise the press that I forced an oil company to pay $200 it owed this estate, and forced a former postmaster to settle $600 he owed, and forced directors of a bank to pay $1,000 in cash and guarantee the payment of $4,280 more that was due this estate."

The question was raised at the Department of Justice yesterday whether Representative Blanton had ceased to represent the estate as a lawyer, and assumed the role of congressman, before filing with the Postoffice Department the verified claim against Postmaster Meroney.

Section 203, Title 18, of the Criminal Code, forbids a representative to receive a fee for acting in a case in which the Federal Government is a party.

Representative Blanton's original letter to Postmaster Meroney, on October 27, 1933, was written on the letterhead of the law firm of Blanton, Blanton & Blanton, of Abilene, Tex. It was written on behalf of Mrs. Fay Frost Oldham, administrator of the estate of the late Mrs. M. A. E. Frost, for whom Representative Blanton had acted in pressing other claims.

The letter asked $2,500, promising Postmaster Meroney that if he paid the money, or arranged to do so through his bonding company, the matter would be kept from the knowledge of the Postoffice Department.

Asked for Investigation.

Postmaster Meroney promptly referred the demand to his bonding company, and to his superiors in the Postoffice Department, inviting investigation.

While this investigation was in progress, Representative Blanton filed Mrs. Oldham's verified claim with the First Assistant Postmaster General in Washington. This was done, apparently, in his capacity as a representative. Yesterday's letter to Mr. O'Mahoney, made public by Representative Blanton, also was on Congressional stationery.

In a telegram to The Post, admitting he was pressing a claim against Postmaster Meroney, Representative Blanton referred to Mrs. Oldham as "my constituent."

If the question is raised in the House, opponents of Representative Blanton will ask when he ceased serving Mrs. Oldham as an attorney and began pressing claims on her behalf as her Congressman, and whether any fees were involved.

The claim in question, against Postmaster Meroney, is "receiving the attention of the Postoffice Department." That is, investigators are at work in Texas determining whether the Frost estate can claim $2,500 from the postmaster because he permitted her to withdraw a like sum in postal savings after she had been adjudged insane.

The money was paid over by Postmaster Meroney to the late Mrs. Frost's brothers at her request, after she had signed the necessary forms. Postmaster Meroney said he was unaware Mrs. Frost was insane.

Body of Man Who Fell From Plane Discovered

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 26 (AP).—A body identified as that of Merrill B. King, Kalamazoo, Mich., business man, who stepped or fell from a passenger airplane just before it arrived here last March 2, was found today in the Edisto River lowlands a few miles from here. Papers found near the body gave the clew to his identity.

He was flying from Miami to New York, with a number of other passengers. At the time relatives said they knew of no reason that would have prompted him to take his life.

Snow Ahead!

Such a Warning for Autos by Radio Favored.

There will be less likelihood of motorists being marooned in snowstorms or trapped by flooded rivers if the Department of Commerce has its way.

Rex Martin, assistant director of aeronautics, has suggested that automobile sets capable of receiving the department's weather report broadcasts be offered the public. Drivers then could take advantage of reports now available only to air pilots.

Miller said the cost of such sets to receive the department's reports, in the range of 200 to 400 kilocycles, would not be prohibitive. Motorists would be especially glad to receive reports from the 68 stations during the night and when driving over mountainous country, he said.

New Veterans Group Formed

Association Will Seek Cooperation Among Welfare Bodies.

Organization of a new veterans group formed "to encourage veterans to take care of themselves and each other rather than to look to the Government for aid," was announced last night by Maj. William A. Hallahan, of New York.

It will be called the World War Veterans Cooperative Association, and will arrange group insurance for low prices to protect the veterans' families. Other projects also are planned to enable veterans to take care of their own welfare, Hallahan, one of the organizers of the American Legion, expressed hope that the association could cooperate with the Legion in "support of all reasonable legislation to insure carrying out of the Government's obligations to those men who were disabled in the war."

Col. William Hayward, of New York, Maj. Lorillard Spencer, Newport, R. I., and Lieut. Comdr. Frederick Pulleyn, East Orange, N. J., were named sponsors of the new association.

Gov. Gore to Reach City in Few Days

Gen. Creed F. Cox, chief of insular affairs of the War Department, said yesterday he expected Gov. Robert M. Gore of Puerto Rico would arrive here within a few days to study Puerto Rican matters that have arisen since he went on vacation six weeks ago, according to the Associated Press.

Gov. Gore now is in Chicago. Gen. Cox said it was his understanding Gore intended to return to Puerto Rico within a week or two.

Reports have been circulated that Gore would resign here, or return to Puerto Rico to wind up his affairs and then resign, but there has been no verification.

The decree, dated December 25, specifies that huge vacant land areas shall be made available for this purpose during the coming year, in order to enable the most deserving workers to increase their food supply.

Landlord Shoots 2 Women Over Rent

"They Owed Me $22.50, So I Got Mad," Man Says.

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 26 (AP).—Two women who owed $22.50 rent were shot, one perhaps fatally, here today and police named Jack Kutesh, 50, their landlord, as the assailant. Kutesh was rushed to a police station when officers heard a threat of violence against him.

The victims were Mrs. John Maceto, 22, and her mother, Mrs. Adelia Willmot, 40. Mrs. Willmot was shot in the neck and was pronounced in a critical condition. A bullet struck Mrs. Maceto in the chest, but physicians said her wound appeared not to be serious.

"They owed me $22.50 and when I went to collect it they got too fresh, so I got mad," the police quoted Kutesh as saying after arrest.

Man Held in Death Of Vanderbilt Aid

West Virginia Motorist Faces Grand Jury Action.

Petersburg, W. Va., Dec. 26 (AP).—Charged with murder in the death of John Brodix, 52, who was killed by an automobile, Fritz Anthony, jr., 28, of Bayard, waived hearing today and was held without bond to await grand jury action.

Brodix, secretary to Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., the writer, was struck by an automobile Saturday night near Gormania.

Anthony appeared before Magistrate J. L. Boor and waived the preliminary hearing. He made no statement.

Brodix, en route from Florida to spend the holidays in Maryland, was killed as he stood along the road talking to Vanderbilt, who was in another automobile.

Noisy Welcome Is All Ready For New Year

Night Clubs Plan Special All-Night Programs of Gay Nature.

Some 12 weeks ago, Joe promised to be at the opening of the Heigh-Ho. The commencement of a national radio program in which he is still being starred interfered. Just so Pete Macias, popular host of the different Connecticut avenue night club, will understand that he does not go back on his word, Joe will be on hand tonight. Possibly he will sell a few ducks to those assembled. The vaudeville headliner, who was awarded the most favorable radio contract on any chain program during 1933, is due back in New York to open at the Capitol Theater Friday.

Reservations Pile Up.

Holiday crowds around Connecticut avenue and Q street are talking mainly of the New Year's Eve celebration planned by Maestro Macias, which is only five nights away.

Reservations are piling up as Washington prepares for its gayest celebration in many years. There will be favors and an old-fashioned breakfast served in the Neighborhood of 2 o'clock. No curfew time has been set.

Drew and Winthrop, society dance team, are holding down the holiday week entertainment assignment. Marty Rubin continues to vocalize as only Marty can and the performing members of Pete's band every night see to it that something is going on every minute.

Showboat Revue at Shoreham.

The Shoreham Hotel has engaged the entire Bobby Sanford Showboat Revue, a company of more than 30 finished entertainers, to furnish the program for New Year's Eve.

Among the notables booked for this night are Rinoff and Rinova, with L. Kincaid. This act is the most outstanding of its kind. It has played with several opera companies, including the Metropolitan, Grand Opera of Paris and the Chicago Civic Opera. This act also has been presented in at least 15 of Broadway's most successful musical shows, including Earl Carroll's "Vanities," "Artists and Models" and others too numerous to mention. Their statues are now on view in the museums of San Diego, Calif., and the Petite Ballet in Paris.

Current Offerings.

The production, which began on Christmas night and is continuing all Christmas week, is featuring Ruth Mayon, one of the featured dancers in the late Broadway hit, "Good News." Miss Mayon is a beautiful dancer, whose whirlwind spins on her toes brought forth much comment from the New York press. The Three Pearls, last seen in Ed Wynn's "Laugh Parade," are presenting the fan dance which made them the talk of New York. Jack Starr, whose recent success at the Shoreham was outstanding, has been reengaged for Christmas week. Five other high-class acts complete the bill for this week.

"New Year's Every Night!"

With the holiday season at hand, the Club Michel has made plans to offer the gay merry crowds real night life in the beautiful black and and gold room at No. 1 Thomas circle. Walter von Herbulis says "It's New Year's Eve every night at the Michel," and he emphasizes the fact by parading a long list of stellar entertainers before his patrons, and featuring the popular Meyer Davis Orchestra with Charlie Wright "standing in front."

The gala New Year's Eve Celebration will take place on Sunday evening, December 31, beginning at 6 and lasting until dawn (you must leave by noon). The entire club is being decorated in an appropriate manner.

Special Floor Show.

A special augmented floor show has been booked, and will be the most elaborate ever staged in a local night spot.

On top of the Marine Roof (which is now in "dry dock") Von Herbulis has erected a 30-foot Christmas tree, beautifully trimmed with lights, which is visible for many blocks in the vicinity of Thomas circle. Reservations for New Year's Eve are now being taken.

The holiday floor revue presents such personalities as Marion Wilkins and Jack Meyers, "Skin" Young, Nina Allen and Victoria Regal with Charlie Wright singing, introducing and leading the orchestra. Dancing continues until 2 a. m. during the week.

All Night at Wardman.

Festivities at Wardman Park Hotel this New Year's Eve will start at 11 o'clock Sunday evening, and Ted Brewer's Band is being imported from New York for the occasion, together with a floorshow consisting of the agile tap dancer, Bill Huggins; a little act called "Three Maids and a Mike," and the Venable dancers, who will give their own interpretation of the waltz and tango.

The first performance will start at 11:30 and the second at 2:30.

Breakfast will be served around 3 o'clock and the party will not break up until dawn.

Gala Frolic at Willard.

It's a tradition among Washington's elite to celebrate New Year's Eve with dancing and festivities in the grand ballroom at the Willard. This year promises a real evening of enjoyment and merrymaking, with John Slaughter's orchestra furnishing the music.

There will be dancing, starting at 10 p. m., 'til the wee early hours; a supper such as social Washington has learned to remember from holiday occasions of the past, and a bracing breakfast at the departing hour to usher in the New Year's dawning.

Entertainment will be provided, gay novelties and all the other Willard specialties remembered by those who have celebrated New Year's at the Willard in the past, will add festivity to the evening, together with other new features introduced for the entertainment of merrymakers this year.

Hamilton Running Ahead.

Preparations have been made to take care comfortably of 400 merrymakers, and unquestionably there will be that many attending.

Roland A. Mumford, the new manager of the hotel, has brought many novel ideas for party celebrations up from the South with him. Elaborate decorations, an 11 o'clock supper, surprise souvenirs, Meyer Goldman music and a delicious hot breakfast at 4 a. m. are included in the program.

If you intend to join the fun at this Hamilton Hotel party, you should make your reservations now.

Madrillon's Elaborate Plans.

A sizzling and sparkling New Year's party is being prepared at the Madrillon. The baby New Year will be welcomed royally. Attractive souvenirs, all sorts of gay hats, noisemakers and bright decorations will add to the brightness of the picture.

The Leon Brusiloff Orchestra, always a great aggregation of funmakers as well as musicians, will have an assortment of new tricks for this occasion. Not to mention that the New York artists of the Madrillon floor show have also concocted some special offerings as a greeting to 1934.

Among the red-letter entertainers of the evening will be Nadine and Gerardo, dance duo; Morita Martinez, Spanish ballerina; Ray Donahue, singer; "Gay" Schaeffer, comedy singer and cornet soloist, and Ross de Roy, newest discovery of Leon Brusiloff, a clever lad who is both an extraordniary pianist and a good comedian.

Nadine and Gerardo specialize in intricate waltz numbers. Their polish and skill reflect the reason for their success in New York as well as in Havana and South America.

The Madrillon New Year's party will last on past the midnight hour until it is certain that the New Year has been received with full and proper acclaim.

At this stage of the morning, it will be well also to start the day aright with a substantial breakfast of eggs, bacon, sausages or whatnot.

Harlem Hot-Cha.

New Year's Eve will be celebrated at the Cotton Club with a hi-deho and a hot-cha-cha, not to mention the W. K. hey, nonny, nonny.

Seriously, if one can be serious about such a joyful affair as a New Year's party, the Cotton Club is preparing for one of the biggest and brightset parties of its existence. Everyone is invited to come early, make plenty whoopee and stay for breakfast.

The Cotton Club floor show, the biggest in town, will present a flock of new members in their three appearance throughout the evening. Each show will differ somewhat from the others and you, therefore, can see all three and still see something new in each.

Soprano Stars.

"Gypsy" West, sepia soprano, heads the show and will not only sing some of the newest Harlem ditties, but also request numbers, provided the orchestra knows them. Bobby Chapman, master of ceremonies, will lead the balance of the company of Darktown's best singers and steppers through a program especially planned to greet the New Year.

The Duke Eglin Orchestra, of 13 musicians with a full harmony section, will provide not only "hot" dance music, but will also put over a few stunts of its own.

Noisemakers, trick chapeaus and other souvenirs, will provide mementos of a great evening.

An Intimate Revue.

The intimate floor revue presided over by Emory Daugherty, master of ceremonies at the Cafe La Paree, Fourteenth and H streets northwest, features for the holiday week an outstanding group of dancers giving their interpretations of dances from all parts of the world.

Lee and Cody O'Neil start the show off with a bang, doing a routine of taps singly and double. They showed the Christmas celebrators the advantages of vitality and youth.

The Drummer Boy.

"Poppy" Callahan, in colorful Indian regalia, does a barbaric and fascinating war dance, accompanied by Joe Wubbell's tom-toms, and everyone knows that this young man is in his glory when it comes to beating a lot of drums.

The dance team of Daro and Costa winds up the show with what all the orchestra boys called a "humdinger." A Spanish tango and a Persian adagio will be remembered by all present last evening. In their dance Mr. Costa does a few spectacular tricks with his partner, which keeps the guests on the edges of their chairs wondering what will happen next, and if Miss Daro will end up in the hospital or on her feet.

Lotus Blossoms Out.

The Lotus is enjoying large attendance these days. The sparkling new floor show is an outstanding attraction in itself. Betty Johnson is unusually clever in her acrobatic waltz and fast taps. Then there is Marita, whose repertoirie is almost unlimited. For the holiday shows she is doing a fan dance and an Oriental number that really bring out her talent and versatility.

The feature number by Taurita and Rigo is Ravelli's "Bolero." They receive much applause on their waltz, which rounds out a first class program.

To Divert New Year's Revelers

Prominent among the entertainers who will appear in the New Year's Eve festivities at Pete Macias' Heigh-Ho Club will be Drew and Winthrop, dancers whose grace and skill is adding an artistic touch to the diversified floorshow by which patrons of the swanky Connecticut avenue night spot are being regaled over the holidays.

Young Riders To Participate In "Egg" Race

Enlivened by a novel "egg" race and a colorful costume class, the annual Junior Horse Show of the Riding and Hunt Club will reopen Friday afternoon. Entrants in this show, one of the few held exclusively for the youngsters, must be amateurs not over 16.

Golf balls, substituted for eggs, will be placed in a basket hung within reach of riders who, without dismounting, place a ball in a spoon and ride with it to the other end of the arena. The rider who first arrives at the finish line with golf ball still in contact with spoon will be declared winner.

Two first prizes will be awarded in the costume class, one for the most original and the other for the most authentic costume. Seven other horsemanship, jumping and saddle classes will complete the program.

Prominent Among Entrants.

Margaret Hill, daughter of Mrs. William G. Hill, and judged one of the best young riders in the city, will be a prominent exhibitor. Betty Couzens, who won the championship last year with her Notary, is also expected to take a few ribbons.

Other important exhibitors will be Helen Gwynn, Ruthie Meyer, Charles Lewis, Merilynn Himes, Bobby Hanson, Florence and Grace Rumbaugh and Frederick Hicks. Among the young exhibitors will be Peggy Hamilton, 5; James Lea, jr., 5, and Camela Winship, 6.

Margaret Cotter, who was judged the best girl rider of the show last year, has graduated from the junior class and is now showing exclusively in grown-up events.

Listed as Patronesses.

Patronesses for the show are Mrs. Walter J. Cummings, Mrs. Wright Rumbaugh, Mrs. Frederick C. Hicks, Mrs. Smith Hempstone, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. J. J. Cotter, Mrs. James Couzens and Mrs. Demarest Lloyd.

They will be sold on a discount basis to highest bidders. Tenders will be received at Federal Reserve Banks and branches up to 2 p. m., eastern standard time, next Friday. The bills will be dated January 3 and mature April 4.

New York Hotels Crowded and Busy

Those Having Reputation for Wines Favored.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—New York hotels are crowded and busy, and the men who run them are wearing broader smiles.

David B. Mulligan, president of the corporation which operates the Biltmore and the Commodore, said the hotels were enjoying their first heavy business in several years. Albert Keller, president of the Ritz-Carlton, finds more and happier patrons in the dining rooms, adding: "They all seem more ready to spend money, and appear to be happy. We find a decided pick-up in business."

Hotel men agree that the hotels which had established reputations before prohibition for good wining and dining are being favored, particularly by old customers.

CWA Speeds Railway Loan

A contract for the loan of nearly $84,000,000 of Public Works Administration money to the Pennsylvania Railroad for electrification of its New York-Washington line, is practically ready for signature, Secretary of the Interior Ickes said yesterday.

It was announced some time ago that an allotment had been made from P. W. A. funds, contingent upon execution of a satisfactory contract. Ickes said yesterday that terms had been agreed upon and the contract is being drawn.

The loan, one of the largest made to a private corporation, will be used for electrification work and purchase of passenger and freight cars.

Fraternity Plans Gathering Friday

Phi Gamma Delta to Have 85th Ekklesia Here.

Phi Gamma Delta, National college fraternity, will open its eighty-fifth annual Ekklesia at Wardman Park Hotel Friday. More than 500 members and their wives are expected to attend the four-day session.

The outstanding social event of the meeting will be a banquet Saturday night, at which Newton D. Baker and Bishop W. F. McDowell will be the principal speakers.

Cecil J. Wilkinson, executive secretary, is in general charge of arrangements for the Ekklesia. Abbott P. Mills, Washington attorney, is chairman of the Washington host committee; George F. Snyder is chairman of the committee on distinguished guests, and Mrs. Snyder is in charge of the program for Fiji wives and sweethearts.

Ickes Defies His Chief and Skips Out of Hospital

Secretary of the Interior Ickes yesterday became one Cabinet officer who has defied the dictates of President Roosevelt.

His mending ribs tightly strapped in place, Ickes appeared at his office yesterday for the first time since he entered Naval Hospital, December 13. He spent Christmas at home and was supposed to return to the hospital, but went to his office instead.

He admitted with a grin that President Roosevelt had left orders he was not to be allowed to leave the hospital until he was entirely healed.

"But lawyers can do a lot of arguing," he said with a laugh, and I just didn't go back. Anyway, I've been working just as much at the hospital as at my office."

The Army War College Chapel was the scene of the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Margaret Hunter Ely, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Hanson E. Ely, U. S. A., retired, to Lieut. Leigh Austin Fuller, U. S. A., son of the late Col. Leigh Austin Fuller, Medical Corps, U. S. A., and Mrs. Fuller.

The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock by Chaplain Joseph R. Koch, of the United States Army. The chapel was decorated with palms, and on the altar there were lilies and ferns and tall lighted tapers.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. Her gown of white satin was made with a cowl neck. It was close fitting to the knees, flaring out from there to the ankles in a wide flounce which formed the train. The sleeves were puffed above the elbows and fitted to the wrists. A line of shirring the entire length of the sleeve was outlined with tiny seed pearls. Across the back there was a belt of the satin fastened by a pearl buckle. The bride's veil of tulle was simply arranged and held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of gardenias. Her only jewels were a necklace of pearls, which had belonged to her great-grandmother, Eleanor Ashton Miles, and a pearl pin, a gift of the bridegroom, which had been given by his father to Mrs. Fuller at their wedding.

Debutante Ball For Miss Lesh Season's Zenith

Miss Nancy Lesh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Lesh, made her formal bow to society in the Capital at a ball given last evening by her parents at the Mayflower.

One of the very few large, private balls given for a debutante this season, and coming at the height of the holidays, it will be remembered probably as the outstanding debutante function of the season.

Included in the large company present were members of the Diplomatic Corps, official Washington, including the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and many friends of the hosts from the local society group. Many young men and women at home for the week from college attended.

The debutante received with her parents in the Chinese room of the hotel, a bower of Australian ferns and palms forming a very beautiful background for the hosts as their guests passed in line for a word of greeting before going to the grand ballroom for dancing. Baskets and tall vases containing flowers, sent Miss Lesh by many friends, were also used to decorate the Chinese room. Supper was served shortly after midnight in the Presidential dining room.

Miss Lesh wore a gown of crushed rose taffeta made colonial style, with short puff sleeves and a slight drapery on the left side, with a large bow of the same material at the waistline in the back giving the effect of a bustle. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

Mrs. Lesh was in a pansy-colored crepe gown, made with a slight train, and bands of brilliants outlining the neckline. Her bouquet was pink roses.

Visible House Numerals Save Guests' Nerves

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Hasten the day of visible house numerals! Friends who live in the suburbs should for the sake of us all provide an easy means of locating their homes.

They give us approximate directions for reaching the house. We set forth gayly anticipating a pleasant evening. We find the street. We drive up and down, prodding the darkness with our eyes trying in vain to locate a number. We stop here, we stop there. We brave the angry barking of a dog as we flash the light on house stoops. Neighbor become alarmed. Word goes around "mysterious prowler!" The clang of a police car. An embarrassing explanation. We finally arrive, out of sorts, out of all disposition to enjoy the dinner which has grown slightly cold in the interim, and not a bit in sympathy with the harassed hostess.

White enamel numerals, and letters, would have saved the situation. An M street shop is selling some which are easily visible 50 to 75 feet. They are artistic and highly convenient.

We've been wearing silver jewelry with our eel-gray frocks because we like the silver-gray combination. Now a shop on Thirteenth street has some bracelets with gray pearls which will be incomparable with any gray outfit in our wardrobe.

They have one of those easy clasps we don't have to bother about. No intricate catch or little screws to snag our clothes, nothing except ends which fit closely and compactly together.

Natural wood forms the attractive rim to a novel cocktail tray. Heavy glass over gold paper is but half the story of the bottom. On either side attractively lettered lists of cocktails and highballs, tickle our fancy. There's Honeydew, Manhattan Dry, Poor Man, Side Car, Charley Horse, Dauquiri, and numerous others. A little wheel on the side of the tray turns at slight pressure and brings to light in a little opening in the gold paper background the ingredients and method of making any one of the drinks listed.

Tiaras are not only designed to add attractive brightness to evening coiffures, but to play a becoming part in the "everyday" headdress.

For the afternoon "at home" the young deb will find that one of the semisport metal tiaras trimmed with catlin orbs will be quite as interesting as plain smooth waves. The young person who wears a large hat to a tea dance and finally removes it (to her partner's delight!) will find it much easier to keep her hair in place with delightfully informal tiaras.

Pillows which sit up any way at all and offer a substantial backing are now on sale in a shop on G street. They are shaped like triangles with three even sides, and two flat ends. For a large sofa which isn't extraodinarily comfortable these cushions can do wonders. They fit quite firmly either close to the arm or along the back and offer a world of comfort. These come in either flowered or figured chintz.

Way back in the "days when," we used to sit around in front of the fire and have a gala time popping corn with one of the long, awkward wooden and wire poppers. There were blistered hands, smoky faces, but a lot of fun to boot. We had to melt butter and pour it over the corn. Some portion of corn would turn out to be a mass of grease, and the other part of it tasteless and saltless.

Today in this great mechanical age, we can pull our chair close to the radio, bring out our electric popper, plug in the wire, pour in some butter, and "clack, clack, clack," away she goes. In a few seconds the little container is filled and out comes the corn, popped—butter and all.

They tell us the Japanese eat the rind of oranges because they feel that the oils are highly beneficial to the human body.

A cosmetics company going somewhat on the same theory, extracts the oil from the rind and puts it into a cleansing cream, which is considered not only very excellent for removing the dirt, but for feeding the tissues and serving as a powder base for dry skins.

It has a delicious aroma, suggesting orange blossoms, and a soft, rich color resembling the gold of the peel. This is sold in two sizes. Why not a small one to try it?

That very lovely evening bag we received Christmas is entirely too delightful to be burdened with the ordinary change purse and cigarette case. So, to complete a perfect whole, see the beautiful gold leather sets at a shop on G street.

The purse, or the case may be bought separately, but together they're a delightful ensemble.

The Family Marketer

Market Stalls Deserted, But Marketer Finds Some Ideas.

The Marketer pulled on her overshoes a little wearily, reached for an umbrella and trudged to market. What a deserted place! Some of the stalls were forsaken entirely, fruits and vegetables were covered with white cloths.

One of her market acquaintances was standing in front of his stall, thoughtfully biting into a pork chop sandwich.

"How's business today?" said the Marketer with psuedo-cheerfulness.

He lifted his head, chewed a moment, and answered gloomily, "Always raise your hat when speaking of the dead."

"Pardon me?"

"I'll be very much surprised if I get a single customer today," said he, "nobody does any marketing just after Christmas. But you should have seen the people here Saturday! You could hardly find room to walk around. It was more like the good old market days than I've seen it in a long time."

It was the same way at the delicatessen stall. The proprietor was slumped heavily in a chair, his hat tripped over his eyes.

"I've been in the market business thirty-eight years, and I know we won't get any business before the end of the week. But Saturday I ground up over a hundred coconuts for the customers. Everybody seems to want coconut cake for the holidays."

So what to do? The Marketer decided that the best things to eat after all the Yuletide festivities is a nice gentle stew. The market butcher agreed with her, and she hopes you will consider the suggestion a good one.

Lamb for stewing is only 8 cents a pound, veal for the same purpose is 10 cents a pound, and plate beef the same price. Ham, per slice, is 15 cents for a half pound piece. A pound slice will be just enough to tide the family over one meal until you begin buying for next week-end. A half ham sells for 17 cents a pound.

Here is a dainty spread for sandwiches: One of pineapple combined with cream cheese—wouldn't it be delicious for afternoon tea sandwiches? A jar of the spread costs 20 cents.

Jerusalem artichokes sell at 15 cents a box. The market man says that they can be boiled and creamed, and that some people pickle them. Yellow crook neck squashes are good sliced, into a frying pan, sprinkled with salt and, after standing a few hours to remove the water in them, fried in butter. They are two pounds for 15 cents. Delicious little spring onions are three bunches for 10 cents.

Dutch Apple Cake.

1½ cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
4 tablespoons butter or other fat
1 egg
About ½ cup milk
4 large sour apples
2 tablespoons sugar

Cut pared and cored apples into eighths; arrange the slices in parallel rows on the dough with the pointed edge down, sprinkle apples with sugar and cinnamon. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) until apples are tender and dough baked, or about 25 to 30 minutes. Serve hot with cream or a lemon sauce.

Formula For Child Actors.

(Associated Press.)

How do children get into the movies? Here are the answers given by 67 youngsters working as extras in "No Greater Glory:" Through ambitious mothers, 22; through member of family already in industry, 21; through friends with influence, 14; by accident, 7. The Hollywood accident rate seems to be decreasing.

Fashion Turns To Decollette Gowns Again

Skirts Add New Graces as Long Sleeves Wane in Formal Wear.

Arms and shoulders are coming out into the open again. The most important of the new formal gowns have the kind of decolletage that one has a right to expect for brilliant evening occasions. Monkish cowls, long sleeves, and high backs are bowing gracefully off Fashion's stage. Their incongruous part in this season's style show is over.

These new gowns that have no sleeves and very scanty bodices depend upon their skirts to carry most of the interest. And the skirts rise nobly to the occasion. Some have deep circular flounces; some have tiers of fringe; others have Spanish-looking ruffles, and still others have intricately cut sections which give fullness to the center front or to the center back.

Bluish-gray satin creates a stunning costume that clings to the figure, with the exception of a panel, which is set in the skirt back at the hip-line and ends in a short train. The panel is box-pleated, which gives a fan-like appearance to the train. The back is quite naked to the waist, and is held by two very narrow straps. The bodice front is cut to a deep V. Rubies make an exciting complement for this suave gray gown.

Iridescent coq feathers swirl around the skirt of a glistening black satin sheath dress in a fascinating spiral that starts below the hips and dips to the knees on the left side. The backless and sleeveless bodice has a softly draped front that accentuates the curves of the body.

What Today Means

"Capricorn."

If December 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 to 8:45 a. m., from 3 to 4 p. m., and from 7:20 to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:40 a. m. to 12 noon, from 1:15 to 2 p. m. and from 10 to 11 p. m.

You will feel most trusting on this date unless careful, you will be very badly "taken in." Some person, met quite casually on this day, is very likely to become a most important influence in your life and an enduring one. Children will seek advice and guidance from their parents on this date to a greater degree than usual.

The child born on this December 27 will not be the kind to sit and whine when things go wrong or when he is left to his own devices. He will have too much initiative and spunk for that. You can count on this little one getting some place in this world for he mixes well with people and enjoys competition. Both the girls and boys will have more than their share of fights when they are young.

If you were born on December 27 you invariably strive to do the right thing and to do your work well. On occasions you go "haywire" on something that you do and when you do fail or make a mistake you are not quick to admit it. You want so very much to be outstanding and successful that it is particularly hard for you to stumble and fall in any way, for you are one to reproach himself severely and you are inclined to worry over your failures. You must learn to profit by them and to go on with the added experience to something bigger and better.

If December 27 is the date of your birth, your disposition is most changeable. At times you are mild and give the appearance of being always that way. Within a few seconds, however, you can, if roused over even an unimportant thing, swing to the other extreme and show forth a fiery temper that is accompanied by hot words of a deeply cutting nature. When you are really angry, some of the things you say and do are really quite unaccountable. Nevertheless, you are a kind-hearted person, a fundamentally gentle one, and in time you will overcome your temper. The women born on this date have usually most cheerful dispositions. They are physically attractive, they carry themselves well and know how to dress in the most pleasing manner. As a result they attract men and generally the very finest that come along.

Successful people born on December 27:

Nicholas J. Roosevelt, inventor.
William Allen, U. S. senator.
Roger N. Stembel, naval officer.
Lucius Fairchild, statesman.
John S. Wise, lawyer.

Tin Can Solves Apple Problem For Housewife

Storage All Year Around Makes Many Dishes Available.

Northern Spy, Golden Russet Streaked Pippin, Maiden's Blush, Lady Sweet, Newtown Pippin—the very names suggest untold joys to the great American apple munching public. And to those of us who live, or ever have lived, beyond the city limits, they conjure up visions of orchards, from the ripening of the first red Astrakan in June, to the dropping of the last Baldwin or Winesap, on the very edge of winter.

If we could only store them all on our pantry shelves, in all their colorful variety, we could keep the family happy, meal on end, with their favorite fruit. But apples being the perishable and bulky things they are, and pantry space being so limited, it just can't be done.

Quality and Convenience.

That doesn't mean, though, that we have to be deprived of apples any time we want them, for again our good old friend the tin can comes to the rescue of the housewife and you can have the most delicious apples you can imagine all year round, in any form you wish, baked, as apple butter or apple sauce.

And that naturally suggests ways and means of using apples from the cans. It saves so much time and effort, and you don't have to worry about quality and flavor. Here are some recipes for delicious apple foods that your family will be sure to like:

Apple Recipes.

Apple and Cream Chese Pie—Season one No. 2 can of apple sauce with one-fourth teaspoon cloves and pour into a crust. Dot with one tablespoon of butter and bake at 450 degrees for 10 minutes, then reduce to 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Cool. Beat three-fourths cup of cream, add one cream cheese which has been forced through a sieve and pile on the pie, which should be cold.

Apple Sauce Loaf Cake—Cream one-third cup of butter and one cup of sugar. Add one teaspoon soda to one and one-quarter cups canned apple sauce (one 11-ounce can) and add to creamed mixture. Sift together two cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, a few grains salt, one-half teaspoon clove, one-half teaspoon allspice and one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, and add, together with the grated rind of one lemon. Add one-half cup of raisins and one-half cup nuts. (Reserve a little of the flour to sift over them). Bake in a loaf in a 350 degree oven for from 45 to 60 minutes.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

In 1812 President James Madison wrote that the population of New England was increasing. There was almost no immigration into that region from Europe and, on the other hand, the streaming of New England born people into the western country was well begun. The growth of population was due to high birth rate of the old Puritan stock. Benjamin Franklin wrote that in his day the average number of children in a Puritan family was eight. It had been even greater in earlier years.

J. J. Spengler says the birth rate of this stock has not been high enough to maintain the stock during the last several years; that the time is approaching for writing the obituary of the Puritan stock in America.

Nathan Allen says that the average number of children in a Puritan family in the Civil War period was three. In that era the death rate was so high that an average of four children to the family was necessary for maintenance of the stock.

F. S. Crum writes that in the decade of the eighties the average number of children to the Puritan family had fallen to 2.77.

In the rural districts of Maine and Vermont the birth rate is still high enough to maintain the population, though it is not high enough to increase it. In Massachusetts and Rhode Island there is a 25 per cent deficiency in this particular. In Conecticut the deficiency is 20 per cent; in New Hampshire, 10 per cent; on the Pacific Coast, 20 per cent; in the Middle Atlantic, 10 per cent. In other sections the additions just about offset the subtractions.

The decline in birth rate in America started in this Puritan stock, but it no longer is limted to the people of that race. Spengler says: "The fertility rate among foreign-born women and their daughters has declined in a similar fashion and will soon be on a parity with those of their neighbors. The people of the racial stocks added to our population in later periods follow in the steps of the Puritans. About 40 years after the Puritans made a track the other races arrived at about the same place and in the same footmarks."

A Skinny Man.

A. G. writes: I am 55, weight 116 pounds with my ordinary walking suit on. I eat and sleep well and, barring a cold every now and then, I have never been ill. I smoke many cigarettes and I drink strong tea three times a day. I have tried to put on a little weight but can not. I am a good walker and my limbs are apparently clean and have no rheumatism. Can you tell me why I am so thin, and is it dangerous?

Reply.

There are different reasons. Some are of the lean kind. As a rule, they live to ripe old age. Some are thin because they are nervous and on edge.

Drinking strong tea and smoking many cigarettes suggests that you are of the nervous type. Some are thin because they have too much thyroid. Others, because they have tuberculosis or some other organic disease. As a rule, a thin man 55 years old can expect a long and healthy life.

What's in Fashion?

Directed by Amos Parrish

New York, Dec. 27.—Color in blankets. Color in comfortables. Color in bedspreads. But white in sheets and pillow cases. That's Fashion's choice. And it's not inconsistent, either. For white sheets and cases make the best foil for those colorful other bed items.

Of course this doesn't mean that colored sheets are incorrect. For special color ensembles, or if you are using the fashionable pure white blankets, colored sheets (or white sheets with colored borders) give the bed a most dressed-up air.

But for practical, everyday use, this week in one room and next week in another, white wins out. And is the choice of most women.

If Santa didn't leave you sheets on Monday, so you're replenishing on your own, there are a few questions it's wise to ask before buying sheets for the household.

Questions to Ask.

Will they have continuous wear-in, week-out use? How long must they last? Will they be sent to the laundry or laundered at home? Should they be specially soft, smooth and cool?

They haven't of course, the smoothness and softness of fine percale which, as you know, costs somewhat more, or of linen even more expensive.

Percale on the other hand, probably won't give you quite as long wear as muslin. Neither will linen. Yet to many women the extra luxuriousness of these two materials is well worth the difference in cost.

Hemstitched hems are more dressy looking than plain ones. Plain hems, however, cost less and are generally supposed to wear a bit longer.

Luxurious Silks.

To many women silk sheets and pillow cases are the ultimate in luxury. And there's a new silk sheeting weave, smooth and dull surfaced, which, it is promised, will give almost as long wear as linen.

These come in a delicate peach or ivory and are the perfect solution to the problem of how to impress a guest.

Additional Society Notes

Miss Frances Simpson, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. Augustus Simpson, made her formal debut to Washington society yesterday afternoon at a tea given by her parents at their home on Massachusetts avenue.

The debutante and her mother received in the Florentine drawing room standing before a bower of palms and Cebodium ferns. Miss Simpson wore a frock of pansy-petal blue chiffon velvet trimmed with seed pearls and antique gold ornaments. She carried a muff of deep purple violets. Mrs. Simpson's gown was of bronze velvet trimmed with bronze beads. Her bouquet was of orchids shading from green to pale yellow.

The tea table was decorated with poinsettias, lighted tapers and ornaments of rare old Venetian glass. Those who served and assisted were Mrs. Joseph Cox, Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. Henry Fitzhugh, Mrs. Charles Richardson, Mrs. William Colhoun Stirling, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mrs. William A. Morgan, Mrs. A. Smith Bowman, Mrs. Carl Droop, Mrs. Absalom Waller, Mrs. J. Lawn Thompson and Mrs. Joseph Segan.

The debutante was assisted by Senorita Chita Arguella, Miss Katherine Pearson, Miss Katherine Brown, Miss Patsy Benton, Miss Isabel Flannery, Miss Peggie English, Miss Mildred English, Miss Nancy Lesh and the debutante's sister, Miss Betsy Anne Simpson.

Miss Willets, who is now attending Miss Hewitt's School, is a granddaughter of Mr. Edward Willets, who is a member af an old Long Island family descended from Lord Westbury, the first white man to receive a grant of land on Long Island and for whom Westbury, L. I., was named.

Through her mother, the former Miss Ida B. Riley, of Washington, she is a granddaughter of Mr. William Robbinson Riley.

Mr. Jenkins prepared for college at Groton and was graduated from Harvard University in 1931, where he was a member of the Hasty Pudding and the Spee Clubs. He is now studying for the Diplomatic Service.

No End of Books

Miscellaneous Nonfiction for the General Reader.

A history, "DICKINSON COLLEGE: 1783-1933." By James Henry Morgan. (Published by the college.)
A study, "PROTESTANT CHURCH MUSIC IN AMERICA." By Archibald T. Davison. (Schirmer Music Co., Boston.)
A history, "FIFTY YEARS' WORK WITH GIRLS: 1883-1933." By Otto Wilson, in collaboration with Robert South Barrett, national president, National Florence Crittenton Mission. (Published by the mission, Alexandria, Va.)

The story of the twelfth oldest college in the country, named in honor of John Dickinson, the chief draftsman of the Articles of Confederation, is here told by the one perhaps best qualified to narrate it. Mr. Morgan graduated from Dickinson in 1878, became a professor of Greek there, then dean, and later president—a position he has held except for a short interregnum since 1914.

When he came to the presidency the college had an enrollment of 292 students, which was dwindling. There was an endowment of $302,000 and a debt of $136,000. Mr. Morgan's service to the college was by no means limited to these indices, but it may be mentioned that at the present time Dickinson has a student body of 500, no debt, and an endowment of over $1,000,000. His associates generally concede that this spectacular rescue from almost insuperable difficulties is due to Mr. Morgan.

The book gives a very full and careful account of the long years of the college at Carlisle, Pa., from the granting of the charter in 1783 down to the present. Chapter by chapter, the successive administrations are described. There is no mincing of words when the verdict is a bad one. The book includes a roster of the various literary and social societies, the publications and the sport teams now to be found at Dickinson. A large number of illustrations, among them a frontispiece in colors from a painting of John Dickinson, illustrate the text excellently. The book would be interesting to all those fond of colonial and nineteenth century history. For the Dickinson graduate, it is on the required list.

Mr. Davison, professor of music at Harvard, and conductor of the famous Glee Club there, outlines the whole problem of music in Protestant churches and fills it in with sound and lively suggestions. He approaches the matter as a trained musician. These are the difficulties facing the improvement of church music—the indifference and complacency of congregations, the likely isolation from musical centers and consequently ignorance of musical standards, the I-know-what-I-like attitude of most pewholders, the ironbound hold of tradition and prejudice, and the general disorganization of the Protestant church. But once these handicaps are understood, the way lies open toward a more enlightened attitude.

On the positive side, Mr. Davidson discusses with patient thoroughness the uses and material of music in connection with worship. He gives abundant concrete musical examples, analyzing familiar and less familiar compositions from the point of view of the church. Going into this topic, he presents in a brief space an amazingly good summary of the art of music—in matters of modality, tonality, melody and form. At the conclusion he states an ideal for music which is assuredly within the reach of most congregations, and lists a number of superior compositions under the headings of hymns, anthems, organ music and junior choir selections.

Mr. Davidson's suggestions should be stimulating to all pastors, choir leaders and church members who care for good music. His training and background help to make his advice eminently practical. Aside from this specific purpose of the book, the general reader will find it more interesting than he might have supposed. Its flavor is something the reverse of solemn and pedantic.

This year marks the fiftieth anniversary of one of the most remarkable philanthropic organizations in the world, the Florence Crittenton Missions. Since the first tiny home was started in Bleecker street, New York, and faced ridicule and defamation, the movement has grown until its establishments now number 65, represent an investment of over $5,000,000, and operate on an annual budget of approximately $800,000. In the course of its 50 years the organization has cared for some half million women and girls.

The book gives an ordered account of the founding of the missions by Charles Crittenton, their growth under his guidance and that of his associate, Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, and the individual histories of the homes in various communities.

Solidly bound and printed, the volume is a monument honoring the stupendous aggregate of human kindness which is summed up in the Florence Crittenton homes.

Hollywood, Dec. 26 (AP).—Real and unreel: A blow to Hollywood hemen was De Mille's description of the actor he wants to play Julius Caesar, "like a great St. Bernard dog, with a chest an army could camp on," said the director. Brr! Atlantic City Is Packed Christmas Week With Gay Bathers.

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 26 (AP).—Christmas week on the Boardwalk is a spontaneous revue of winter fashions and a "prevue" of summer bathing costumes.

Thousands of holiday visitors to this resort promenaded along the beach, while a warm sun shone down through a slight haze.

They usually defy the wintry weather with a cold plunge weekly in an outdoor pool, but today they were lured into the ocean by the unseasonable weather. The water was "just right," they said.

Had there been tulips and lilies instead of holly and evergreen, and some changes in the color of the attire, the scene might well have recalled to the casual stroller the throngs at Easter time.

Hotel men said they entertained the largest holiday crowd in many years.

Tonight father packed his kits and headed homeward, to resume the grind of business, but in many cases mother and the kids remained behind to pass New Year's, too.

Repeal wasn't cutting much ice today, hotel men said. With bars well stocked with choice liquors, there were few drinkers.

In fact it was slyly admitted there was less drinking done than on many a prohibition Christmas.

Child Actors Collect Studio Wages in Toys

Child actors aren't being spoiled by their reputedly liberal salaries. . . . Baby Le Roy finished a role with, so far as he knows, a teddy bear and a toy yacht, used as "props" as his only reward. . . . His salary goes into a trust fund. . . . Cora Sue Collins, who played Garbo as a child in "Queen Christina," was given a crown she wore. . . . Her mother banks most of her salary.

Almost everyone, it seems, knew about the wedding reception for Fifi Dorsay and her husband at Lew Cody's home, except Lew himself. . . . He just happened to be driving by when he saw the cars parked in front. . . . Dropped in to see what was going on and discovered the party he swears he didn't know anything about. . . . Fifi kissed nearly all the guests while husband Maurice looked on in wonderment.

Never think that your street car motorman is only a motorman. He may be a genius in the disguise of a motorman's coat. Support of the theory lies in the scene of make-believe Christmas enchantment above, to which the 10-year-old Misses Doris Brown and Mary Louise Kane point with pride. With a penknife, some electrical wiring and such miscellany as door knobs, broken beads, bits of wood, orange crates and other et cetera, Miss Brown's father, who is Motorman Russell Brown, brought into being the miniature reproduction of a section of Washington at Christmas time.

This Year He Put the Rich Themselves Under His Tree

By Elizabeth Young.

Dupont Circle—Washington's mystic circle of wealth and fashion—is aglow this Christmas week with the soft lights that tell the passer-by in the snow outside of wonderful dinner parties and balls and gay goings-on to which only the socially elite are eligible.

But over at 325 A street northeast, Russell A. Brown, a busy street car motorman, has reproduced the magic circle and all its marvel of lights and color, for the joy of his little girl, Doris.

Neighbors insist that Brown's Christmas tree and the streets and houses beneath it are altogether the most remarkable thing of the kind in the Capital City each year. And Doris pities the poor little rich girls of the "real circle," who have less ingenious fathers to trim trees for them.

Even Mrs. Joseph A. Flynn, Brown's mother-in-law, yesterday assured the reporter that her son-in-law was an out-and-out genius. And when a mother-in-law goes that far in her praise, it must be true.

With a penknife and a few electric wires, scraps of wood and bits of mirror, Brown accomplishes his wonders. He works at it the whole year round in his spare time. And each year the scenic splendors under the Christmas tree are wholly different. This year it was the Capital's fashionable quarter he chose to depict.

Brown at Work on Cars.

Brown himself was away, driving his street car, when the reporter called. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Brown was away too—hard at work at a typewriter in a downtown office. But Doris was there, with grandma. And friends were coming and going constantly, all eager for a peep at the wonderful tree.

"Come right in," urged Mrs. Flynn. "This is the tree. And this is Russell's work. I declare, what that boy can do with a knife and a few odds and ends, old door knobs and things, is just a wonder!"

The circle, reproduced in miniature, teemed and buzzed with holiday activity around the base of the tree. There was a splendid apartment house, with a penthouse on top, aglow with lights. There were houses and houses, all in lighted rows. Automobiles, trucks, delivery wagons, swept up and down the snow-covered streets. There was the triangular park, with a statue in the center. Far off in the seeming distance was a suburban scene, with a housewife climbing terraced steps, to scatter food before miniature birds.

In front of nearly every miniature home was a miniature lighted Christmas tree. And there were snow-covered hills and gullies, and everywhere trees lining streets and encircling parks.

And it Works, Magically.

By means of concealed switches, the speeding cars could be made to halt. The lights in the individual houses could be flashed off and on. The whole scene was backed by a deep blue, star-sprinkled Christmas midnight sky. The midnight sky, one of the most beautiful and realistic touches to the whole make-believe, was created by the simple expedient of painting panes of glass and placing them end to end against the wall.

"Daddy used orange crates to make the houses," Doris informed the visitor.

"I heard him asking Evelyn if she had some old beads, to make bulbs on the lamp posts," said Mrs. Flynn. "And those little trees he made with his penknife from pieces of wood. But what he makes most of it from is a mystery to me. He's always working on something like that, very quietly; off to himself, night after night, the year through.

"Anything which gives pleasure to his family is what interests Russell. When radios first came out, eight or ten years ago, he built three. Anything electrical seems to fascinate him.

"We never know what he's going to do the next year, about the Christmas tree. Last night he was sitting there, studying the tree, and one of our guests asked him what he was thinking about.

Planning Next Year's Tree.

"'I'm making plans for next year's tree,' he said. 'I may use some of this stuff, but I think I'll give most of it away. I've got a new idea.'"

Last year the base of the Browns' Christmas tree was an airport scene on the shore of a lake. Action was supplied by the boats and seaplanes, which skimmed about on the surface of the water, and the seaplnes dipping upward at regular intervals for a sky flight. The Christmas tree rose out of the lake.

Another year, Brown evolved a river flowing through a countryside. The river was spanned by a bridge, and motor activity flowed over and under the bridge. A comfortable rustic bungalow in miniature was sheltered in miniature foliage at the base of the tree.

This Christmas scene so pleased a Washington visitor from Seattle, who had heard of Mr. Brown's work and gone to see it for herself, that she insisted on carrying away a photograph to show to unbelieving friends.

Health Builds Beauty Where Creams Fail

Health rules are beauty rules.

The condition of the skin and hair, so important in a woman's beauty, are definite barometers of her physical condition.

Health habits have a powerful determining effect on complexion and looks. Lack of fresh air makes the skin look heavy and pasty; the eyes dull; the hair drab. Lack of exercise begets sluggish circulation, limp and lazy muscles.

Late hours and restless sleep leave lines and circles in their wake. Too many rich or oily foods in the diet cause excessively oily skin, scalp and other such ailments as eruptions and dandruff.

And sleep is beauty's greatest friend. No amount of lotion, cream and massage can eradicate the lines and ravages caused by loss of sleep. People live tody in an atmosphere of such strenuous activity and excitement that sleep is almost more necessary than food. A serene mind and steady nerves can only be sustained by sufficient rest.

Food fails to properly nourish the body with nerves jangled from irregular habits of sleep, recreation and rest. There is a beauty of personality radiated by the strong and healthy woman, which is equal and sometimes superior to physical perfection of line, color and texture.

For that lovely, vivid, clear-toned skin and lustrous hair that only health is heir to, one must, therefore, get plenty of fresh air; regularly follow some simple, general exercises to keep the system toned; feed the body on a well-balanced diet including plenty of fruits, vegetables, roughage and not too many starches, fatty foods, rich pastries and desserts.

One must keep the digestive and eliminative organs actively functioning, and to do this, the system should be flushed daily with large amounts of liquid: at least 8 glasses of water in addition to fruit juices and milk.

A warm cleansing bath at night, a brisk cold shower in the morning, followed by a vigorous toweling, is excellent for toning nerves and skin.

Students of 250 Colleges Gather in Capital

National Student Federation Convenes Today at Mayflower.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

A conference of learned economists—students from 250 leading American colleges, convenes in Washington today. Alarmed at the chaos the world has been thrown into by it's gray-haired rulers, young America is coming to the rescue. The boys and girls are taking time off from holiday festivity to settle a few world problems before classes recommence in January.

With banners streaming, their sociology books tucked under their arms, the National Student Federation of America is preparing to hold a series of meetings at the Mayflower to bring the era of "peace on earth" a little nearer home. But as luck will have it, the students themselves are disturbed by rumblings of strife.

War in the student camp—or on their campuses—is somewhat retarding the reformation of the world, it seems. The League of Industrial Democracy, another student organization, will hold a convention in Washington December 29. This group has no patience with the "conservatives" and thinks that peaceful revolutions are no fun at all. Its members believe in parades, and hair-raising speeches. One young woman in the group recently addressed a huge mob of immigrants in the New York slums on the subject of "The Unemployed Woman."

Much Perturbed.

Consternation prevailed among the ranks of the conservatives today when it was learned that a young lady from one of the most conservative, exclusive colleges in the East has gone over to the radicals. She proposes to rise during one of the most important Mayflower meetings, it is said, and by means of inspired oratory carry the group over to the other side.

John A. Lang, president of the organization, yesterday declared that if this is successful the consequences will be disastrous.

"The appeal which this girl will make is entirely emotional," he said.

"We believe in a planned social order, these others believe in socialism. They call us conservatives. We are not. We do think that reform is necessary, but we think students should study the situation carefully and take the advice of experts on world affairs.

"We made an effort to unite with the Industrial Democrats in September, but we found that our ideas were so widely different that there was no common meeting ground for us. They are carried away by wild enthusiasm. They are iconoclasts.

Students Not Radical.

"The American student is not radical by nature. He is only when aroused by leaders from more emotional, hot-blooded nations.

"The extreme radicals have had their chance to accomplish good. They have done nothing. We think that we should have our chance.

"There is a revolution today, but it is essentially an American revolution. And it is the duty of the American student to be in the front ranks.

"The women in the conferences usually run to extremes. If they are radical, they are very radical; if they are conservative, they are very conservative. Most of them are pacifists. They believe in disarmament. They are against the R. O. T. C. in colleges."

The National Student Federation of America was founded at Princeton University nine years ago. The purpose at that time was to dscuss the entrance of the United States into the World Court. Women have always been on an equal basis with the men in its ranks.

The students feel that they can have a constructive part in international recovery. They intend to show the elders who deplore the frivolity of the younger generation how competent, well grounded, and intelligent student opinion can be. That is if the industrial Democrats do not break up the conference.

Princess Maria of Italy Celebrates 19th Birthday

Rome, Dec. 26 (AP).—Royalty paid tribute to beautiful, brunette Princess Maria, youngest and only unwed daughter of the reigning house of Italy, today on her nineteenth birthday.

This winter the princess has entered the social whirl of the capital. Attended by her suite of ladies and gentlemen of the court. Formerly, her appearances in public were under the chaperonage of the queen or one of her sisters.

Already reports link the vivacious princess with suitors. Among them, court circles say, are Archduke Otto pretender to the throne of Hungary, and the Infant Juan, son of former King Alfonso of Spain.

Princess Maria is known as an excellent dancer and she is also fond of sports, particularly swimming and skiing.

She now is the only child of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Elena living n Rome. Her brother, Umberto, Prince of Piedmont and heir to the throne, occupies the royal palace at Naples, where he is in charge of the army corps.

The sisters are Princess Yolanda, wife of Count Valvi di Bergolo of Turin, who gave birth to a son last week; Princess Mafalda, wife of Prince Phillp of Hesse, and Queen Joanna of Bulgaria.

Symphony Manager Leaves.

C. C. Cappel, business manager of the National Symphony Orchestra, departed last evening for Rochester to attend the annual meeting of the orchestral managers of the United States. At the sessions of the organization, which will be held today and tomorrow, problems common to all orchestras will be discussed and plans made for concerted recommendations to governing bodies.

In England, Edward G. Robinson is considered a "typical American," a correspondent reports. Ed was born in Roumania.

"Let 'em Eat Cake," Sequel to "Of Thee I Sing," at National for Week of Jan. 8

Original Cast Still in the Stellar Roles

Wm. Gaxton, Lois Moran, Victor Moore Stars; Amusement News.

The keen disappointment inflicted upon the Capital by Mr. J. J. Shubert's recent precipitate cancellation of Joe Cook in "Hold Your Horses" as the attraction at the National Theater the week of January 8, turns out not to have been the dire calamity it was at first supposed.

Announcement from the office of Manager Stephen E. Cochran of the National late yesterday afternoon conveyed the happy information that on that date will be comfortably ensconced on E street for a week's gay engagement "Let 'em Eat Cake," one of the season's more important and sagacious revues, which will come to Washington direct from a successful run on Broadway with the original cast intact.

"Let 'em Eat Cake," as must have got pretty thoroughly about by now, is a perspicacious and pungent satire on current events and notable national and international figures, composed by George S. Kauffman and Morrie Ryskind as a sequel to the wittily alert and contagiously tuneful "Of Thee I Sing" of last season. This work, one's memory seems to suggest, like its predecessor, boasts music by George Gershwin and lyrics by brother Ira, than which there is nothing better to be had as such things go.

Gaxton-Moran-Moore.

The three principal roles in "Let 'em Eat Cake" are played by the same trio of glib and genial artists who communicated so much that was admirable to the whimsical humor of "Of Thee I Sing"—William Gaxton, Lois Moran and Victor Moore.

Mr. Moore's droll creation of Vice President Alexander Throttlebottom bids fair to become one of the immortals of the theater. Mr. Gaxton, of course, is one of our smoothest singing comedians and Miss Moran, whose first celebrity occurred when she was one of the more substantial ingenues of the silent cinema, is said to reveal a developed and a maturer ability in her present assignment.

So, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," "All things come to him who will but wait," "There is balm in Gilead"—and other platitudes!

Life, since the sudden booking of "Let 'em Eat Cake," is becoming more and more complicated for Mr. John Montague, one of the more earnest of the itinerant publicists devoting their literary and forensic talents to the celebration of the stage's major undertakings.

Mr. Montague only a short time ago was here as avant courier for the Shuberts' so-called "Ziegfeld Follies," now under the general direction of John Murray Anderson, instead of Bobby Connelly, and almost met himself leaving the city on his way back to stir up a little excitement over the coming to town December 31, New Year's Eve, of "Ten Minute Alibi," Anthony Armstrong's provocative murder drama. Advised cryptically by his home office to sit figuratively tight in Panjandrum Cochran's office until he received further orders, he was apprised yesterday that he is now advance agent of "Let 'em Eat Cake."

Mr. Montague's personal conviction probably is that he is the individual star of "Washington Merry-Go-Round." Certainly he seems to be on one!

Moved Ahead.

Among other Washington entertainments that have been advanced on the calendar is the RKO-Radio production of "Flying Down to Rio," heralded as one of the more pretentious and more original of the season's screen musicals. Since this column, through unavoidable circumstances, was unable to attend the Saturday press preview of "Flying Down to Rio," staged by Manager Hardie Meakin in the Fox Film Exchange, it is going to view the picture a short hour or so after completing these vagrant notes in the middle of a Tuesday evening, which seems entirely like Monday because Monday was so completely cast in the mold of the Sabbath. So, more of the specific qualities of merit of the Dolores Del Rio-Raul Moulien-Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers vehicle at a later time.

What this item set out to make clear was that "Flying Down to Rio" will open at RKO-Keith's on Friday of the current week, instead of being held for a special New Year's Eve inaugural.

Mr. Astaire Dances.

This much, of a surety, may be said in advance with no ominous likelihood of discovering later that one has wandered lamentably from the fact: Fred Astaire, who was little more than a name in his last picture, here demonstrates at some length, and with eloquent close-ups of his feet, just what an expert dancer he is—one of the cleverest, as a matter of fact, that the stage or screen can boast, not forgetting the extraordinary triple-timing of Master Hal LeRoy.

There has, it seems, been a slight rearrangement of plans for Maestro Ben Bernie and "all the lads" in the matter of their utilization as a screen asset by Paramount. They were to have been a feature, first, in the Paramount picturization of Earl Carroll's "Murder at the Vanities," but now have been assigned to the same company's celluloid rendering of that ribald collaboration of Ben Hecht's and Gene Fowler's known to the lovers of the lower forms of comedy as "The Great Magoo"—an incarnadined tale of love around the Coney Island sideshows.

This is important to Washington only by reason of the fact that last week Maestro Bernie and the boys played a highly remunerative week at the Paramount Theater in New York and this Friday open a return engagement as the principal vaudeville feature of the bill at the Earle Theater, situated, locally, on Thirteenth street at E.

Commiseration!

A vault of buried movie aspirations containing more than 1,000 unsuccessful screen tests, was decorated with a wreath as a Yuletide gesture of rejoicing and respect by Irene Dunne, dramatic actress, whose career miraculously escaped interment with them.

The movie colony knows full well that once a test is filed in one of the studio vaults, ostensibly for "future reference," its maker might quite as well turn at once to other fields of endeavor.

Miss Dunne journeyed to Hollywood originally as a singing actress. Musical pictures then were scarcely past the zenith of their remarkable vogue. However, they soon died a sudden and ignominious death. Miss Dunn fought hard and long for recognition of her dramatic ability, and achieved it, finally, by her splendid performanre of the role of Sabra Cravat in RKO-Radio's filmization of Edna Ferber's memorial 'Cimarron." That picture elevated her to stardom and such later triumphs as "Back Street."

At the holiday season she decided to shed a tear and place a wreath in sympathy for the less fortunate.

The age-old legend of "The Other Wise Man," written by Dr. Henry Van Dyke many years ago, and translated into many tongues throughout the world, will be presented, as is the Yuletide custom in the Capital City, this week in the Luther Place Memorial Church, beginning tonight at 8:30. The drama will be repeated, under the direction of Bess Davis Schreiner, tomorrow and Friday nights at the same hour.

Children's Theater.

The Children's Theater's Christmas production of "Cinderella," due here tomorrow morning, December 28, will be more than ever welcome to theatergoers, young and old, being the sole representative in Washington this week of the legitimate stage; and, for the olders, solving the pressing question of what to do with the youngsters home from school for the holidays. To the youngsters it presents the rare opportunity of seeing this famous folktale "in the flesh."

The darkness prevailing at the National will be dispelled Thursday at 10:30 a. m., when it is expected that the theater will be filled to overflowing with the Christmas parties planned weeks ahead, for these monthly morning plays, which the Women's International League are sponsoring, attract a joyous bunch of boys and girls of all ages, and "Cinderella" bids fair to eclipse all its forerunners in popularity.

Adult, Professional Cast.

Mrs. Clara Tree Major, director of the Children's Theater, has assembled a cast of experienced, professional actors, for her production. Gene Magnus, young Australian actress, well known to youthful audiences for her work last season, is the lucky Cinderella who loses her slipper at the prnice's ball, and thereby wins the prince. Before joining the organization, she was seen in "Spellbound," with Pauline Lord. She will appear here again later in the season as Gluck in "The King of the Golden River."

Townsend Muddell, veteran—in spite of youth—of several musical comedies and dramas, is the Prince Charming. Perhaps he will be remembered by elder theatergoers in "Journey's End," "Private Lives," "Death Takes a Holiday," "No, No, Nanette," and "Queen High." "Rip Van Winkle" will bring him back to Washington in another two months.

Other featured members of the cast are Dorothy Major, in the role of the fairy godmother; June White, Madeleine Fales, Philippa Bevans, the cruel step-sisters and step-mother, and John O'Connor.

Katharine Cornell will act the title role of George Bernard Shaw's "Candida" for the first time outside New York City when she presents this comedy in the Metropolitan Theater, Seattle, Wash., on Saturday night of the present week. Basil Rathbone will be seen as James Mavor Morell, Orson Welles as Marchbanks, Brenda Forbes as Prossy, John Hoysradt as Lexy and A. P. Kaye as Burgess. Guthrie McClintic is directing the production and Woodman Thompson has designed the costumes and settings. Discriminating theatergoers increasingly regret that Miss Cornell's repertoire is not being presented in this city this season.

Aftermath.

By the way, what luck are you having exchanging all those presents for others that you don't need, less?

The Sable Wings of Lively Comedy!

Key-Smith's Inquiry Turns Up New Signature of J. Q. Adams

Paper Found in Georgia in Hunt for Data on Old Lawsuit.

Lieut.-Col. Francis Scott Key-Smith, searching for data on a legal case involving his great-grandfather, who wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner," has brought about the discovery of an original signature of John Quincy Adams.

The signature was found in a batch of yellowed papers at Savannah, Ga., according to an Associated Press dispatch yesterday. Scarcely legible, it is affixed to a paper certifying that one Don Carlos Mulvey was consul of the King of Spain at Savannah. That was about 115 years ago.

Col. Key-Smith, who practices law here, recently wrote for information which centers around a suit brought in Savannah by the Spanish sovereign to recover 280 Negro slaves who apparently were seized on the high seas by Americans. Little is known about the legal battle, except that it was carried to the United States Supreme Court, where Francis Scott Key argued its merits.

Scott A. Edwards, clerk of United States District Court in Savannah, believes the paper bearing Adams' signature gave the consul authority to bring his suit into the Federal court.

The suit named the slaves as defendants and sought their recovery for either their Spanish owners or the king himself. The petition stated a Spanish ship known as The Antelope, or the General Ramirez, was engaged in bringing slaves from Africa to Cuba, when the Columbia, a vessel from Baltimore, chased the Spanish ship off the coast of Africa and captured 280 Negroes.

Approaching South America, the ship foundered off the coast of Brazil. The United States revenue cutter Dallas captured the cargo of slaves and evidently brought them into Savannah.

Col. Key-Smith said last night the Supreme Court opinion was delivered in 1818 by Chief Justice Marshall, returning boat and cargo to their Spanish owners. He believes his great-grandfather argued the case only in the Supreme Court here, but is not certain.

Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens Celebrate

A combination Christmas and New Year celebration was held last night by the Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens' Association meeting at the Northminster Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Ella M. Thompson, president, gave a song recital, accompanied by Miss Henrietta Flynn. Later the entire group joined in singing Christmas carols.

Toyland Comes To Life Again At White House

"Sistie" and "Buzzie" Give a Party for Sixty Young Guests.

Raggedy Ann, the ginger bread man, clowns and little pigs and rabbits, and lots more of the people and animals of toyland were present at the White House yesterday.

"Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, grandchildren of the President, gave a party. Sixty guests were present, among them Grandfather, who was admitted, not as President of the United States, but just because he was the grandfather of the host and hostess. Also present were Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Anna Dall, mother of "Sistie" and "Buzzie."

A great Christmas tree, 20 feet tall, stood in the east room, and on and around it were gifts for the children. A stage by the gold piano produced the characters who live back of the looking glass, and in the pages of Mother Goose. They were all produced by the Toy Lady, Wendy Marshall, whose songs were accompanied on the piano by her sister, Madeline.

No Tin Soldiers.

Everybody from toyland was there—except the little tin soldier. Mrs. Roosevelt doesn't believe children should play soldier or that soldiers should even be present at a Christmas party. So the little tin soldier became a little drum major. Sistie liked that better, anyway, because she received a drum for Christmas and she said that was the best of all her gifts. Buzzie gave first choice to a mouth organ.

But the parade of the toys wasn't all. There were refreshments in the state dining room, served there at the special request of Sistie. But even the state dining room wasn't big enough to hold all the guests, so Buzzie acted as host to the smaller children in the private dining room.

Gifts for All.

During the intermission, just after the Toy Lady had sung about "Animal Crackers," Sistie and Buzzie distributed animal crackers from baskets among the guests. And, once, when the Toy Lady asked plaintively, "Has anybody a little yellow dog? I'm very lonely," Sistie ran to the stage with a little yellow toy dog.

Mrs. Roosevelt saved one of the best treats to the last. Just as the party ended, she presented each boy and girl with a bright toy balloon "to take home and show mother."

Seventy-one guests had been invited, but colds, croup and at least one case of chicken pox cut the guest list to 60. Those who could not attend, however, were sent gifts, carried home by brothers, sisters or playmates.

Woodin's Songs Played.

The musical program, which included two songs, "Raggedy Ann" and the "Cookie Bush," written by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, follows:

Titles and composers:

Sara Roosevelt Ill.

Brookline, Mass., Dec. 26 (AP).—A cold compelled little Sara Roosevelt to spend Christmas in bed, but the gifts surrounding her so lifted her spirits that the two-and-one-half-year-old grand-daughter of the President was much improved today.

Sara's presents included a variety of dolls, books, building blocks and three toy fox terriers in a kennel, the latter the gift of her granddaddy in the White House.

Although her cold was slight, every precaution was taken to avert complications and she remained abed today at the home of her mother's father, Dr. Harvey Cushing.

Rybier Club Presents Piano Artist Tonight

Mme. Rosita Escalona, Puerto Rican pianist, will be presented by the Felicia Rybier Music Club at a meeting this evening at 2 Dupont Circle. Mme. Escalona is a graduate of the Curtis Institute, and has appeared as soloist on several occasions with the Curtis Orchestra and with an orchestra in Boston under the direction of Nikolai Slonimski.

Mme. Escalona will play a group of Chopin compositions and some Spanish numbers. Joseph Bruno, Washington barytone, will participate in the program.

Capone Pistol Used In Holdup Attempt

Miami, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP).—Jack Whyte, horse owner and trainer, wrested a pistol from one of three men who attempted to hold him up today, and police tonight said it was from a consignment of 12 purchased for Al Capone, former Chicago gang leader, in 1929.

Another of the pistols, said police, was used in the slaying of Frankie Uale, New York gangster, there in the spring of the same year.

D. C. Heads Praise Brass for Bravery

Cited for His Capture of Four Armed Men.

Detective Sergt. Frank O. Brass was cited yesterday by the District Commissioners for his capture, after a pistol battle, of four armed men in the Arlington Hotel.

Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the board, in a letter to Brass said the action "indicates you possess those splendid qualities of courage, initiative and resourcefulness which maintains the best traditions of the Metropolitan Police Department."

In a letter to Maj. E. W. Brown, superintendent of police, Hazen said: "It is service of this character that redounds so much to the credit not only of the Police Department, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, but to that of all law enforcement agencies in the United States."

5 New Codes Are Approved By President

40-Hour Week Included in All; Slight Gain in Jobs Expected.

(Associated Press.)

Approval by President Roosevelt of five new NRA codes was announced yesterday, but none of the major pacts now before him was in the list.

The codes approved were silverware manufacture, medium and low priced jewelry, watch-case manufacture, commercial refrigeration industry and paper distributing industry.

All these codes carried a 40-hour week with provisions for seasonal increase to 48 hours. Only small increases in employment were expected to result.

In the silverware code minimum wages were set at 35 cents and a reemployment of 20 per cent under the Blue Eagle agreement was estimated to have taken place.

The jewelry industry obtained a 32½-cent minimum wage, and the Administration reported a 36.8 per cent increase in employment.

In watch-case manufacture minimum wages were set at 35 cents an hour, or $14 a week. Hugh S. Johnson, reporting to the President, said the code would not cause any substantial increase in prices, but that a marked increase was to be expected from high prices for gold.

The paper industry obtained minimum wages of $14 to $15 weekly and was expected to employ 15 per cent more help under the 40-hour week.

Narcotic Peddler Suspect on Bond

Man Shot by U. S. Agent Held to Grand Jury.

Harris Stein, 29, alleged narcotic peddler, who was shot December 21 while resisting arrest in the Union Station, was released from jail yesterday on $6,000 bond.

A few hours previous to his release, Stein waived preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, and was bound over to the grand jury. He was charged with violation of narcotic laws.

Stein, who police say is the head of a local ring, was shot in the hip by Thomas Maxwell, Federal narcotic officer.

District Liquor Bill Gets Final Sanction

Final approval was given to the District liquor control bill by the commissioners yesterday, preparatory to sending it to the Senate and House District Committees today.

The measure, as drafted by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and made public Saturday, was approved without change except as to occasional words.

Three Held Here In Romney Theft

Two Men and Woman Are Grilled on Holdup.

Two men and a woman were taken into custody by headquarters detectives last night for questioning in connection with a holdup in Romney, W. Va., last Friday.

The trio, Mrs. Mary M. Lewis, 21; her husband, Welby, 24, and Thomas B. Sootes, 31, all of 938 New York avenue northwest, are said by police to have held up and robbed a resident of the West Virginia city of $12 and his automobile.

West Virginia authorities were notified of the trio's detention. Detective Sergt. Arthur Fihelly, who made the arrest, said Lewis and his wife will be questioned regarding several gas station holdups here within the past few weeks.

Japan to Help In Arms Parley, Sato Declares

Nation to Reenter League Debate, New Envoy to France Says.

Paris, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Despite her withdrawal from the League of Nations, Japan is eager to see the Geneva arms conference carried to a successful conclusion, Naotake Sato, new Japanese Ambassador to France, said in an interview today.

"Japan will extend her most sincere efforts to make the disarmament conference a success," Sato said. "We are remaining aloof at present because discussions are for the moment purely European, but when the parley again touches on world land armaments and naval reductions, Japan will reenter the debate.

"Japan's position on the league is the same as when she withdrew. We never have studied any compromise project to return, but have been engaged actively in the humanitarian and international peace efforts of the league."

Sato's explanation of Japan's present position on armaments and affairs in Europe came with particular significance, in view of the fact he recently was named by Tokyo to replace Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese envoy in London, as Japan's representative at Geneva.

"Japan favors revision of the league covenant," Sato added, "but that is most difficult without touching the essential structure of the league, a move toward which the small powers are always hostile."

Republican Leader Refuses to Appear

Macy Says Subcommittee Has No Jurisdiction.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Republican State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy announced he would not appear before a subcommittee in Albany tomorrow to substantiate his charges that the Republican Assembly leaders are under the influence of public utilities.

Macy repeated his contention that the subcommittee, appointed at a recent State caucus, is not the proper body to pass on his charges.

Former State Chairman H. Edmund Machold and Assembly Clerk Fred W. Hammond were the two individuals cited by Macy in his charges of utilities domination.

Paris Unmoved By Herriot's Debt Attack

Former Premier Assails French Failure to Pay U. S.

Paris, Dec. 26 (AP).—The new blast of former Premier Edouard Herriot in favor of payment by France of its debts to the United States, fell "like a pebble in the ocean," a government spokesman said today.

M. Herriot said he recognized "my opinion is unpopular" and that the statement passed unnoticed.

The former premier, whose cabinet was overthrown on the debt issue last year, asserted "we committed a grave mistake" in not recognizing the debts as Great Britain did.

Makes Third Default.

France on December 15 made its third default to the United States on $22,200,926 interest on the remaining $3,863,650,000 debt. At the same time, England made a token payment.

In the event Premier Camille Chautemps' cabinet falls, political circles believe M. Herriot will be a strong possibility to succeed him. In his statement, the former premier broke a long silence on the subject.

"The position we have taken has isolated us," he declared, urging his country to reflect "what might happen in the case of a European war."

Asks For Cooperation.

"I am for as close contact as possible with the United States," the statesman added.

Following the overthrow of his cabinet in December, 1932, M. Herriot campaigned for debt payment. But with the present cabinet and the Chamber of Deputies apparently opposed to action on the subject, it was believed he would follow a waiting attitude.

PWA Slights D. C. School Fund Appeal

3 High and 1 Vocational Plants Included in Requests.

District Fight for Relief Will Be Led by Trade Board.

With a battle brewing in Washington and the Nation over lack of school facilities, it was pointed out yesterday that District officials have asked the Public Works Administration for $3,420,000 for local school construction, and nothing has been done about it.

The request for this appropriation, which includes three new high schools and one vocational school, was made to the P. W. A. last June by the former District Commissioners. Several appeals have been made since for action, both by the former Commissioners and the present ones.

The situation has been further accentuated by recent criticism by the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, of the fact that funds have been advanced for roads while schools have been ignored and by the announcement yesterday by Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, that he is highly concerned over the impending shortage of school buildings in Washington. He intends to give the situation immediate attention when Congress convenes.

13 Separate Items.

The District application for P. W. A. school funds consists of 13 separate items. These include the Anacostia Junior High School and the Woodrow Wilson, proposed for the Reno section of Chevy Chase. The appropriation to begin the Anacostia school was recently reported to have been eliminated by the Director of the Budget. Funds to begin the Woodrow Wilson School were stricken from the last budget estimates.

The funds sought for these two schools from the P. W. A. are supplementary to the appropriations made by Congress and later eliminated by the Bureau of the Budget. $120,000 has been asked from the P. W. A. for the Anacostia School and $330,000 for Woodrow Wilson.

These two schools were singled out by Senator King as demanding particular attention.

The largest grant asked from the P. W. A. is $1,400,000 for a new colored high school at Twenty-fourth street and Benning road northeast. Three hundred thousand dollars has been asked to begin work on a severely needed vocational school in the southeast section.

Three appropriations of $155,000 each are sought for additions to the Alice Deal, Eliot and Brown Junior High Schools. One hundred thousand dollars is asked for an addition to the Truesdale elementary school and $130,000 to complete the Young School.

Would Complete 7 Rooms.

For plans and specifications for a senior high school in Manor Park, $30,000 is asked. One hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars is asked to complete seven classrooms at the new Roosevelt High School, and $300,000 to repair and improve various playgrounds.

The application list includes $120,000 to replace antiquated school heating equipment with modern plants at the Grant School.

Linked with the school applications are requests for funds for two branch libraries and an addition to the Central Library. One of $175,000 is for Georgetown, and the other, of $125,000, for Petworth. For enlargement of the Central Library, $500,000 is asked.

Branch libraries are fewer in Washington than in any other city, according to Dorsey Hyde, jr., executive secretary of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

The campaign for District school funds is expected to be led by the Washington Board of Trade. Dr. Sizoo has called upon this organization to appoint a committee to study the situation and "tell the truth."

Wide Drive Planned.

A Nation-wide campaign for Federal appropriations for school facilities is to be waged by a joint committee on the emergency in education of the National Education Association and the department of superintendence.

Relief will be sought through Congressional or Administrative action, it was announced yesterday. Forty-eight State associations, with a membership of 600,000, are participating.

Immediate action for opening closed schools will be asked. A survey has revealed that 2,000 schools alone have closed their doors, and that a number will be forced to close by March 1 if aid is not extended. Twenty-five thousand teachers have been dropped from schools, and a million pupils.

Several proposals will be made to Congress, it was announced. One will be the suggestion that funds be released through Federal agencies, providing loans to school districts on the security of delinquent taxes and school funds frozen in closed banks. Another is for a temporary appropriation to be distributed to States as long as the emergency continues. Suggestion also will be made that school taxes be reduced through funds from sources available only to the Federal Government.

Change-of-Address "Tardies" Clog Tag System

Upper photo shows crowd stampeding clerks at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic at John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue for their 1934 license plates which were returned to the department when thousands failed to advise of a change of address. The $2 fine they pay means little to them in view of the much larger fine they will have to pay if they don't have their tags by midnight, December 31. The lower photo shows Director of Traffic Van Duzer chatting with an idle clerk at a tag dispensing window nearby while waiting on the tag "tardies" to straighten their difficulties.

Another Move To Get School Site Is Started

Commissioners Announce Willingness to Request New Appropriation.

A new move to obtain for the District government title to all lots on the proposed site of the Jefferson Junior High School was launched yesterday, when John M. Schaffer, president of the Southwest Washington Citizens Association, called on the Commissioners.

The District heads informed Schaffer they would gladly ask Congress for a new appropriation to obtain the remainder of the site, provided the owners will submit reasonable offers.

The Commissioners pointed out that $185,000 in appropriations for land purchase had lapsed because of the failure of District officials and the property owners to agree on a fair price. The District now has an appropriation of $250,000 and an authorization of $585,000 to start construction of the school once the site is obtained.

After haggling with George E. Sullivan, attorney for the property owners, for several years, the Commissioners set aside the project indefinitely.

Two condemnation awards, ranging from $110,000 to $205,000, were appealed, the first by the land owners and the second by the District. The property holders also rejected a compromise offer.

The site, of which the District now owns a substantial portion, is bounded by Seventh and Eighth and H and I streets southwest.

Y. M. C. A. to Give New Year's Party

Members and Families Invited Monday.

Following traditional custom, the Washington Young Men's Christian Association will hold a New Year open house celebration Monday for all members, their families and friends.

Athletic tournaments and exhibitions in two gymnasiums, a mixed "splash party" for families and guests in the swimming pool, music, dancing, dramtics and refreshments are included in the all-day program arranged by a staff committee headed by C. E. Fleming, service secretary. Other members of the committee are Louis B. Nichols, associate business secretary; Dr. James A. Bell, director of education of Southeastern University; James C. Ingram, boys' work director, and Ralph Foster, director of physical education.

Policeman Is Held In Fatal Shooting

A coroner's jury yesterday held Private Lawrence Jackson, colored, of the Fourth Precinct, to the grand jury in the fatal shooting of James Davis, 32, colored, of 362 B street southwest, Sunday. The jury deliberated an hour and a half.

A statement by Jackson, asserting he fired at one of two assailants who rushed at him during an argument in front of a grocery store at 229 Four-and-a-Half street southwest, was read at the inquest. Several witnesses, however, said Jackson was drunk.

More Drunks

Six more persons were arrested for drunkenness in the District this Christmas Eve and Christmas Day than during the corresponding period last year, police records show.

For the 48-hour period beginning Sunday at 8 a. m. and ending yesterday at 8 a. m., 119 Washingtonians were booked at the various precincts and headquarters for intoxication. The figure last year was 113.

Of this year's arrests, 74 were made on Christmas Eve and 45 Christmas Day. Last year 51 were arrested on Christmas Eve and 62 on Christmas.

Decision of the Federal Bureau of the Budget against constructing a junior high school in Anacostia will not be accepted except after careful investigation, Senator William H. King, (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, made clear yesterday.

Appropriation for completing the school was stricken out of the District estimates by the Budget Bureau. It was one of several items so treated in the secret sessions at which the District estimates were considered. Constructions of the school was authorized by Congress at the last session and $225,000 was appropriated. The Commissioners included an item of $225,000 in their estimates for next year to complete the school.

Determination of Budget Bureau officials that the school shall not be constructed has aroused residents who have sought and obtained the aid of residents of other sections of the city.

The District Commissioners have refused to advertise for bids for the new school because the Budget Bureau has refused approval of its completion. It would be unwise, the Commissioners believe, to start construction of a building without any indication when they would have money to complete it.

Senator King, who has taken a keen interest and is a powerful figure in local affairs by virtue of his chairmanship of the Senate District Committee, said the action of the Budget Bureau would be investigated. Need of Anacostia for the school would be carefully inquired into before the Budget Bureau decision was accepted, the Senator said.

Police Continue Hunt For 5 in Bandit Gang

Search for five colored bandits who attacked Charles Mayhew, 63, of 1337 Fourteenth street northwest, cafe man, and stole $2,830 he was carrying to a safe deposit box Christmas morning, was continued by police last night.

Mayhew, who resisted the robbers when they accosted him at Fifteenth and P streets northwest, was reported recovering at Emergency Hospital. The victim's family explained yesterday that Mayhew was to meet a friend, who had agreed to deposit the money in his safe. The funds represented most of Mayhew's life savings.

Thieves Meet Cold Snap By Stealing $25 Stove

Thieves who victimized Mrs. Catherine Palmatur, of 922 Twenty-third street northwest, took timely notice of the cold weather yesterday.

City Architect To Take Over Construction

The post of director of construction, created when the District Engineer Department was reorganized in 1932, will die a natural death under plans approved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

While the job is actually being left open, it is doubtful whether it will ever be filled. The Commissioners have decided to revive the post of municipal architect, vacant since Albert L. Harris died almost a year ago, instead.

The plan, resulting from the resignation of Harold W. Baker to become city manager of Rochester, N. Y., returns District construction supervision to the office that held it before reorganization.

The shakeup, accomplished during the illness of Maj. Gotwals by Acting Engineer Commissioner D. A. Davison, created two other new directors' jobs in the Engineer Department, the director of highways, filled by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, and the director of inspection, Capt. Hugh P. Oram.

Since the death of Harris his duties have been administered by Baker with a staff only half its former size. Drastic curtailment in District construction has since reduced the work.

Substitution of a municipal architect for a director of construction will cost the District an extra $1,000 in salaries, as the basic pay for the positions are $7,500 and $8,500, respectively.

Commissioner Gotwals said he had not decided whom he will recommend for the architect's job.

No Judgment

Youth Imbibes Yuletide Cheer, Takes Car.

Heywood, a colored youth with no permanent address, was convicted in Police Court of attempting to steal the automobile of Policewoman Dorothy Douglas, of the Women's Bureau. She arrested him as he was about to drive away from the bureau.

Heywood pleaded not guilty to an attempted larceny charge, but said he had been imbibing in "Christmas cheer." Judge Ralph Given sentenced him to four months in jail.

Government Car Drivers Hit, Defended

Justice Hitz Declares They Are "Most Dangerous."

Court, However, Refuses Damages; Officials Uphold Men.

The question of whether drivers of Government cars are "among the most dangerous drivers on our dangerous streets" brought forth a number of divergent opinions yesterday.

The statement that Government cars are "most dangerous" was made in a dissenting opinion by Justice William Hitz of the District Court of Appeals.

Justice Hitz disagreed with the rest of the court, which held that the District Government is immune from damage claims when a driver of a Government-owned car is involved in an accident.

Taxi drivers and drivers of private cars, interviewed on the subject, were inclined to agree with Justice Hitz. Officials whose departments operate automobiles disagreed with the judge.

Damages Denied.

The dissenting opinion was rendered in a case in which Robert L. May had been awarded damages because of the "negligent driving" of the driver of a repair truck that had collided with an automobile owned by May. The Appellate Court reversed the decision. The driver of the repair truck was returning from repairing a fire alarm box when the accident occurred.

Justice Hitz expressed the opinion the District might be immune where an accident occurred during an emergency, such as a fire call, but that it should not be immune from prosecution when driver returning to a garage is involved in an accident.

"Among the most dangerous drivers on our dangerous streets are Government drivers," Justice Hitz said, "and the courts should be slow to extend the cover of governmental immunity to municipal vehicles while engaged in nonemergency service, and forming merely a part of normal traffic in crowded streets."

Cites Supreme Court Ruling.

Justice Hitz said such an immunity rule is as far out of line with modern thought as it is with modern conditions of city traffic. He referred to a Supreme Court ruling to support his opinion.

Among those who expressed themselves as disagreeing with Justice Hitz was Morris Hacker, superintendent of the Refuse Department. In his department, he asserted, drivers are selected carefully and impressed with the importance of cautious driving. Only the most reliable of his men are allowed to operate the large trucks, he said.

J. B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering, in whose department more than 900 vehicles are used, said his drivers were held strictly accountable for carelessness.

Taxi drivers, in answer to a reporter's question, were emphatic in charging carelessness against Government drivers. John L. Berrio, 155 E street southeast, declared Government drivers block traffic because they park "wherever they please."

Get Right of Way.

"You have to give them the right of way," he said. "Just because they work for the Government, they think they can do what they want."

Another driver, G. W. Hisey, 1730 P street northwest, said the Government drivers are reckless because they can't be sued.

"And if you hit 'em, it won't hurt 'em," he said. Light delivery trucks are the worst offenders, in Hisey's opinion.

R. O. Preston said "they never get in my way," but he thought the mail trucks "stop sudden." He lives at 823 Rittenhouse street northwest.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, said he was going to look up the record of accidents involving District vehicles.

"Just because they are driving Government cars does not give drivers any more privilege than anyone else," he stated.

Police officials made no comment on Judge Hitz' observations. The matter would require intensive study before criticism could be made, according to Maj. Ernest Brown, superintendent of police.

The Night After Christmas

By John J. Daly.

The living room looked like a junk dealer's shed;
An elephant sat with a hole in his side,
And the drum had a slit in its head, long and wide;
The cavalry troop, with its horses and all,
Were pitched on their faces—a terrible fall;
And the headlights burned out, to be lit nevermore.
The whiskers were pulled from the cat, and the dog
Was bespattered with candy—and so was the frog;
The airplane had crashed with its nose to the wall,
And the bugle, quite dented, was past all recall;
The bus and the tractor, the donkey's hee-haw,
Had all been demolished by hammer and saw.
The Christmas tree stood in the corner, like stone,
And looked on the wreckage, and wondered, alone;
Poor mother, with poultices placed on her head,
Fell asleep on a chair before going to bed,
And father, for playing from morning till night,
Was paying the penalty, serving him right.
The house was in havoc, the servants were gone,
With no one to clear up the debris till morn;
And this is the picture, as I understand,
Of the night after Christmas, all over the land.

Skilled Labor Razing Bridge Gets Pay Boost

Scale Lifted From $1.10 an Hour to $1.65, With 39-Hour Week.

Skilled workmen engaged in wrecking the Aqueduct Bridge will be paid $1.65 instead of $1.10 an hour by the District Civil Works Administration committee, Capt. Howard F. Clark, chairman, announced yesterday following a conference with local labor leaders and Federal C. W. A. officials.

Wages of several hundred other skilled workmen engaged by the C. W. A., but not yet paid the union scale, will similarly be raised, Capt. Clark said, in line with instructions from the Federal Civil Works Administration a fortnight ago to pay all mechanics the equivalent of the union rate.

The conference, held in the office of John M. Carmody, chief engineer of the Federal C. W. A. was called at the request of the District officials to reach an understanding with labor officials. Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, and William Cleary, secretary to the District C. W. A. committee, also attended.

While the District C. W. A. committee will be permitted to use discretion in deciding whether a project calls for skilled labor, it will adopt the union scale on practically all projects that union men say require skilled workmen.

The C. W. A. committee has already adopted union wage scales for all of the ordinary union trades, such as carpentry and bricklaying, but its members felt that in instances where skilled workmen were assigned to unusual jobs that the union scale was not justified.

The new pay scale will be put into effect this week along with the 39-hour week as a substitution for the 30-hour week for C. W. A. white collar workers.

Seventy workmen on the Aqueduct Bridge will be benefited by the wage raise.

Driver Held in Jail After Car Hits Man

Roscoe Kirk, 48 years old, of 2007 Fourth street northeast, was in an undetermined condition at Casualty Hospital last night after being struck by an automobile at Fifteenth and G streets northeast. He was treated for a fractured left knee, severe contusions, and possible internal injuries.

Action on Mall Projects Due Within 10 Days

Plans to Complete Job Await Congressional Committees.

The program, to bring the long-contemplated development to completion, has been hanging fire since September, when the Public Works Administration allotted $800,000 for the work. The grant was made contingent upon approval of the project by the Commission on Enlarging Capitol Grounds, headed by Vice President Garner, and the Committee on the Library, headed by Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky.

Senator Barkley said yesterday he was ready to call his committee together to dispose of the Union Square development, taking in the old Botanic Gardens, as soon as members are in town. He expects, he said, to have this part of the plan disposed of by next week.

Plans for the rest of the Mall are ready for Vice President Garner's commission. They will be submitted upon arrival of the Vice President in Washington.

House Group Called to Act On D. C. Rum

Rep. Norton's Committee to Meet First Day of New Session.

Senate Battle Promised as Leaders Avoid Definite Stand.

A call for the House District Committee to meet the first day of the session to favorably report a District liquor bill was announced yesterday at the office of Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, committee chairman.

Passage of the measure the next day has been promised Representative Norton by Speaker Henry T. Rainey and Representative Joseph W. Byrns, party floor leader.

The District liquor law, Representative Byrns said, is to be the first measure passed by the House. It will be followed by the National liquor tax law and appropriations bills, he added.

Representative Norton has called her committee to meet immediately after adjournment of the first gathering of the House. Although the outcome is regarded as a foregone conclusion, there is likely to be something of a fight. The District Commissioners are committed to a liquor law providing for sale of alcoholic beverages by licensed individuals. That is understood to be the system favored by Representative Norton and a majority of the committee.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, favors a municipal store system. The Texan has made it plain that he is against most things sponsored by the committee chairman. In his contention that liquor should be dispensed through a Government store system, Representative Patman will have some support. The main battle is to be staged in the Senate.

King Plans Public Hearings.

Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, is awaiting the arrival of a quorum of his committee before launching public hearings. He estimates that three days should be adequate for expression of views. He plans to have the bill ready for consideration on the Senate floor a few days after the session opens. Because the Attorney General has held the Volstead law and parts of the Sheppard law still apply in the District, despite repeal of the prohibition amendment, the local liquor law is generally regarded as something of an emergency measure.

Agreement among Senators, however, apparently ends there. There is a divergence of opinion about what kind of a liquor law should be prescribed for the District. Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, who has been active in connection with the measure, has refrained from making any public announcement.

Other members of the committee, however, have publicly expressed their views and several favor a Government store system instead of the licensing system proposed by

Good morning! If you believe the New Year will be the same old story, go on and start it with the same old full dress or tuxedo suit. The one in which you celebrated the arrival of 1929. 5 Pointed Out As Assassins Of Archbishop Others May Be Involved; Police Dig Deep Into Secret Society.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Identification of five prisoners—alleged member of a secret Armenian revolutionary society—as participants in the assassination of Archbishop Leon Tourian was claimed by the district attorney's office today.

The announcement came as police delved deeper into the activities of Tashnak—a secret society said to have been formed to wrest Armenia from control of Soviet Russia.

Assistant District Attorney Joseph Cohn charged the five prisoners and possibly a sixth member of the society took part in the stabbing.

Score May Be Involved.

He said it was possible 20 other members of the society were present in the Holy Cross Armenian Church when the archbishop, clad in the colorful garments of his office, was assassinated as he led a procession up the aisle the day before Christmas.

A meeting of 75 members of Tashnak was held Thursday night, Cohn said, when they learned the archbishop would attend the Sunday services.

Cohn recalled the near-riot at the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition on Armenian Day, July 2, when the Archbishop refused to speak until the flag of the old Armenian republic was hauled down.

He told of subsequent attacks on the Archbishop and of the schism which developed in the church at a meeting here in September.

20 Called for Quiz.

Twenty witnesses were called for questioning today—among them Wartken Aharovians, a son of the former president of the Armenian republic, Cohn said. Others were George Kazajian and Miss Astrik Dagavarian, both choir singers. The Archbishop fell into Kazajian's arms after the assassin's knife was plunged into his abdomen.

Meanwhile police extended the search for the slayers to New Jersey, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania, indicating more than 20 arrests would be made.

Those now held are Asjian Yerjinen, 42; Matos Leylegian, 38; Juan Gonzales Tchalikian, 28; Martin Mazian, 41, and Nishan Sarkisian, 38, all of New York.

Code Transfer Rule Decided

Johnson Discusses Plan for Administration With Wallace.

(Associated Press.)

Hugh S. Johnson and Secretary Wallace conferred yesterday on the transfer of codes from the Department of Agriculture to the recovery administration.

Following the conference, Johnson said it resulted in an agreement on a general principle to be followed in deciding which codes would be transferred.

President Roosevelt announced two weeks ago that all codes now handled by the Farm Administration would be sent to the recovery unit except those dealing with the first processing or handling of farm products. The actual transfer has not yet been made and now awaits issuance of an executive order by the President.

The principle referred to by Johnson was understood to be applicable to those codes which have been in dispute as to their proper administrative channel.

Also attending the conference were Chester C. Davis, farm administrator; Donald Richberg, recovery counsel, and H. R. Tolley, assistant to Davis.

House Body Called On District Liquor

the Commissioners. Senator James Couzens and Senator Thomas P. Gore favor the municipal store system. So do one or two other committee members, including Senator King. Senator King, however, has so qualified everything he has said about the District liquor law provisions that he is not committed to any particular plan.

Leaders Avoid Definite Stand.

"We want to get rid of the bootlegger and we want to foster temperance," the Senator said. "I am not prepared at the moment to say how those desirable objectives are to be accomplished. I am convinced that we should approach a question of tax and license fees with a determination to hold them down to the lowest reasonable point.

"The liquor bill should not be drawn with the idea of getting a great amount of revenue. The amount of revenue is of much less importance than the framing of a law which will be conducive of temperance."

Senator Robert Reynolds (Democrat), North Carolina, and Senator Patrick A. McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, have also declared themselves opposed to high taxes and license fees. Apparently, however, none is ready to commit himself or herself to details of a local liquor law.

"Schnozzle's" Father Arrives.

Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 26 (AP).—Eighty-two years old and on his first trip from New York City in 52 years, B. Durante arrived today with his son, Jimmy Durante, movie actor, for a visit in Hollywood.

Grounded Freighter Refloated.

Los Angeles, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—The freighter Peter Kerr, of the Quaker Line, which grounded on a sand bank at Asuncion Bay, 600 miles south of here, was refloated at high tide today under its own power, the company's offices were informed by radio.

Scientists to Prove Diet Determines Hair's Beauty

New Progress in How to Live Longer Also to Be Exhibited.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 26 (AP).—Beautiful sheen of the hair depends partly on what you eat. Discovery of this diet principle, which adds beauty even to the finest silver fox, will be exhibited at the opening session of the American Association for the Advance of Science tomorrow.

This gathering of 3,000 scientists will disclose new progress in immunity to disease, in how to live longer, and what causes fatigue.

War will be analyzed in an entirely new way from 500 B. C. to date. New things in weather forecasting miles above the earth will be presented. Also the most recent siege gun of science, an atom smasher of several millions of volts power, with the physical dimensions of a rapier.

Cosmic Ray Analyzed.

Cosmic rays and objects far out in space will be analyzed with something of the precision of studying a few drops of water in a laboratory.

The hair sheen diet discoveries are shown in the scientific exhibit by the Pease Laboratories, of New York City. The experiments were made on silver foxes.

By giving the foxes what corresponds to the "balanced diet" of human beings, that is an all-round selection of proteins, fats, sugar, vitamins and minerals, the rusty color of fur was modified into a silken brilliant black sheen highly desired for commerce.

In the silver fox the white is furnished by silvery tips of long hairs, while underneath is a background of fur which can be either dingy or brilliant, according to diet.

Too much sunshine also caused the rusty appearance.

The beautifying diet comprised oysters and entire animal meats, and its effectiveness was due as much to the methods of keeping the fox foods fresh as to their choice. The "entire animal" meats means that every variety of organ and tissue was fed in balanced amounts.

Solves Odor Mystery.

The method of analyzing odors is shown at the scientific exhibit by Arthur D. Little, Inc., of Cambridge. It makes one step toward solving the mystery of what is odor, for no chemist has ever yet captured and analyzed the substance which wafts through the air and appeals to the nose as perfume or as smell.

Slums Exodus Draws Praise

Mrs. Roosevelt Lauds New York Jews for "Real Sacrifice."

Praise for the Jewish needle workers of downtown New York, who have consented to leave the squalor of their crowded tenements for a garden home and factory village near Hightstown, N. J., financed by the Federal Government, was voiced yesterday by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at her press conference.

The First Lady said the older workers, content amidst deplorable conditions in New York tenements because of their communal life and neighbors, had made a real sacrifice in moving to the comparatively wide open spaces of New Jersey for the sake of their children.

The crowded conditions from which 200 Jewish families will migrate to Monmouth County were described graphically by Mrs. Roosevelt—no light, no fresh air, no plumbing, six or seven sleeping crowded in one small room.

"It is strange how these people live there," she said. "And it's wonderful that out of such conditions they should get together and decide to move—all for their children's sake."

In Monmouth County homes with an acre of ground to each family will be built at a cost of $3,000 each.

Educator Would Ban Instructors Over 40

London, Ont., Dec. 26 (AP).—Men over 40 have "no business" in education, Dr. P. R. Neville, dean of arts of the University of Western Ontario, said today before the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

He maintained the world would remain in a rut until persons between 20 and 40 attempted to improve conditions and that educated youth must save the world.

Plane Saves Marooned Men on Canadian Lake

Edmonton, Dec. 26 (AP).—Two of a party of five prospectors trapped since October on a small island on Great Bear Lake, 175 miles north of here, when caught by an early season freeze-up, were back in Edmonton today.

Pilot Archie McMillan landed on Manitou Island and took off Nick Murphy and O. S. Chapin, of Calgary, in his plane. He will return to bring out the remaining three.

Katharine Hepburn Smashes Way to Broadway's Pinnacle

"Cinderella" of Two Years Ago Scores in Hit, "The Lake."

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Tremulous and triumphant, Katharine Hepburn returned to Broadway tonight, a recognized stage star.

Before an audience of theatrical celebrities, she established herself as a member of footlight royalty, a position which was like a Cinderella dream to the Hartford, Conn., girl, when she was seeking to become a Broadway satellite less than two years ago.

In the play, "The Lake," which has been a success in London for several months, this sad-faced, romantic actress gave a performance which brought the first-night audience to its feet cheering for a dozen curtain calls.

It's Her Evening.

It was hailed an excellent play, and an excellent cast, but it was Miss Hepburn's evening. Although she brought what some called the artificial hollywood gestures to the stage, Miss Hepburn, too, brought a new and distinctive personality. She is herself entirely, but observers were agreed that she had something of Jeanne Eagles, Katharine Cornell and Helen Hayes. In other words, she has qualities of tragedy, innocence and romance.

In "The Lake" she is in love with one man and ready to marry another. The daughter of a respectable British family, she believes she is giving up a lovable bounder to wed just a deserving chap. Soon after the marriage she discovers that she is really madly in love with the man to whom she married, and that it was only an insane infatuation for the other.

Then Tragedy.

A short few minutes after her realization of this love, the husband was killed in an accident. There is nothing for her after that, and she turns against all that respectability and good manners she had been so careful to deserve. She regards life as a fundamental and decides that her own happiness was realized only for a brief moment and then taken away.

Miss Hepburn is supported by a brilliant cast, most helpful being Colin Clive. It marks the first performance of this British leading man on these shores since he was in William Bolitho's "Overture, 1920." His first vault to fame was as Capt. Stanhope in the original London company of "Journey's end."

Another was the skillful, impressive performance of Blanche Bates, returning to the stage again after seven years.

Mikado Opens Japanese Diet Facing Crisis

Record Sum for Army and Navy Expected to Be Approved.

Tokyo, Dec. 26 (AP).—With its major decisions well indicated in advance—among them the expected approval of the largest peace-time defense appropriations in Japan's history—the sixty-fifth session of the imperial Diet was opened by Emperor Hirohito amid colorful ceremonies today.

The Mikado arrived at the Diet house riding in an impressive cortege under cavalry escort, after passing through streets fringed by thousands of respectful onlookers.

Defense Leaders Dominant.

Appearing before members of both houses in the House of Peers the Emperor read a paper opening the session. The session got under way officially Saturday, but adjourned pending today's formalities.

The cabinet, dominated by Gen. Sadoa Araki and Admiral Nineo Osumi, ministers of war and navy respectively, virtually has completed a legislative program calling for army and navy appropriations amounting to 938,000,000 yen ($281,400,000). This sum is 44 per cent of the total budget.

Navy to Get $147,000,000.

Under the cabinet's program, to which parliament is expected to give rubber stamp approval, the army will receive $135,000,000—the largest peacetime appropriation for land forces, and the navy $147,000,000.

The defense requests are nearly $120,000,000 less than military leaders originally demanded.

After the budget the principal concern of the legislature will be with a farm relief problem. Rural poverty, intensified this year by a bumper rice crop and consequent low prices, is one of the thorniest problems.

British Naval Building Plan Urged in 1934

More Cruisers, to Meet American Program, Are Demanded.

London, Dec. 26 (AP).—Aroused by reports its naval strength has been outstripped by the United States and Japan, Great Britain—the belief is growing here—is preparing to launch a large naval building program in 1934.

Already the government has announced that the 1933 program had been revised to supply larger and more heavily armed cruisers than originally projected.

Information that six new cruisers are planned has been published in the Sunday Dispatch, owned by Lord Rothermere. Two other newspapers reported five new cruisers are favored by the admiralty, while nearly all agree that an increase in both destroyers and cruisers is in prospect.

Seek More Airplanes.

The Daily Mail, in stating that "the admiralty is insisting that the program to be announced next March include provisions for five and not three new cruisers," added that "provisions for more air squadrons can be expected also."

More cruisers and antisubmarine craft are confidently anticipated in service quarters. The delay in official announcement of the plans is ascribed to the government's desire not to prejudice the chance for a disarmament conference at Geneva.

Similar building programs in Australia, Canada and New Zealand are anticipated. It is reported that under a new naval policy inaugurated in Australia two new cruisers of either 9,000 or 7,000 tons will be built.

A big building program next year, it is declared, would not conflict with the London Naval Treaty, which expires in 1936, because the ships would not be completed until after that date.

Ships Becoming Obsolete.

Numerous British cruisers, it is also said, are or will be out-of-date by then, giving an ample margin for replacement.

The Daily Telegraph editorially states, "unless the hope that still remains of a disarmament convention is realized, a new program to make good the dangerous shortage of cruisers and anti-submarine craft will be an inevitable necessity."

It answers the question posed to Prime Minister MacDonald in Parliament—whether the 1933 program for bigger cruisers "means that the United States will in future be regarded as a potential enemy"—by asserting it is directed against no country but "to the protection of commerce in any condition that may arise."

MacDonald's answer was, "Our naval building program is not directed against any particular country."

Stanley Baldwin, MacDonald's chief lieutenant, set the pace for navy champions when he declared Britain would not be second to any power on the seas.

Washingtonians Escape As Auto Tips in Water

Knife Restores Sanity of 'Killer'

Faces Uxoricide Charge as Result of Operation.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 26 (AP).—A successful operation performed on Archie Ligor, of Worcester, while a patient at Bridgewater Hospital for the Insane, means the man must fight for life. He will appear before Superior Criminial Court next month at Fitchburg to face an indictment charging him with killing his wife, Arthimisi, last year.

At the time of the alleged murder, Ligor was said by specialists to have the mentality of a child of five, but since the operation the opinion of the doctors has changed.

The removal of a tumor near the throat is said to have restored the man's sanity.

Mrs. Jean B. Sickels, Coast Writer, Dies

Portland, Oreg., Dec. 26 (AP).—Mrs. Jean Bryan Sickles, 83, a war correspondent in the Spanish-American War, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Collins, here today.

For two years prior to the Spanish-American War Mrs. Sickles conducted a children's page for the Portland Oregonian. When the war broke out, the newspaper sent her to the Philippines as its correspondent. Later her poetry attracted wide attention.

Liquor Transportation Path Cleared in Maine

Augusta, Me., Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Maine's liquor transportation problem was solved today at a conference of Gov. Louis J. Brann and county authorities, at which it was "assumed" that liquor transportation within the State for personal use and into the State "for medicinal and mechanical purposes and the arts," could be accomplished without fear of arrest.

The opinion expressed was that it probably would be impossible for a test case of the Murchie bill, which legalized such transportation, to reach the law court.

Lakes Treaty Again Urged.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 26 (AP).—Ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty was requested of Congress tonight in a resolution adopted by the Minnesota House of Representatives. The Minnesota Senate previously adopted a similar resolution.

Student League Asks New Deal For Education

The National Student League met in its third annual convention yesterday at Howard University, the 200 delegates representing more than 50 Eastern colleges. Problems of present student income and future employment were discussed, as well as the sense of insecurity among students because of reports of impending wars.

Edmund Stevens, executive secretary, made the opening address, to which members of the Howard University student council responded. Adam Lapin, presenting a National student plan, called for a new deal as a result of conditions growing out of the economic crisis of 1929. More than 46 per cent of college graduates since that time, he declared, have failed to secure employment, so that the student must question the system which provides him with an education not integrated with the economic needs of society.

Coordination of National activities against retrenchment involving militant student mass action to fight decreased educational budgets, abolition of Governmental institutions of learning, closing of evening schools in municipalities, raised laboratory fees, reduction of wages of campus workers and ending forced military training, were advocated in the plan.

Would Abolish R. O. T. C.

The antiwar program of the conference, while declared not pacifist, but opposed to war for profit and fascism, favored complete abolition of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, conversion of the corps fund into student scholarships, resistence to use of any university resources for furtherance of war propaganda and removal of censorship on the student press.

With reference to a proposed antiwar week, Julian Prager urged the week of April 6 to be set aside for the holding of symposia and antiwar demonstrations, "also for passage of a resolution declaring nonsupport of the Government of the United States in any war it undertakes."

Active cooperation with the American League Against War and Fascism next Friday in a demand on the President and Congress for withdrawal of war funds from the budget, also was advocated.

Lynching Discussed.

A symposium on lynchhing and various racial and legal aspects of the Scottsboro case was led by Donald B. Henderson and Richard B. Moore, the consensus being that present educational systems tend to array various groups of working classes against each other, by prevention of closer acquaintance and understanding, with consequent outbreaks in antiracial mob violence and miscarriage of justice.

As a basis for a solution of problems confronting Negro students, a league report will be made at 2 o'clock today by Gladys Stoner, advocating "equality of students of all races, colors, creeds and nationalities; abolition of segregation in education, North and South; admission of Negroes to all institutions, educational and social; equal appropriation per capita for both Negro students and white; destruction of all illusions of race supremacy as fostered by educational systems; discarding of school tests derogatory to the Negro."

Agriculture Department, Meanwhile, Asks About Lending Money.

While farmers are being asked, in a survey by the Department of Agriculture, what improvements they desire to make on their property and whether they wish to borrow money for the purpose, the Census Bureau yesterday reported that 44 per cent of all farm dwellings in the United States are valued at less than $1,000.

The census figures, compiled from the 1930 enumeration, show that only 4 per cent of farm dwellings in America are worth $5,000 or more.

Reach One of Ten Farmers.

The survey, being conducted by nearly 5,000 C. W. A. workers, is expected to reach one out of every ten farmers in America. It is expected to give an accurate picture of farm homes and the improvements needed.

Following the survey, some move to lend money directly to farmers for improvements is expected. It may take the form of a corporation similar to the one recently formed to lend money to farmers in the Tennessee Valley to buy electrical equipment for their homes.

Of the 104 farms listed in the District of Columbia census report, 80 are operated by owners and 24 by tenants. Owners' homes are valued considerably higher than the average for the Nation, only two being listed under $1,000 and 28 being worth over $5,000.

Figures for rent houses show six of the 24 valued at less than $1,000 and two over $5,000.

Maryland Percentage High.

Maryland has 9,217 of its 31,762 landowner-owned dwellings in the under $1,000 class with 2,915 in the $5,000 and over group. Of tenants' houses, 3,663 of the 11,441 are valued at $1,000 or less and 603 are in the $5,000 and over class.

Figures for Virginia show that 63,166 of the 122,640 owned dwellings are valued at $1,000 or less and exactly 6,000 are in the $5,000 and over group. Of the tenant houses, 31,525 of the 47,970 listed are in the under $1,000 rating and 713 are valued at $5,000 or over.

Mrs. Roosevelt Voices Treaty Protest Again

Reiterates Opposition to Plank in Equality Agreement.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday reiterated her opposition to a woman's plank in the national equality treaty signed by 20 nations at Montevideo, declaring in a press conference she believes each nation should decide for itself what laws to pass regarding the status of women.

"I had absolutely no participation in the women's rights matters at Montevideo," said Mrs. Roosevelt. "I take no part in any political matter of any kind.

"As a private citizen, however, I have repeatedly voiced my view against asking all nations to sign the particular woman's plank proposed for the Montevideo treaty.

"Every nation should decide such matters for itself."

The United States is "so far in advance" of nations which have not granted women the vote that it would be lowering standards here to attempt to agree with some of the others, she said.

The only outstanding question raised for this country by the treaty of Montevideo is the question of citizenship of children of American women who marry foreigners and live abroad. They now take their father's citizenship, whereas under the treaty they might claim to be American.

Agents Probe Impersonation

Theft of Car Here Linked to Youth.

Department of Justice agents are investigating the alleged theft of an automobile from Washington last July by a youth who was said to have posed as Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., on a number of occasions.

Howard Lawless, of Troy, N. Y., was arrested there Christmas Eve, following a minor automobile accident. District license tags discovered in the car were traced and the car was found to be one reported stolen from a local car dealer.

A further check revealed the tag numbers had been broadcast as attached to a car driven by a youth who represented himself as being the President's son. The Justice agents are seeking Lawless for alleged violation of the Dyer act, which prohibits removal of stolen cars from the State in which they are taken. A charge of larceny of an automobile was placed against the youth in Troy.

Czar's Ancient Bible Reaches British Museum

London, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—The ancient Bible known as the "Codex Sinaiticus," which has been purchased from Soviet Russia for the British Museum, reached London secretly Sunday night, it was revealed today.

The copy was brought by courier, under auspices of the Soviet trade delegation here, and placed in the safe of an undisclosed bank. Great secrecy surrounded the bringing of the Bible out of Russia, where it had long been in the possession of the czar.

Southern Milliners Given NRA Respite

Wage Scale Protest Will Be Considered.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 26 (AP).—Millinery establishments here which had laid off more than 1,000 workers and remained closed today will resume operations tomorrow, after receiving a stay of application of the wage schedule of the milliners' code from Earl D. Howard, deputy administrator of the NRA in Washington.

C. J. Crampton, executive secretary of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, acting as mediator, obtained the stay in a long-distance telephone conversation with Howard.

A brief, setting forth the position of Dallas milliners that even skilled workers in the new industry here can not turn out the number of hats long-trained workers in older markets can, was mailed to the administrator in Washington.

Meantime, the establishments here will resume operations on a basis of a $13 minimum weekly wage, for a 37½-hour week.

Workers Get Vacation When Cold Wave Comes

Chicago, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—John Casey, general superintendent of the Municipal Airport, temporarily abandoned today his method of making sure that 1,383 C. W. A. workers keep busy. His reasons for discontinuing the custom were that, first, it was too cold to fly; and, second, it was too cold to work.

The Government has sent the 1,383 men to the airport to do repair work on grounds and buildings. Casey found that it was difficult to make a daily check to determine whether all the men were working, so he started supervision from an airplane.

Rare Visitors

Dall Children Will Pay Call on "Slim" and Dogs.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said she was going to take her grandchildren, "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, to see Slim Williams and his Alaskan dog team whom she first met at the Chicago Fair, according to the Associated Press.

Slim, first to drive a dog team from Alaska to Chicago—it was on a bet—rounded out the winning by driving it on into Washington to urge Alaskan projects.

Slim said he'd hitch up any time and drive the dog team anywhere to show Sistie and Buzzie. But Mrs. Roosevelt said it wouldn't be necessary—she'd take the children to see him.

A Farewell to Mosquitoes

CWA Appropriates $35,000 for Eradication of Insects Near Chesapeake Beach; Workers Are Engaged in Draining and Burning of Underbrush.

Chesapeake Beach, Md., no longer will be annoyed by mosquitoes, thanks to an appropriation of $35,000 by the Civil Works Administration for draining of lowlands and marshes in the vicinity of the bay resort.

C. W. A. workers already are engaged in clearing undergrowth and burning brush, and this week an additional 200 men will start ditching, draining and filling the swamp lands near Chesapeake Beach and North Beach.

In 1929 officials of Seaside Park, Inc., enlisted the services of the State entomologist, Dr. Ernest N. Cory, to ascertain the best methods for eradicating mosquitoes. Studies were made by University of Maryland engineers under Dr. Cory and later by Dr. Frank W. Miller, who has done successful work of this nature in New Jersey.

Plans were drawn in March, 1930, but the estimated cost was so great that without Federal or State aid the project could not be undertaken. However, the park company did follow a modified plan suggested by engineers and undertook a periodic oiling of the infested lands. This work was carried on independently by the company for three years.

Dr. Cory, who is Federal director of the Maryland project, estimates that 90 per cent of the mosquitoes in the beach area will be controlled through the work undertaken.

John B. Gray, jr., of Prince Frederick, is civil works administrator for Calvert County, in which the project is located.

Dill Proposes Wide Shake-up In Radio Board

(Associated Press.)

A sweeping reorganization of the Federal Radio Commission was proposed yesterday by Chairman Dill of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, unless it shows more "initiative" in regulating advertising and keeps alert to new developments in the broadcasting field.

Dill also said there would be no legislation proposed for unifying all communication services, such as suggested by President Roosevelt's interdepartmental committee, until conferences were had with Chairman Rayburn, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, and full hearings held.

Problem Is Difficult.

"The problem of uniting communication services is made much more difficult," he told reporters, "by existing relationships between the telegraph, cables and radio as now owned by Western Union and International Telephone & Telegraph."

Dill said unless the commission became a "more effective body and took hold to do something," he would propose reducing it to one director with a board to hear appeals from his decisions.

"It ought to do something to improve radio instead of sitting back like a machine," he asserted. "With all the growing protests against advertising methods, it does nothing. It seems to have no conception of its duty to remedy the situation. It makes no new allocations that are possible as a result of new development in directional broadcasting and other advanced methods of broadcasting."

Dill said the Supreme Court had held the commission had full power to determine the character of broadcast advertising and it "ought to use this power to determine what makes a program in the public interest."

Abuses Are Criticized.

"It should restrict the abuses of the right to advertise," he added. "Censorship is one thing, but the kind of advertising is another. If the advertising is not the kind the public wants, it is not in the public interest. It seems to me there could be some limitations and the commission could make some suggestions to advertisers for improvements."

Dill said another phase requiring more regulation was the "high rates" charged by telephone companies for lines connecting chain radio stations.

Seven Drastic Changes in Football Rules Recommended to Coaches

Group Seeks Goal Post Return

Two Suggestions Affect Passes; Abolition of Dead Ball Asked.

Report Says Fourth of 653 Injuries Could Have Been Avoided.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—The hue and cry over the football rules died down to a whisper today at the opening session of the American football coaches' meeting.

Harry Kipke, Michigan coach, and chairman of the committee on the proposed changes in the football rules, made his report to the coaches, in which he listed seven suggested changes, as follows:

1. Permit a pass from any place behind the line of scrimmage.
2. Move the goal posts back to the goal line.
3. Abolish the "dead ball" rule.
4. Increase the side line zone from 10 to 15 yards.
5. Abolish the fumble rule, which prevents a defensive player from advancing a recovered fumble.
6. Permit a team inside its own 20-yard line of extremely windy days to surrender the ball 25 yards down the field in lieu of a punt.
7. Rule a pass which falls in the end zone on first, second and third down incomplete instead of a touchback.

No Comment on Report.

There was no comment on Kipke's report, but after the meeting the Michigan coach said that replies to a questionnaire he had sent out to coaches all over the country revealed that a majority of them do not want any rules changes.

"We'll pass along our suggestions to the rules committee," said Kipke, "but I doubt if there'll be any radical changes in the present rules. The only change which seems to have a good chance of adoption is the rule which permits a pass to be made into the end zone, without losing the ball on first, second or third down if it is incomplete."

Kipke said that most of the scoreless ties and tight games among the leading teams were largely the result of better schedules between more evenly matched teams.

Other leading coaches, including Noble Kizer, of Purdue; Dana X. Bible, of Nebraska and Ossie Solem, of Iowa, said that they favored leaving the rule alone for another year. Most of the coaches agreed that of all the suggested changes made in Kipke's report they favored most the rule concerning the pass into the end zone without penalty on the first, second and third downs.

Game O. K., Basically.

Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner of athletics, said that he doubted if any rules changes, other than minor ones to clarify or speed up the game, would be made by the rules committee at its meeting in February.

"Basically, I think the game is all right as it is," said Maj. Griffith, "and needs no major changes."

In a report on football injuries and fatalities, Floyd R Eastwood, of New York University, said that one-fourth of all injuries in football could have been avoided in 1933 by "adequate leadership." Of the 653 injuries, of which word was received last season, 204 were incurred while the player was blocking or attempting to block another player. The next largest number, 154, was due to tackling

The following recommendations were made to lessen football injuries:

1. Four weeks of preseason training before the first game.
2. More emphasis on warming up before the game starts
3. Night football practices and games should be abolished or better lighting provided.
4. Better protective equipment for knee, shoulder, and ankle.

W. H. Cowell, secretary and treasurer, estimated that 860 coaches attended the opening session. The meeting will end tomorrow, after which the National Collegiate Athletic Association will hold its meeting.

Bad News for Columbians

By Paul Gallico.

ROSE BOWL, Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 26 (Spl.).—Amigos, countrymen, fellow Easterners, I counsel you to lay this paper aside or at least to abandon this department today in favor of something more cheerful and stimulating. For I am the bearer of sad tidings, grievous news. I have nothing but somber sonnets to sing, nothing but lugubrious lays to twang from my lute.

I have just come from the green turf of the Rose Bowl where I saw the men of Stanford taking their morning workouts. The men of Stanford work out twice, once in the morning and once in the afternoon. I think they do that to keep them from growing right out of their uniforms. And it is my sad duty to inform you that never in all my years as a sports observer have I seen as fine a squad of men, as great a crowd of football talent outside of the professional ranks assembled on one field, as fast and skillful and well-drilled a football team. I wish that the game were being played in your town just so that you might see these Stanford men.

They're not only big, lithe, fast and strong, but every one of them is handsomer than most of the young men performing in the studios here. I'm not kidding you folks; they've got everything and something in the bank to spare. I'm not kidding you amigos, por dios. The men of Stanford practiced in gray sweat pajamas with only here and there one of the typical white Stanford shirts with the red numeral showing. The turf in the bowl is almost as fine and lush as that of grass tennis courts. There will be few if any men hurt falling on that ground.

There is nothing secret or hocus pocus or imposing about Coach Tiny Thornhill's rehearsal. There was a nondescript collection of writers, small boys, odd females, stray spectators and dogs in the stadium. Most of them stood right on the field in a little ring around the players and spent a good deal of time skipping nimbly out of the way of the Indians as they came thundering through the line in dummy scrimmage and signal drill. But no one squawked or waved them off the field or complained.

The kids could get as close to their heroes as they deemed safe. Once in a while Tiny Thornhill politely asked that the crowd stand back a little to save their own lives, but for the rest it was just like a scratch game in some public park, with loiterers forming a ring around the players.

More glum tidings. Tiny has nothing but outfielders and ball catchers on his squad. I caught that as soon as I walked into the bowl. The field was overrun with these big handsome slobs throwing and catching the ball and when I say catching it you get the idea. They were picking them out of the air or off their shoe tops, or under their shoulders, or over their shoulders. Anything they got their fingers on stuck. Now when you see a ball club do that in practice when they are just clowning around you know that they will do it under fire. And they were doing it easily and without effort. A lot of them are rugby players, of course, and those kids handle a football like big league ball players whip a baseball about.

Are my Eastern clients still with me? This report isn't going to grow any more cheerful. No coach has ever had such a wealth of material, probably as that Thornhill. The big man with the slightly bent nose and the sparsely foliaged head just sits on the side lines sometimes and chuckles with delight as he watches the boys scamper about the field, romp and skylark, place-kick, drop-kick, punt, zig-zag, do everything in short that good football players should do.

In his starting back field will be Hamilton, Maentz, Alustiza and Bobby Grayson. All that leaves him for reserves are Sim Affebaugh, White and Van Dellan, who was a heller against Southern California; Reisner, Tood, Hoos and Hillman.

He has a tackle named Dunn who is 6 feet and 4 and weighs 256 pounds, who is just third string. I saw Dunn pick Grayson up, clowning, and carry him around like a 5-pound bag of sugar. Thornhill thinks Reynolds, a 230-pound redhead is even stronger than Dunn. During the dummy scrimmage, the dark-haired Alustiza ran over to Ernie Nevers, who was playing in the dummy scrimmage in the defensive back field, picked him up and dumped him over his shoulder. The blond Ernie blushed and Tiny Thornhill laughed until he had to hold his sides. All of the kids were bubbling over with zip and pep and youth. Corbus is coming out of the line and leading the plays like a human torpedo.

Well, there is one satisfaction. If that little band of Argonauts from Columbia beats this team they will have won a Golden Fleece indeed. They will have to handle not one but two or three high class teams and do it with reserves that look none too capable of matching strength with the Stanford second team, much less football skill.

I was calling on a hunch to see Columbia win and I'm not quitting on that yet. But I'd like to know where a fellow could get himself a good grade "A" guaranteed miracle to help the hunch along, because I think we are going to need one.

The squad was divided into two elevens as follows:

Ends—Robertson, Minnesota, and Skladany, Pittsburg; tackles—Walton, Pittsburgh, and Ceppi, Princeton; guards—Gailus, Ohio State, and Schammel, Iowa; center—Bernard, Michigan; Quarter back—Soleau, Colgate; Half backs—Feathers, Tennessee, and Laws, Iowa; full back—Lukats, Notre Dame.

The lineups were described as merely "experimental." Coach Hanley said the players were fitting into their assignments satisfactorily. A few scrimmage sessions will be held this week.

Western players worked out in Berkeley under coaches Percy Locey, of Denver, and Orin Hollingbery of Washington State. One team was lined up as follows: Ends—Smith, Washington, and Morris, Colorado Aggies; tackles—Schwammel, Oregon State, and Field, Oregon State; guards—Morris, California, and Stevens, Southern California; center—Hughes, Oregon; quarter back—McNeish, Southern California; half backs—Norby, Idaho, and Sauer, Nebraska; full back—Graham, Kans. The league, which is now made up of 10 teams, will be unbalanced should the Gunners' bid be accepted and consequently a team from the Eastern division probably would be aproved. Five in West Section.

The Western sector lines up with the Chicago Bears, Chicago Cards, Green Bay (Wis.) Packers, Portsmouth Spartons, and Cincinnati Reds. The Gunners will balance the division, but throw the league out of whack.

Dezendorf has already written Joseph F. Carr of Columbus, president of the league concerning a franchise, but so far has received no answer. Perhaps the impetus undertaken by the Gunners will bring some sort of reply from the "Father of the Pro Game."

During the past season, the Passer management brought on the "big teams" of the circuit with meagre success. A great turnout marked the first attraction—that with the Chicago Bears, which boasted of such sterling performers as Red Grange, Bronko Nagurski and a championship outfit to boot—but attendance figures sifted into the mumbley-peg class.

The Washington Passers would play their games in Griffith Stadium on Sunday afternoon. During the past campaign the local money eleven showed on Wednesday nights under adverse weather conditions and lack of players with drawing power.

A franchise fee in the National Professional League costs $5,000.

Line-Up Shifts Necessary at Stanford

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 26 (A.P.).—While his coaching rival, Lou Little, was trying to add weight to his Columbia Lions at Tucson, Claude (Tiny) Thornhill spent today in an effort to scale down the poundage of his Stanford Indians.

The long lay-off after the regular football season increased the avoirdupois of the already big Stanford men and Coach Thornhill will use the week of preparation for the New Year's game in the Rose Bowl in getting rid of some of the excess.

Today he sent the Redskins through two workouts in the battle arena, a morning drill being little more than a warm-up, but in the afternoon there was no foolin'.

Changes in Line-up.

The big coach apparently plans no radical changes in his system, but his line-up will be altered by necessity rather than choice. In today's workout, both on offense and defense, Stanford was using much the same tactics employed in the highly successful Pacific Coast Conference season and "Tiny" suggested that the defense good enough to stop all but one of Southern California's running plays would be depended upon to stop the trick attack of Columbia.

Identity of the men to put up the defense was something else again. A paucity of ends resulted in a decision to move Ben Palamountain, almost as big as his name, from tackle to the flank position. Palamountain, scaling 207 pounds and standing an inch over 6 feet, is an athlete who "can play anywhere," so he will bolster the shrinking number of ends.

Substitutes Limping.

One star end was caught by an ineligibility ruling, a couple of substitutes came up limping in the early workouts, and Jim (Monk) Moscrip, a certain starter pending additional hurts, is a bit bruised. Bob Maentz, a half back, also is bruised, but will be ready a week hence, as will Moscrip.

With the end situation almost certain to adjust itself with the help of big Palamountain, Coach Thornhill's only other worry is center. Wes Muller, huge center, continues to be beset by influenza, and has only an outside chance to get in the game. He will be replaced by Bill Bates, no slouch of a center, but lacking the convincing power of Muller in backing up the line. Muller weighs 216 pounds, while Bates boatsts a mere 182, ranking him among the lightweights of the squad.

Bob Godwin Fights Rosenbloom Again

Referee to Make Decision in 5th Fight Jan. 4th.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Signing of Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, and Bob Godwin, Adel, Ga., challenger, for a 12-round, nontitle bout here on January 4 was announced today by Lew Diamond, director for Bob Moore, matchmaker for the local disabled American veterans' arena.

The encounter will be the fifth meeting of Rosenbloom and Godwin. In four nontitle bouts, Rosenbloom has earned one decision and three have resulted in draws. The champion scored a technical knockout over Godwin in their only title bout.

The fighters battled to a 10-round draw here last week. Fans protested the decision vociferously and Diamond said the referee for the January 4 bout would be instructed to award the decision to either one man or the other, and would not be permitted to call it a draw.

N. Y. Boxing Body Suspends Buckley

Massachusetts Ban on Promoter Recognized.

New York, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Johnny Buckley, Boston promoter, was suspended for six months by the New York State athletic commission today in concurrence with a decision of the Massachusetts boxing commission, which recently entered into a working agreement with the New York group. Buckley was set down by his home State board for criticizing it.

The New York commission today also announced it had entered into a working agreement with the California commission.

The postponed Barney Ross-Billy Petrolle lightweight championship match was definitely set for January 24 at the New York Coliseum. The bout, a charity affair, was postponed early this month because Ross, the champion, suffered a torn shoulder ligament.

The Western sector lines up with the Chicago Bears, Chicago Cards, Green Bay (Wis.) Packers, Portsmouth Spartons, and Cincinnati Reds. The Gunners will balance the division, but throw the league out of whack.

Dunlap Wins Pinehurst Medal

Amateur Champion Has 72, in Return to Competitive Golf.

Holds 6-Stroke Lead in Rain; Davidson, of D. C., Qualifies.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 26 (A.P.).—George T. Dunlap, jr., of New York, playing his first competitive golf since winning the National amateur title at Cincinnati last fall, today won the medal in the thirty-first Pinehurst midwinter championship with a 37—35—72.

Dunlap's score, one over par, was the same with which he took the medal in this tournament last year, but was registered under more difficult conditions. Rains last night left the long No. 2 Pinehurst course slow and showers fell at intervals during the champion's round.

Scores Generally High.

As a result of the weather, all scores were high and Dunlap's nearest rival, Eric D. Thomson, of St. Andrews, New Brunswick, was 6 strokes away with a 41—37—78.

Halbert J. Blue, of Aberdeen and Pittsburgh, a finalist in the tournament last year, took an 85, and Dick Wilson, of Southern Pines, who recently tied Dunlap's course record [illegible], an 80. In the first round of match play tomorrow the champion will meet F. C. Roberson, Manchester, Vt., who had an 82 today.

Seeded Players Advance In U. S. Girls' Tennis

Brookline, Mass., Dec. 26 (A.P.). Helen Grawn, of Gross Point, Mich., the defending champion in the Girls' National Indoor tennis tournament, moved into the third round without wielding a racquet today in the opening play at Longwood.

The titlist drew a first round bye and gained a bracket on the field on a default by Janet Oser, of Boston. The second-seeded Millicent Hirsch, of New York, gained the second round on a default by Madeline Cushman, of Winchester.

The other two seeded players gained the second round, Louise Harding, Brookline, defeating Dorothy Kleeb, Winchester, 6-0, 6-0, and Sylvia Hatch, Winchester, eliminated Ruth Berow, of Boston, without losing a game.

As in former years, the bulk of the field was provided by the Boston district. In the first-round matches involving outsiders, Virginia Hollinger, Dayton, Ohio, defeated Gretchen Cleaves, Winchester, 6-1, 6-1. Kay Parrot, Winchester, defeated Lois Kempe, New York, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Dartmouth Will Delay Naming of Grid Coach

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 26 (U.P.). Widely circulated reports that Andy Gustafson, of Pittsburgh, would become Dartmouth's new head football coach were denied today by Harry Heneage, director of athletics.

"Gustafson is only one of many coaches who has sent in an application for the job," Heneage said. "There will be no decision of any kind for at least 30 days."

Canzoneri, Locatelli Rematched for Jan. 12

New York, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Cleto Locatelli, European lightweight champion, will be given another chance against Tony Canzoneri, former world title-holder, Madison Square Garden announced today. They have been rematched to meet January 12 in a 12-round bout. Canzoneri won the decision in the first meeting which was of 10 rounds.

Strange as It Seems.

Poll Predicts Baer, Layden, Carnera as 1934 Leading Headline Sports Names

Fight Champ Runs 3d to Challenger

Hubbell, Klein, Terry Other Diamonders in First Ten.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Maxie Baer, Elmer Layden, Primo Carnera—these are the three headline sports names for 1934, according to the vote of editors in the annual United Press sports poll.

The editors were asked to name the ten individuals most likely to dominate the black face type of next year's sports pages. Of the 128 answering, 82 named Baer, 78 Layden, and 66 Carnera. It is interesting to note that the world's heavyweight champion ranked after the foremost contender and after Notre Dame's football coach-appointee.

Ruth Named Fourth.

Others in the first ten were Babe Ruth, 48; Chuck Klein, 47; Bill Terry, 44; Helen Jacobs, 43; Johnny Goodman, 40; Carl Hubbell, 39, and Denny Shute, 32.

Jimmy Foxx, tied for the eleventh position with Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, each getting 31 votes. Several editors noted that Mrs. Moody's name was omitted because of the possibility that she might not play.

A football player, Cotton Warburton, U. S. C. quarter back, came next, with 26 nominations, and was tied by Fred Perry, of England, holder of the United States tennis championship. One vote back was Gene Sarazen, former golf champion of two continents, with [illegible] votes. Ellsworth Vines, once greatest name in tennis, [illegible] but 16 votes, although one Western editor said he would have named Vines if he [illegible] professional.

Babe California Hero.

"Even out here," he wrote, "we'll be talking Ruth no matter whether he gets new records, becomes a [illegible], turns manager or what."

Others who received 5 votes or more included Bill Bonthron, Princeton miler, 14; Jack Buckler, Army football star, 12; Eddie Collins, Boston Red Sox general manager, 14; Fritz Crisler, Princeton football coach, 11; Mickey Cochrane, newly appointed Detroit Tigers' manager, 10; Jack Crawford, Australian tennis star, 14; Jack Dempsey, 17; Lou Gehrig, 13; Bobby Grayson, Stanford football star, 11; Lefty Grove, of the Boston Red Sox, 15; Rogers Hornsby, St. Louis Browns' manager, 9; Howard Jones, U. Vanderbilt, 8; Gar Wood, 9, and Jockey Jackie Westrope, 16.

McLennan, Ex-Racing Official, Is Buried

Chicago, Dec. 26 (AP).—Services for Joseph McLennan, racing official who died Thursday in Florida, were held today here. He was a victim of influenza.

McLennan was one of the most prominent officials of the American turf. Honorary pallbearers included John Hertz, Matt J. Winn, Roy Carruthers, J. E. Widener, E. R. Bradley and many other notables of racing.

High School Highlights.

THE Tech Alumni will return to the hardwoods tomorrow night when they play the varsity team at the Tech gym. The game is slated for 8 o'clock. In all probability the same squad that took the floor against the Eastern Alumni last week will be on hand, but in this set-to it is hoped that Bozie Berger will be available. The following Technical graduates donned cage raiment against the Lincoln Park graduated five: Artie Boyd, coach of the varsity team; Russell, Johnson, Wheeler, Beach, Bill Werber, Red Sox baseball player, who matriculated to Duke after finishing his Tech days; Thomas, McCartee, and Goldblatt. Chalky Councilor, former Duke court flash, may put in an appearance.

The Eastern High School quint has added another game to its schedule. The team plays the Boys Club unlimited basket ball team on the Boys Club floor Friday night. Incidentally the cage is located at 230 C street northwest. A preliminary game is also scheduled with that game getting under way at 7 o'clock.

Orrell Mitchell, Gonzaga director of athletics and coach, has his football schedule practically lined up for next fall. The signed contracts in his strong box call for games with Georgetown Prep, St. John's, Washington and Lee High School, of Ballston; Roosevelt and Swavely Prep, of Manassas. Negotiations are under way for tilts with St. Alban's, Eastern, Western and Central. Washington and Lee is the lone new opponent lined up. St. Alban's, in the negotiated list, was not played the past fall.

G. W. Is Host To Furman Tomorrow

NO ill effects from the holidays were noticeable yesterday as George Washington and Maryland coaches reassembled their basket ball machines and prepared to put them back in [illegible]. G. W. goes into action tomorrow night on its own floor against Furman, and both teams will [illegible] Saturday night.

Changes Held Unlikely.

It is hardly possible that there will be more changes. Stein, Howell and Noonan are beyond a shodow of doubt the best offensive trio on the squad, and thus far none has come forward to surpass Shirley's clever guarding.

George Washington has received no word from Furman concerning its ability, but ominous news has been drifting in from the direction of City College. The Lavender has been defeated only twice in the last two years, by Temple and St. John's of Brooklyn—but hasn't lost a game on its home court in three years. The G. W. game will be on City's floor. Another unpleasant reminder for local fans to mull over is the fact that under Nat Holman City College has won 162 of its 203 games, a batting average of .798.

Maryland at Work.

At Maryland, Coach Burt Shipley lost no time in getting the boys started and sent them into a scrimmage with the Frosh, who were strengthened by Bozie Berger, Al Heagy and Jack Faber. A holiday kink was noticeable, but two more such workouts will iron out the difficulty. Every day will be a hard one for the Terps, as Shipley plans to leave nothing undone to have his men in tiptop shape for Indiana Saturday.

The Hoosiers have their 1933 team back intact, and are regarded as the potential Big Ten champions this season. It was Indiana that inflicted a decisive defeat on Ohio State in the final game of last year to prevent the Buckeyes from winning undisputed possession of the crown.

Company F Tossers Bow in Double-Header

Barker starred for Millers with five court goals and two foul tosses for 12 points. Silverman headed St. Anthony's attack with 15 points.

Pepco Barry Breaks Midatlantic Hit Marks

Records for the 1933 season in the Middle Atlantic League reveal why the Baltimore Orioles have signed Pepco Barry for the next diamond campaign. Playing with Martinsburg, the Washington youth established a new all-time record batting mark for the circuit with a mark of .361.

But Barry didn't stop with that. He hung up a new league standard for base hits with 194 in 538 times at bat in 128 games. No less than 101 runs were credited to him, and his extra base hits amounted to 27 doubles, nine triples and five home runs. Rival pitchers gave him 22 walks and succeeded in striking him out 21 times.

Wildcat Monte Wins.

British Netmen Feature 1933 Season

(Associated Press.)

THE most spectacular tennis year since 1927 was featured by the victorious rush of the British Davis Cup forces, led by dashing, black-haired Frederick J. Perry. This young Briton teamed with Henry (Bunny) Austin to rout the Americans at Paris in the interzone matches, beat Henri Cochet in the challenge round for the point that proved decisive in ending France's six-year hold on the famous trophy, then came overseas to win the United States singles championship.

The swift downfall of the American and Wimbledon champion, Ellsworth Vines, was no more surprising or dramatic than the end of Queen Helen the First's reign. The loss of a set in the final at Wimbledon and another in the semifinals at Forest Hills pointed the way to the decline of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, who defaulted to her California rival, Helen Hull Jacobs, in the American final while trailing, 0—3, in the third set. The back injury which contributed to Mrs. Moody's first defeat in seven years led to a decision later to withdraw from competition in 1934.

Vines Disappoints.

Vines fell far short of his 1931-32 championship form. The slim Californian, apparently feeling the effects of a long winter tour to Australia, dropped his Wimbledon singles title to Jack Crawford; lost both his singles matches against the British Davis Cup pair, and was eliminated by Bryan Grant, jr., Atlanta's "Mighty Atom," in the fourth round of the National singles at Forest Hills.

Shields, due to fine come-back, earned the No. 1 American ranking spot for the year, while Vines turned professional and joined forces with Big Bill Tilden for a series of matches early in 1934 with Henri Cochet. Thus the three men who have dominated the world ranking list for the last decade will finally get together for profit.

Miss Jacobs, who clinched the No. 1 ranking among women for the second straight year by her victory over Mrs. Moody, was the heroine of the American Wightman Cup team's triumph over the British. The second of her two singles decisions furnished the deciding point in the midst of a strong British rally.

Crawford's defeat by Perry in the United States singles final prevented the smooth-stroking Australian from scoring an unprecedented grand slam. He won the Australian, French, and Wimbledon titles.

Owner Plans Suit For Painted Horse

Contends Hustle Over Not Proven Another Horse.

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 26 (Spl).—It was learned today that Michael Krock, of Perth Amboy, N. J., will prosecute the Shenandoah Valley Jockey Club in court here in an effort to obtain the release of his horse, Hustle Over, which club officials allege has been identified as Two Brooms. Stewards last week are alleged to have discovered that the animal was dyed, and ordered it taken into custody pending a further investigation.

Krock has engaged the services of A. C. McIntire, Martinsburg attorney, who will contend that as far as his client is concerned, Hustle Over has not been identified as another horse.

Former Jockey Joe Josiah, who owned Hustle Over until late last autumn, viewed the horse in custody and declared that it was not the real Hustle Over, and that it appeared to be of much better quality than the horse he owned.

Track officials believe Two Brooms is the correct name of the horse, and will offer testimony of several racing people to this effect. The track also is awaiting official report from the Jockey Club pertaining to Two Brooms.

Hyattsville Planning Unlimited Cage Loop

Plans are under way for the organization of an unlimited basket ball league in Hyattsville. Company F, National Guard, is sponsoring the proposed loop.

Six teams are wanted to complete the circuit. Games will be played Monday and Thursday nights on the armory floor. Lieut. Hugh McClay, athletic officer of the company, would like to hear from interested teams, especially Brentwood Hawks, Hyattsville Southern Methodists, Hyattsville Baptists and Hyattsville A. C.

Salem High Grid Team To Play in San Diego

Salem, Mass., Dec. 26 (AP).—In a special meeting today, the Salem school committee today authorized the Salem High School football team to play the San Diego high eleven in that Californian city next Saturday.

The Salem team, awaiting formal approval in California, met an 18-to-0 defeat from Urban Military School team in Los Angeles last Sunday.

Lions' Captain Unafraid of Indians

"Stanford Not Going to Be Pushing Us Around," Says Montgomery.

TUCSON, ARIZ., Dec. 26 (AP). Quiet, unassuming Cliff Montgomery, Columbia's football captain and quarter back, offered the opinion today that Stanford's stalwarts are not going to be pushing the Lions around promiscuously in that rose-bedecked bowl in the Arroyo Seco, New Year's Day.

"Anyone who expects Stanford to push us around New Year's Day is going to be in for a surprise," Cliff announced.

"I don't know much about Stanford's comparative ability. There's no basis of comparison. I understand the Indians are big and fast, but that doesn't mean they can beat us.

Weight Disadvantage No Novelty.

"It will be no novelty to be outweighed from end to end and through the back field. That happens regularly to Columbia. It will be unusual if we are out-fought, and we don't intend that shall happen."

Montgomery was in dead earnest. He built no alibi bridges. He said nothing about his own prowess. He talked of the team as a unit.

"That low-charging line of ours will be tough to penetrate," he continued. "Coach Lou Little hasn't taken one thing for granted. We've worked from the ground up, and no team can throw down a coach like Lou.

"I don't know what effect the change of climate will have on us, but we're not worrying. We hope to be in the best condition of the season and if we hit our November stride again—look out."

Montgomery was eager to let it be known the Lions are not making this a pleasure trip. Football will be the chief item of business until after the game.

Will Do Touring After Game.

"We're going to have plenty of time for touring and sightseeing after the game," he said.

Coach Little called the squad together again today for its daily football discussion and then took it to the University of Arizona field later in the afternoon for the hardest workout of the trip to date.

Miss Butler and Mr. Daly Win Special Pin Match

Billie Butler and Carroll Daly defeated Lucille Traband and George Iseman in their special mixed doubles match last night at the Lucky Strike bowling allies, 1,132 pins to 1,106.

The winners piled up a comfortable lead in the second and third games after winning the first by a single pin, but faltered in the home stretch. Miss Traband and Iseman won the last two games, 214 to 213 and 229 to 202, but could not overcome their rivals' advantage.

Iseman's 620 set was high. He rolled consistently, as his games of 128, 120, 124, 121 and 127 will attest. Miss Traband contributed 486 pins to the grand total with games of 100, 93, 98, 93 and 102.

Daly was off to a flying start, but lost control of the situation in the final games. His scores were 121, 136, 133, 105 and 110. His partner's counts were 108, 96, 123, 108 and 92.

John I. Day was named as presiding steward and handicapper. He is a veteran turf writer and has presided at tracks in Chicago and Miami.

S. C. Nuckols, of Versailles, Ky., will be steward. Marshall Cassidy will serve as starter.

Trinity Five May Gratify Lyles' 10-Year Ambition

Churchmen, With 15 in Row, Have Eye on A.A.U. Crown.

IT'S going to be a happy new year for Bob Lyles if his Trinity M. E. quintet continues to win all of its ball games. Fifteen are credited to the churchmen already—and it has yet to meet defeat. Last night's 35-12 conquest of the Merrick Boys Club unlimited five is the newest entry on the ledger.

But Lyles is a trifle skeptical about the future. For 10 long, weary years he has sought the elusive A. A. U. championship—usually in the role of player-manager. Always something has prevented Lyles from attaining his goal. He's been as close as the finals—but never fortunate enough to smilingly present himself to the tournament officials for the coveted trophy.

Lyles Veteran of 27.

The carrot-topped chap is a veteran on the court. He's 27 now, but looks more like 24. His career began at Tech High School—but not on the varsity. He was too small for that. The scales registered only 115 pounds when he stepped on in his senior year, so he was assigned to the lightweights. That team won the Y. M. C. A. championship.

Out of school Lyles began to take on weight. He was husky enough to play unlimited ball with the Warwick A. C., but the next year dropped back into the 145-pound class with the Brentwood Hawks. In 1928-1929, he cast his lot with the Dixie Pigs, managing the team the second year. The Dixies copped the tricounty honors and Prince Georges County title.

He played with and managed the Phoenix Club in 1930, then went to the Griffith-Consumers for three years, terminating his affiliation with the team at the end of the campaign to pilot Trinity. The Griffs reached the finals of the last A. A. U. tournament, but lost to Sholl's, 35 to 27, in the decisive game.

The Griffs, incidentally, were the only outfit to top champions during the year. In his spare time, Lyles managed and played with Kenilworth Methodist in the Sunday School League and captured the pennant.

Great Array of Talent.

Lyles heads an imposing array of talent, one that looms as a formidable contender for the District crown. Burdette Cogar, former Hyattsville High School star; Knocky Thomas and Waverly Wheeler, former Tech High School players; Otts Zahn, G. W. U. captain last year; Blackie Adair; Tom Peck, one of the city's outstanding court stars; Jim Mooney and Bill Roberts, are in the roster. Roberts, by the way, graduated from Eastern High School and the University of Maryland before taking up the game and rates as one of the best on the squad.

So it looks like a happy and a prosperous new year for the boys, but Lyles is reluctant to admit it. He simply smiles and says, "Maybe—stranger things than that have happened."

Pin Sets of Over 600 Plentiful in Star Play

Arcadia bowling alley was the scene of some preliminary rounds in the Evening Star's annual Yuletide Tournament last night. Harold Howland, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, turned in a score of 661 with the aid of an 8-pin handicap. William Share and Ray Miller, of the Columbia Heights League, chalked up sets of 653 and 617, respectively. Share enjoyed a 25-pin handicap and Miller one of 20 pins. J. W. Backman, of the Building Contractors loop, rolled 616 abetted by a 10-pin advantage. All probably will qualify for the finals, as 576 was the qualifying mark last season.

Junior Y.M.C.A. League Seeks Additional Team

The Y. M. C. A. Junior 130-Pound Basket Ball League needs one more team to complete the league. Any teams interested are requested to get in touch with R. B. Morgan, Boys' Physical Director, at the "Y," at once, National 8250.

Game Plentiful On Eastern Shore

Wardens Determined to Keep It So by Warring On Duck Traps.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Dec. 26 (AP).—Game, particularly wild turkeys, is unusually plentiful in the district from the Eastern Shore to Richmond, J. B. West, supervisor of game wardens in the district, said today.

West, with Carl H. Nolting, chairman of the State Commission on Game and Inland Fisheries, has been supervising work of Eastern Shore game wardens in destroying duck traps. He said there had been some improvement in the trapping situation.

Traps, similar to rat traps with confusion entrances, were placed in places frequented by the ducks. Heavy bait was used for the traps, many of which had their entrances under water.

Wardens have found that at times owners of the traps have built new ones on the same sites. To frustrate this practice the surface of the water in the vicinity of the traps has been covered with kerosene and coal tar.

West said ducks were plentiful on Eastern Shore but that the trapping practice was a serious menace.

He said 117 turkeys had been bagged this season in the Amelia Courthouse region.

West's territory formerly included about half its present area, but when a number of supervisors were eliminated in the retrenchment program his region was extended to include the Eastern Shore territory and all points west of Richmond.

Girl Swimming Stars in Practice

Lenore Kight Prepares for Week-End Contests.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP).—Led by Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., world's fastest woman free style swimmer, a dozen of the country's fleetest mermaids took their first practice plunges in the Miami Biltmore Pool today in preparation for the second annual National Olympic stars aquatic meet, Thursday through Saturday.

Miss Kight, who broke her first important record in her Florida debut last year, is now credited with five standards, and intends to go after the 300-meter-long course mark, now held by Helene Madison. Her attempt will be made Thursday. Miss Madison's mark is 4:08, set in 1930.

Another seeker after records is Anne Govednik, of Chisholm, Minn., who is competing in Florida for the first time. She was a place winner in the 1932 Olympic breast stroke event.

Three of the country's leading back strokers, Alice Bridges, of Whitinsville, Mass.; Johanna Gorman, of Homestead, and Lisa Lindstrom, of New York, warmed up today for an assault on the 200-yard record held by the late Sibyl Bauer.

Miami Eleven Prepares For Duquesne Battle

Miami, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP).—The University of Miami Varsity had difficulty today in stopping a second team playing the Notre Dame tactics of Duquesne University in scrimmage in preparation for the intersectional game New Year's Day.

The Varsity had more success on offense, but was repeatedly halted without gain. Coach Tommy McCann sent his charges through signal drill and punting practice in addition to the scrimmage session.

Don George Is Winner.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 26 (AP).—Ed Don George, 215, kicked Jack Washburn, 246, to defeat in 21 minutes and 36 seconds of a rough-house bout here tonight, after Washburn had been warned twice for using the same field goal tactics. Gino Garibaldi, 222, threw Buck Weaver, 248, with a body lift and slam in 15 minutes 49 seconds, and Leo Numa, 218, and Bibber McCoy, 222, wrestled a half hour to a draw.

Occidental Pin Team Rallies To Win

Overcomes Convention Hall's Early Lead to Cop, 3,125-3,072.

FRED BUSCHOLTZ'S Occidental team, last year's champions of the District League, proved its right to supremacy over the Convention Hall five, coming from behind to overtake the challengers, who had apparently spent their wrath of a year's accumulation by pounding the maples for a 668 game in the opening stanza, for a 49-pin gain. The Restaurant crew picked up those pins and added 15 more in the second game, to go to the front and were never headed. The final figures showed the winners with a set of 3,125, against their opponents 3,072, leaving a winning margin of 53 maples.

With bitter rivalry between the stars of both teams, after having tied with games won and lost last year, the fireworks started early, neither team conceding that the other had the better team.

Hall Pinmen Run Wild.

Nine straight marks by the Occidentals in the first game failed to effect the steady consistency of the Hall representatives, who came back with mark for mark and added larger counts, to take the lead in the first game.

Joe Harrison, played an important part in victory, turning in the highest individual set of the match, 673. "Whip" Litchfield led Convention Hall with a 640 set.

In the doubles match, Convention Hall regained some of its prestige when Litchfield and Pauline Harrison teamed up to give the representatives of the Restaurant team, Joe Harrison and "Dutch" Newman, a sound trimming, winning by the grand total of 139 pins. Litchfield again came through with the best individual feat of the night, scattering the ducks for a huge 185 game.

Astor Clarke, who is rated as second to none in head-on competition, upheld his reputation by coming from behind after being 17 pins down in the last game of his singles match with Charlie Walson, to take the match with a 630 set against Walson's 616.

A treat will be in store at Arcadia Saturday night when Jake Jacobson and Harry Schreck, of Baltimore, mix with Joe and Paul Harrison in a special intercity doubles match of five games. The Baltimore players have been defeated only twice in 15 starts besides having the scalps of Santini and Joe Harrison and Megaw and Blakeney under their belts.

A round-up of most of the star bowling fraternity of the District is under way in the preliminary warm-up for the United States Sweepstakes at the Arcadia alleys on Tuesday, January 2. In order that arragements may be made whereby all the entrants can roll in the preliminary sweepstakes at a time which will be most convenient to them, Ralph Frasier, manager of the Arcadia alleys, is desiring of having the entrants call him at Columbia 10013 as soon as possible.

Convention Hall will be the battle front tomorrow night of the clash between the Italian All Stars and Jewish All Stars. One of the most interesting and hotly-contested matches of the season is in the offing. The Italian crew feels certain that it has enough talent in their own back yard to assure them of victory while the Jewish team is importing some of its talent from Baltimore. As the tussle is for national supremacy, the argument is given that any representatives of either class are eligible. The date for the second five games of the match which is a 10-game affair, has not been settled.

The Italian line-up will include Ollie Pacine, Joe Freschi, Joe Pricci, Tony Santini and Pete Coceuzzi while "Doc" Pickus, Ray Fullman and Meyer Jacobson, of Baltimore, and Maxie Rosenberg and Sam Simon, of Washington, will represent the Jewish team.

Jim Browning Triumphs Over Fred Grubmeier

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 26 (AP).—Jim Browning, 230, Verona, Mo., New York State wrestling champion, had little difficulty tonight in downing Fred Grubmeier, 205, of Iowa, in two straight falls with a turnover scissors.

Browning took the first fall in 41:40 and the second in 7:45.

Frank Bronowicz, 216, Chicago, and Vic Christie, 204, California, wrestled to a draw in the 45-minute semifinal. Hans Steinke., 255, of Germany, pinned Syd Nabors, 216, California, in 10:51 with a double arm stretch.

Dutra and Metzler Win In Pro-Amateur Golf

Hollywood, Dec. 26 (AP).—Olin Dutra, Santa Monica professional, teamed with S. Metzler, Hollywood amateur, to win the Lakeside Club's pro-amateur golf tournament today. They had a low of 136. Prize money of $500 was distributed among the first 30 professionals.

Muddy Ruel Associates of Boston Remember Ex-Nat

BOSTON, Dec. 26 (Spl.).—Among the millions of Christmas cards sent flying to the far-flung corners of Christendom yesterday, none is more striking in sentiment or more heartfelt than the card sent to Muddy Ruel, the veteran American League catcher, by his friends in Boston.

Muddy was released by the St. Louis Browns last week. He can, if he desires, settle down to the practice of law in St. Louis. But it is not yet his aim to leave the old game but to be signed by a club before spring. And that is the text of the card sent to Ruel by the Muddy Ruel Associates of Boston, headed by Gov. Joseph B. Ely, Mayor Curley, James Roosevelt, and Maj. Gen. Edward L. Logan. It reads:

RUEL.

Hopes for Baseball Job.

"Our Christmas wish for you and ourselves is that one of the big league clubs will show its appreciation of ability by engaging you in some capacity so that your friends throughout the country will continue to enjoy contact with you as in the years past."

There have been many idols in sport, but probably no man in the game who has made so many friends as little Muddy Ruel. Boston is not alone in its affection for him. Wherever he has visited he has built up a circle of friends who fete him on every possible occasion.

His visits to Boston have been so pleasant to baseball fans here that they organized an organization of Muddy Ruel Associates. Gov. Ely, one of the members, is also a law fraternity brother of Ruel, both being in Phi Delta. Others to join in the Christmas greeting this year when it seems that Muddy, after 19 years in the majors, is about through, are District Attorney Warren L. Bishop, Judge Edward A. Counihan, jr., State Auditor Francis X. Hurley, State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley, Senator Charles T. Cavanagh, Representative John W. McCormack, Representative Arthur D. Healey, Representative John J. Douglass, Mayor-elect James E. Hagan, of Somerville; Charles C. Gilman, of Milton; Paul Tondor, of Dorchester.

Others sending the season's greetings to Muddy are former Representative Joseph H. O'Neil, former Fire Commissioner Edward F. McLaughlin, President Joseph F. McGrath, of the Boston City Council, and President John J. Foley, of the Cambridge City Council; Boxing Commissioner Dan Kelly, State Fire Marshal Stephen J. Garrity, State Controller George E. Murphy, former Senator James H. Doyle, Senator Owen A. Gallagher, Senator James C. Scanlon, Chairman William A. Reilly, of the school committee, Assessor Edward O. Mullowney, of Brookline, Assessor Joseph G. Lane, of Belmont; Collector Edward J. Morris, of Quincy; County Commissioner Stephen C. Luce, jr., of Martha's Vineyard; City Physician Dr. Morgan P. Hanlon, of Springfield, Deputy State Auditor Michael T. Kelleher, Selectman George H. Lowe, of Arlington; William J. "Dyker" Doyle, former Boston College football star.

Representatives in the Associates include Thomas P. Dillon, Joseph F. Cleary, Francis J. Kelly, Francis P. Clark, John A. Jones, Leo M. Birmingham, Daniel O'Connell, Timothy J. McDonough, John E. Hurley, William H. Doyle, Paul Dever, Arthur V. Sullivan and Ralph N. Hamilton.

Muddy's request for his release in St. Louis may have seemed unusual to many fans, but the smart little catcher prefers to wear out rather than rust out in a bull pen with no responsibility for the success or failure of his club.

Hornsby Sole Strategist.

The latter would have been the case under Rogers Hornsby, who is the sole strategist of any club with which he is connected. The situation in St. Louis was simply not suited to a brilliant baseball player of Ruel's experience and capacity.

He is still considered a good defensive catcher and capable of several years of active work. Muddy always led the exemplary life and took the utmost care that he was always in condition. His weight, for example, today is the same as when he broke in 19 years ago, 140 pounds. He was the smallest backstop of them all and when he was receiving Walter Johnson, actually had to take a braced stance so as not to be bowled over. He tells the story of a day when Johnson was burning them over so fast, the umpire whispered, "You'll have to call 'em, Muddy. I can't see them."

If the wishes of his friends carry any weight, Muddy won't be hanging up the spikes for good. And wishes are not the whole argument for there is many a major league team which could use him to excellent advantage today.

Pulis Scores Fifth Consecutive Victory in Feature Race at Jefferson Park

Gelding Wins By Length And Half

Culloden Is Second and Plumage Third in Distance Race.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Dec. 26 (AP).—A. G. Tarn's honest platcr Pulis won his fifth purse in a row when he defeated five other route travelers in the Biloxi Purse of a mile and a sixteenth here this afternoon. Zekiel also has won a quintet of local races, but they were not consecutive. Pulis today had the comfortable margin of a length and a half to spare as he passed the judges, whereas his other victories were tight fits. Culloden finished second, four lengths before Plumage. The winner was favorite, returning $4.80 for $2. His time was 1:46 3-5.

Buddy Haas was up on the Tarn colorbearer and rode faultlessly. He rated the 3-year-old gelded son of Justice F. in third position, while Town Limit'and Muslet vied for the lead. After leaving the back stretch Pulis, still under restraint, passed the tiring leaders and drew into a daylight advantage. Culloden supplied some opposition in the stretch, but the winner was in hand. Plumage caught Muslet in the final strides for the show.

Come Seven Comes First.

Come Seven, backed down to $5.20 for $2, was easily best of the maiden 2-year-old fillies in the curtain raiser. The veteran Leslie Pichon had the leg up and the combination passed the judges four lengths in the van. Chance Ace beat Mint Memories, a bad post actor, by a length for the secondary award. Come Seven, rated near the pace on the outside, jumped into command after entering the home lane and galloped far clear.

Favorite players made it two in a row when Primer took the second purse by three lengths at even money. Ingle Nook caught Wily Girl in the last sixteenth to earn the place by a length and a half. Primer rushed to the fore at the break and ran Wily Girl into the ground to win as Apprentice Manifold pleased. Ingle Nook broke a bit slowly and ran a good race.

Black Comet Flashes.

Black Comet, recovering his best form, was a nose winner over Whizz James in the third. Deferred was third, a length and a half away. There were those who disregarded the winner's last race, so that he paid off at only $8.20 for $2. Jockey Reno rated the Westy Hogan 5-year-old well up and when Little Marcel lired from setting the pace, Black Comet and Whizz James hooked up in a duel from the top of the stretch. Whizz James saved ground, but was outgamed in the hard drive.

They made Annarita a 1-to-2 shot for the 6-furlong dash, fourth on the card, and the Master Charlie filly obliged by taking the spoils with little effort. Altena was second, three lengths behind and a single span in advance of Fair Duchess. Tony Pascuma swung Annarita out on top at the break and nothing ever threatened. Altena held on well to thwart the closing bid of Fair Duchess. Garb lost ground and can do better.

Double for Jockey Haas.

Buddy Haas had only to sit still on the $4.40 favorite, Princess Zelda, in the sixth event to record a double. The elderly mare was much the best, maintaining a long lead from the first furlong and winning by four lengths. Young Bill was closest in pursuit from the beginning and, although tiring fast at the end, lasted to save the place by a half length from Tabby, a field horse, which came from many lengths out of it.

Another Savoldi Matman.

Clem Savoldi, lightweight but husky young brother of the huge Jumping Joe Savoldi of Notre Dame full-back fame, has joined his brother in the professional wrestling game.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The sea-going carriages are used almost exclusively, strange as it seems, by tourists and treasure hunters. There is a story that on the Island of Neuwerk, six miles off the German coast from Cuxhaven, famous pirates once buried their gold. Some say that Stortebecker, famous fifteenth century pirate, and Mary Read and Anne Bonny, women buccaneers of a later time, hid their loot on Neuwerk Island.

Today scores of tourists and treasure hunters haunt the little island in hopes of digging out a fabulous treasure in some forgotten chest. The strangest part of the trip, however, is the traveling by horse-drawn sea-going carriages which make regular trips over the six-mile neck of the North Sea that lies between the mainland and the pirate isle. The carriage beds are calked to keep water out and the horses are trained to swim in deep water. The trip can be made with safety only at low tide.

Although 13,394 voters cast their ballots at the last election for candidates to the county seat in Martinsburg, W. Va., they failed to elect either of the candidates. The vote was an exact tie. The first count showed it to be, a recount was made and it was still a tie, then part of the recount was recounted and without changing the deadlock. The question was taken to the county court, then to the circuit court, finally to the State supreme court, where it was ruled that no election had been made by the voters.

C. V. Whitney's Horses at Hialeah

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 26 (Spl.).—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, America's leading owner this year, will open his 1934 racing campaign in Florida. A powerful winter division of nine seasoned horses and eight coming 2-year-olds arrived at Hialeah Park a few days ago. They will be trained by J. (Jack) Healey, son and first assistant of Thomas J. Healey, trainer in chief of the Whitney establishment.

Mad Frump, winner of the Rockingham Park Handicap and other important distance events this summer, heads the division shipped from Whitney's Kentucky farm, near Lexington.

Nominated for Two Stakes.

The 4-year-old son of Mad Hatter will be nominated for the 6-furlong Inaugural Handicap, the mile Miami Beach Handicap and the mile and a quarter Jockey Club Handicap, the stakes open for olders horses at the Miami Jockey Club's 45-day meeting. Clotho and Redress will be the Whitney hopes in the sprint tests.

Jack Healey will select his candidates for the $10,000 Florida Derby from Lynx Eye, Piety, Sainted, Goose Flesh, Lawless Lady and Sassafras, coming 3-year-olds.

Lynx Eye, a beautifully bred, strongly built colt, staged an auspicious racing debut at Havre de Grace last spring. He defeated a good field of baby racers with impressive ease and then was shipped to New York. However, he was beaten at Jamaica and later went wrong with a leg injury which threw him out of training for the remainder of the year. He is going soundly now.

The younger Healey has great faith in Lynx Eye. He begged his father to include the colt in the Florida division and if the colt returns to his spring form will point him for the 1934 Florida Derby.

Side Lines

By Edward J. Neil.

You'd think from looking at the tears in Lou Little's eyes, that Columbia will be heading for the last roundup in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day. From the attitude and demeanor of Old Roman Nose, head coach of the Lions, it seems just a question of how high the score will run, and how many of his brave Columbia boys will be left to sleep forever under the California sod.

But the trouble is you can't always believe large Mister Little. He wept when Lafayette held Colgate scoreless because his boys had to play Lafayette. They did and ran up 46 points. He was tearful of the prospects against Penn State, Cornell, Navy, and yet Middie team that beat Notre Dame and gave Army such a terrific fight, never was a threat against Columbia.

In other words, Little has become a confirmed pessimist. In a common canter he has stripped the Eastern title from the greatest champion this section, or any other, ever had, Gloomy Gil Dobie of Cornell. As a matter of fact, when Lou and Gil get together now and talk propects, Dobie actually seems to be laughing all the time.

So don't take Little's line on the Lions of Columbia. For that matter, don't take the opposite attitude, the overenthusiastic viewpoint that Columbia can readily be figured to beat Stanford New Year's Day. They can't.

Swell Long Shot.

But I do think that Columbia, underrated even in the East, certain to be the underdog on the Coast, almost a cinch to catch Stanford overconfident, is the best long shot of the season. You can't figure them to win. But if you've seen the team, the way it plays, know the the men, and realize Little is one of the top three coaches of the country, a ray of light breaks through.

Here are some of the facts: "Little" Columbia will concede no more than five pounds a man to the Stanford "giants." "Columbia has no reserves." None at all—only four tackles of almost equal strength, four fine guards, two crack centers, four full backs, two fleet-running back replacements.

Of course, playing Stanford in California, is a tremendous disadvantage. Eastern teams, perhaps because of the climate, crumple as a rule on the coast. Pittsburgh did it twice in three tries. But there also were many other things wrong with Pittsburgh on those Western jaunts.

No Soft Touch.

Columbia will take a style of attack West such as Stanford has never seen, hasn't had a chance to scout. Hearsay information will contain more bad tips than good. Stanford has a crack sophomore end in Bill Moscrip. But they'll see something just as good, perhaps better, in Columbia's red-headed destroyer, left end Tony Matal.

Bobby Grayson, Stanford full back who calls signals, is headed for gridiron greatness, but he's still a sophomore. Columbia has a 190-pound sophomore, Al Barabas, who just might match him stride for stride. And there's a grave question whether Stanford, or any other team on the Coast except Southern Cal, with its Cotton Warburton, can match the guile, running, passing and kicking ability of Columbia's captain and quarter back, Cliff Montgomery.

Columbia has a tricky offense, precise, perfectly drilled in offensive fundamentals. It has speed, power, deception. The Lion line is the fastest charging unit in the east. Montgomery leads them like a football Napoleon at his best.

Don't sell Columbia too short!

Nats Hope to Add Rookies Before Training Camp Trip

IN spite of the fact that the Nationals won the American League pennant last season and hope to repeat in 1934, only 26 players are now listed to take the training jaunt to Biloxi next spring. This is by far the smallest number ever making up the Nats' spring squad—and the reason can not be blamed on the depression, either. It is simply a case of Manager Joe Cronin having gotten together what might be called a tried and true collection of ivory, with little chance of any outsider crowding into the picture.

President Clark Griffith is authority for the statement, however, that several others in addition to those now on the roster will be added within the next few weeks.

Rookies to Be Added.

"I plan to take at least one young catcher, possible three more rookie pitchers, and perhaps an outfielder or two. This talent I hope to line up shortly. And, by the way," said the Nat prexy, "I'm also going to take a young fellow named Klumpp and train him for the Chattanooga Club. His first name is Elmer (not Elmer, the Great). He is 24 years old, a heavy-hitting right-hander, and I'm going to try to make a fly-chaser out of him. He came up as a catcher, but played some in the Lookouts' outfield and has shown considerable promise."

The Nats, however, except for the deal which sent Goose Goslin to Detroit in exchange for Jonathon ("Rocky") Stone, evidently are planning to stand pat with a capital P.

They have recalled Ed ("Missing") Linke from Chattanooga and he and Stone are the only players listed at this writing who were not on the Washington Club's pay roll at the end of last season.

Battle for Burke.

Indications are that Skipper Joe Cronin will carry seven pitchers, the same number of infielders, three catchers and five outfielders. This totals 22 and leaves one vacancy in case a piece of exceptionally promising-looking ivory is developed or uncovered.

Last season's regular mound staff was made up of three southpaws—Walter Stewart, Earl Whitehill, and Bob Burke—and five who use their right arm—"General" Al Crowder, Jack Russell, Monte Weaver, Al Thomas, and Alex McColl. All, with the possible exception of Burke, appear sure to remain, and it will be up to Linke, Chapman, or Prim, the latter a southpaw, to shove Burke off the team. This appears to be the only scrap for berths which may be looked for when the athletes hie South and begin getting the kinks out of their arms.

There is some talk of the possibility of Cecil Travis replacing the veteran, Ossie Bluege, at third, but it probably is just talk, while both President Griffith and Pilot Cronin plan to give special attention to Catcher Cliff Bolton. Because of his hitting ability, they are anxious to get him in the line-up oftener than was the case last year. They probably will do so, but it is dollars to doughnuts that Luke Sewell will still be the first-string back-stop when the 1934 season rolls around.

Fate of Others Unknown.

For the others on the squad, it appears to be simply a case of getting them in shape, with Boken, Travis and Kerr due to continue as utility infielders, and Harris and Rice to act as assistant fly-hawks.

Here's the list of talent lined up to date:

Outfielders (5)—Stone, Schulte, Manush, Harris, and Rice.

Stocks Yield 1.6 Points in Dull Trading

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Post-holiday dullness was the rule in markets today. For stocks, the trend was downward, though many net losses were moderate.

Stocks seemed largely under professional auspices. Gold shares, which had sprinted Saturday possibly in expectation of "news" affecting them, were dropped by those who had sponsored them, and other metal issues encountered realizing.

The market appeared to feel that immediate effects at least, of the new silver plan had been discounted.

Small Tax Offerings.

Tax selling usually makes a dent at this time of year, although brokers currently report rather small offerings of that variety. Tomorrow is the last market in which such transactions can be made in the "regular way"; beginning Thursday they must be for cash.

Utilities are apparently bearing the brunt of whatever selling of this description is occurring. The utility average today made a new 1933 low.

United States Smelting had a relapse of about three points, and American Telephone suffered equally. Case, American Smelting, DuPont, Anaconda, Kennecott, Dome Mines, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Chrysler, Union Carbide, and several rails, including New York Central, Consolidated Gas of New York, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, and Santa Fe dropped approximately one to two. For United States Steel, American Can, General Electric, Westinghouse, and Bethlehem net declines averaged half a point. Volume came to 1,315,152 shares.

News Helps Little.

Developments over the long week-end added little to Wall street's fund of fact or gossip. Christmas business appears to have exceeded earlier estimates and the maintenance of business indices on an upward slant during most of December has been obvious for some time.

Preliminary figures on freight loadings, which have been moving contrary to seasonal experience, indicated some let-down in volume of traffic moved, possibly because of the holiday's approach.

Operations for the steel industry, according to the American Iron & Steel Institute, start the current week at 31.6 per cent of capacity against 34.2 a week ago, reflecting Christmas curtailments. The holiday sag, however, was rather notably small, because consumers are still pushing for deliveries this week, when fourth-quarter contracts expire.

Thus the production rate after the year's turn will be more significant. American Metal Market estimates 1933 steel ingot production at 23,000,000 tons, or more than 70 per cent above output last year. It is interesting to note in this connection that this year ran behind 1932 in its first quarter.

Wool Market.

Boston, Dec. 26 (A.P.).—(U. S. Department of Agriculture).—The wool market is rather quiet, but asking prices on domestic wools are firm. Strong prices in foreign markets last week and continued inquiries from mills for domestic wools have helped to give this market a very strong undertone despite the lack of a sizable volume of business on most lines.

Estimated receipts of domestic wool at Boston, reported to the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange during week ended December 23, amounted to 155,000 pounds as compared with 156,900 during the previous week.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

Receipts for the fiscal year to date (since July 1), $1,433,116,531.24; expenditures, $2,-396,629,471.11 (including $976,839,677.76 of emergency expenditures); excess of expenditures, $963,518,639.87.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

By Ralph West Robey.

With so much discussion on the relation of gold and prices among our domestic economists and would-be economists it is interesting to get the views of outstanding foreign experts. One of these who has just made his opinions public is Charles Rist, the dean of present day French monetary economists, one time deputy governor of the central bank of France and the chief French financial advisor at the World Economic Conference. M. Rist, too, long has been known among students as a gold worshiper in his monetary theories, so his opinions on the current Warren gold price experiment are especially timely. He outlines his point of view in the January issue of Foreign Affairs.

At the outset it must be admitted that the discussion of M. Rist is not easy to follow except in a superficial manner. If one looks at it in a more or less casual way, it appears as a fairly simple, and reasonably clear-cut, exposition of what has happened, as M. Rist sees it, in the field of prices in the past fifteen years. In fact, with a careless reading of the article, especially if one is prejudiced or unaccustomed to following monetary discussions, one might conclude that M. Rist leans rather heavily in the direction of the simple theories of Prof. George F. Warren.

Any such impression quickly disappears, however, as soon as one goes beneath the surface and picks out the threads of the theory upon which the conslusions of M. Rist are based. Then it is found that M. Rist is in fundamental disagreement with Prof. Warren. They both emphasize gold as a determinant of prices, it is true, but their views on the exact nature of this relationship are at wide variance.

Prof. Warren, in the simplest terms, holds that it is the number of units of gold—the amount as expressed in dollars, francs, &c. —that is the all-important factor in causing any particular price level. From this underlying thesis he concludes that if the number of units is doubled, such as by reducing the gold content of the dollar 50 per cent, commodity prices will more or less double. It is also on this underlying thesis that he supports the commodity dollar. In this case there is to be more or less continuous changing of the number of units of gold by varying the gold content of the dollar. In other words, what is $4,000,000,000 of gold one week may be $4,100,000,000 a little later, although the actual amount of metal is unchanged. Such a process is supposed to keep our commodity price level steady.

Mr. Rist, by contrast, thinks of gold, not in terms of the number of units—dollars, francs, &c. —by which its quantity may be measured, but as a physical volume in relation to our needs. He is, in a way, a purely commodity concept of gold, and he studies it in relation to our needs somewhat as he might study the physical volume of wheat or corn or shoes in relation to our needs. It follows, therefore, that it is of no importance what kind of a measure we use for determining the quantity, for the actual physical volume will remain the same.

Theory Not So Strange If Refinements Are Made.

When stated in such bald terms this theory perhaps sounds even more fantastic than that of Prof. Warren. This, however, is largely the result of my having omitted all the refinements with which M. Rist necessarily surrounds this basic concept. Actually all that M. Rist is saying, and the point that I am trying to emphasize, is that a mere changing of the price tag on our gold supply will not result in a change of our purely domestic price level. He might, I think, use the analogy that it would have no more effect upon such prices than our counting shoes singly instead of by pairs would have on the number of shoes in the country.

With this as a basic concept, it is clear that M. Rist can not support the current gold experiment or the commodity dollar. His point of view is almost the exact opposite. To him, if we are to have permanently higher prices, they must come through a changed relation between the actual quantity of gold, the volume of production and the turnover of purchasing power. Incidentally, too, he believes that prices should be higher now and that business should improve. The thing that is holding them back, as he sees it, is "the prevailing uncertainties as to the future destinies of the more important world currencies. * * *"

Bond Market Turns Spotty; Drops Slightly

Federal Issues Rally in Dull Session; Sales, $11,861,000.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Mixed sentiment gave the bond market a rather spotty appearance today and prices, at the close of a quiet session, were irregular and generally indefinite.

Post-Christmas lethargy held the sales total down to $11,861,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans was off one-tenth of a point.

The United States Government section rallied 1-32 to 19-32 of a point as the gold price was again unchanged, and institutional as well as Treasury purchases were reported.

Heaviness Is Ignored.

Announcement that the Treasury had purchased Government bonds last week for the sinking fund and other accounts amounting to $16,510,000 was about in line with expectations.

The rails again made the best showing in the corporate groups. Carrier issues up fractionally to a point or more included some of Alleghany Corp., Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Missouri Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern and Western Pacific.

Utilities and Industrials.

The utilities and industrials were inclined to lag, although loans of American & Foreign Power, American Telephone, Paramount Publix, Philadelphia Co. and Allis-Chalmers were fairly steady.

Losses of 1 to around 2 points were suffered by issues of Houston Oil, International Telephone, Keith Corp., Kresge Foundation, Laclede Gas, National Dairy Products, Portland General Electric, Postal Telegraph, Remington Rand, Richfield Oil, St. Joseph Lead, Vanadium and Warner Bros.

Improvement was recorded by a number of foreign obligations. Bonds in this group up 1 to 2 or more points included some of Argentina, France, Dutch East Indies, Switzerland, United Kingdom, Australia, Berlin and Austria.

Airway Passenger Traffic Increases

Chicago, Dec. 26.—Continued increases in passenger traffic were reported by American Airways today when completed figures for the month of November showed a total of 7,643 revenue passengers, an increase of 22.88 per cent over November, 1932, when 6,220 were carried.

In making the announcement, L. B. Manning, chairman of American Airways, said the company had showed a gain in each of the last seven months over the comparable months a year ago.

During the first eleven months of 1933, he said, American Airways carried 109,543 revenue passengers as compared with 80,308 in the first eleven months of 1932—a gain of 36.4 per cent.

Liberty Bank Votes Regular $1.50 Dividend

Richmond Trust Company Declares Return of 1½ Per Cent.

At a regular meeting of the board of directors of the Liberty National Bank, Washington, D. C., held Friday, December 22, 1933, a regular dividend of $1.50 per share was declared payable December 31, 1933, to stockholders of record at close of business December 27, 1933.

Transfer books will not be closed.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 26 (AP).—Directors of the State Planters Bank & Trust Co. of Richmond at a special meeting today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent, amounting to $37,500. The sum is payable January 2 to stockholders of record December 23, it was announced by Harry H. Augustine, vice president and cashier.

Approximately $800,000 is to be disbursed around the first of the New Year by corporations and institutions holding membership on the Richmond Stock Exchange.

Indianapolis, Dec. 26 (AP).—Directors of the Public Service Co. of Indiana voted today against paying the dividend on the company's prior preferred stock for the last quarter.

The action was taken after C. D. Porter, vice president and general manager, advised that increased taxes, higher operating costs due to the NRA and rate reductions which have cost the company $500,000 this year have reduced the company's net earnings.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Commonwealth & Southern Corp. reports for the 12 months ended November 30, consolidated net income of $38,-525,684, equivalent to $5.68 a share on the $8 preferred stock. This compares with net income of $14,-524,209 or 16 cents a share on the common for the 12 months ended November 30, 1932, after preferred dividend requirements.

Railroads reporting November revenues today had net operating income for that month as follows:

Dollar Turns Heavy On Foreign Marts

(Associated Press.)

The dollar looked heavy in foreign exchange dealings yesterday, but this was attributed by various dealers to the fact that London and some other markets were closed and little business was done generally.

In New York the British pound closed at $5.15¼, up 4¼ cents from its final quotation Saturday. The dollar ended in Paris 21 centimes lower, at an equivalent of 6.18 cents to the franc, while the franc, at New York, finished up .06 of a cent at 6.18½ cents.

Figured in terms of the French currency, the dollar was valued at approximately 63.37 per cent of parity compared with 64 Saturday and 63.45 a month ago.

With the domestic gold price again unchanged at $34.06 an ounce, the dollar had a theoretical value of about 60.68 per cent of former parity.

Cotton Prices Decline Under Liquidation

January Closes at 9.95 as General Market Drops 5 to 12 Points.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Cotton sagged off, under scattering liquidation and a little Southern selling, in a quiet between-holiday market today. Except for trade buying to fix prices on scale down orders, there appeared to be very little demand, and prices worked off to 10.11 for March contracts, under light offerings. March closed at 10.14, and the general market closed barely steady at net declines of 5 to 12 points.

Some foreign trade buying was reported through houses with Liverpool, Continental, and Far Eastern connections, but this was limited, and prices eased off after the call under a continuance of Southern selling and scattering liquidation.

Traders evidently found nothing in the over-holiday news of an immediately stimulating character, and while there were slight bulges from time to time on trade buying and covering, prices reached the lowest levels of the day in the late trading, with January selling off to 9.95 and May to 10.25. The close was slightly up from the lowest on the more active positions on covering.

No Liverpool Cables.

Owing to the continuation of the Christmas holidays, there were no cables from Liverpool, and fluctuations in foreign exchange were too narrow to create much sentiment. The Liverpool market will reopen for business tomorrow.

According to reports in spot circles here, the demand for spot cotton showed some improvement toward the close of last week, but doubt was expressed by some whether the mills would buy much between holidays unless stimulated by developments in the goods market.

Exports today, 10,196, making 4,052,034 so far this season. Port receipts, 11,247. U. S. port stocks, 4,133,142.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was higher today on scattered covering and local buying, promoted by the rather sharp advance in lard and the steadiness of grains and cotton. Final prices were 6 to 9 points net higher. Sales, 12 contracts, including exchanges from January to July at 60 points. Bleachable spot, nominal; January closed 4.31; March, 4.55; May, 4.76; July, 4.98.

Virginia Bank Heads Approve Capital Plan

Richmond, Va., Dec. 26 (AP).—Support of President Roosevelt's plan to strengthen the nation's banking structure by banks selling their own preferred stock or capital notes to the R. F. C. or their own stockholders was pledged Friday by the Clearing House Association of Richmond.

Having familiarized themselves with the President's program by correspondence and personal interviews with officials in Washington and leading bankers throughout the nation, Richmond bankers adopted the following resolution after full discussion of the issues involved:

"The President of the United States has publicly stated his belief that the banks of the nation should strengthen their capital structure by issuing preferred stock or debentures.

"We believe that the President's objective is constructive and sound, and that the bankers generally should support the plan to strengthen the capital of the banks of the nation.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Clearing House Association of Richmond supports the President in his program, and recommends to its members their cooperation in carrying out his suggestion."

Steel Operation Rises 5 Points To 38 Per Cent

Cleveland, Dec. 26—Still squarely at variance with the seasonal trend, steelworks operations last week rose 5 points to 38 per cent, and holiday observance will scarcely impair this week's showing, because of the rigid December 31 deadline on shipments against expiring contracts, states the magazine Steel.

Some producers will open January with all unfilled tonnage automatically canceled and with few first quarter commitments, and for them widespread shutdowns may result in the early part of the month. Others, especially those manufacturing products on which prices are not advanced January 1, and those which depleted their stocks recently in the rush to complete contracts, look for only a mild recession.

This does not diminish the outlook for the entire first quarter, which is viewed encouragingly. It is a helpful factor for late January and the remainder of the first quarter that specifications for new automobile models have been delayed, and the void this month filled by specifications of a general character. Beginning about January 15, automobile releases should expand sharply and carry through until spring.

Months' Sales Record.

A December with shipments highest for the month in many years, and heavier demands just ahead, has greatly strengthened the morale of the industry. Railroad orders are mounting steadily, a substantial portion of the requirements to provide work for the mills in January; structural needs are on the ascendancy, and still larger tonnages assured for early release.

Placing of 25,000 tons of rails by an unidentified western road has enabled Chicago mills to resume production. Other rail orders include 12,000 tons for the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, and 3,183 tons for the Lehigh & New England. Detroit United Railways has ordered 1,330 tons of steel ties. Baltimore & Ohio is negotiating a loan to buy 50,000 tons of rails, and the Interstate Commerce Commission has approved loans for the Chicago & North Western to purchase 65,000 tons of rails and 18,000 tons of accessories; for the Chicago & Eastern Illinois to buy 4,000 tons of rails and fastenings; and Pittsburgh & West Virginia, 1,000 tons.

The railroad equipment market also is more active. Lehigh & New England is negotiating with builders for 500 freight cars; Central of Georgia, 200 coal cars; Lehigh Valley, repairs 2,000 cars, and New York, New Haven & Hartford for repairs to 1,200. Northern Pacific has placed ten locomotives.

Shape Awards.

Structural shape awards for the week, 17,250 tons, are well above the weekly average for 1933. Bids are being taken on 15,000 tons for the Pennsylvania's speed line over the Delaware River bridge at Philadelphia. For Mississippi River locks 16,000 tons additional are about to be awarded.

Releases are expected soon after January 1 on 32,000 tons of shapes and plates for navy work, contracts for which were let last summer. The Pennsylvania Railroad has definitely awarded 4,500 tons of plates and other materials for 500 freight cars to be built in its own shops. Two tank ships for the Standard Socony Transportation Co., New York, up for figures, will require 5,700 tons of plates, shapes and bars.

A strong situation prevails in the scrap market, with prices up in all districts. More inquiries are out from blast furnaces for coke. Few cancelations have been made on fourth quarter contracts for pig iron.

Further Price Advances.

Further price advances announced to become effective January 1 include $3 a ton on ferromanganese and ferrosilicon, and $5 on silicomanganese; while spiegeleisen, under foreign competition, is down $1. Advances on stove bolts and cap and set screws now are in effect.

Steelworks operations last week advanced 12½ points to 38 per cent at Buffalo; 10½ to 40 at Chicago; 10 to 51 at Wheeling; 3 to 26 in eastern Pennsylvania; 3 to 39 in Youngstown; 1 to 29 at Pittsburgh; and 1 to 72 in New England. They were unchanged at 52 per cent both at Detroit and Birmingham, and down 2 points to 57 at Cleveland.

Steel's iron and steel composite remains $32.42; the finished steel composite, $51.10; while the scrap index is up 33 cents to $10.50.

Pinchot Faces Fight for Life With 'Machine'

Senatorship or Oblivion Seen as Alternatives in Party Battle.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 26 (AP).—A fight to the political death between Gifford Pinchot and the Republican organization built by Boies Penrose and Matthew Stanley Quay, is going to start just as soon as the Pennsylvania Governor gets over the "shingles."

Recovering from the nervous disorder in a New York hospital, the tall, lean, silver-mustached executive has hurled a challenge to the State Republican organization—and the organization has accepted.

It all comes about over the legislature's failure to enact laws the Governor demanded "to close Pennsylvania sweatshops."

Pennsylvanians have been looking forward to such a struggle now that Pinchot has only one more year to serve as Governor. His friends assert he will run for United States Senator and some of them, as well as some of his foes, also insist he has an eye on the White House.

Governor is Reticent.

The Governor is silent on all this, so is Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, his wife and aggressive political aid. But no matter what their closely-guarded political plans may be, the fight with the State Republican powers is a certainty.

There were rumblings of the battle to come during the special session of the Legislature, just adjourned. Although he is a dry, and has been for years, Pinchot demanded a law establishing a system of State liquor stores, under a three-man board of control, named by the governor.

He got what he wanted—from an organization-controlled General Assembly—though more outspoken foes charged he sought to set himself up as a "liquor czar," and was attempting "to ride into the United States Senate on a whisky barrel."

Oddly enough, there was but mild resistance to the Pinchot liquor plan, and the Legislature moved on to tackle social and labor legislation, the crux of which was the minimum wage bill, which the Pinchots said would close the sweatshops.

Crux of Next Campaign.

Now they're hinting at the Capitol here that a special session will be called in March. Regardless of that, Pinchot leaders are preparing to carry the social and labor issues into the 1934 campaign, when a governor and other high officials will be elected.

A victory for Pinchot in the election would give him virtual control of State politics, leaders on both sides assert, adding that a victory for the organization would "end Pinchot." He can not succeed himself as Governor, and he's 68 years old.

Rails Silent On Financing

Huge Bond Issues Will Be Due in 1934; May Offer New Paper.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Major railroad systems which have large bond issues maturing next year have so far given no indication what methods will be used to accomplish the refinancing.

This calculation includes maturities of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific system, now in process of reorganization. These redemptions total something like $124,000,000.

Other important maturities include those of New York Central, which amount to $48,000,000 and become due May 1, and $20,000,000 of Illinois Central, due June 1.

Opinion in financial quarters is that the railroad managements will approach the 1934 refinancing problems with more confidence than they were able to feel this year.

The roads experienced a considerable pickup in earning power in 1933, and this, it is contended, might prove a considerable aid in financing, provided the securities markets improve sufficiently to absorb new offerings.

Post, in Rebuilt Plane, Will Fly to New York

Oklahoma City, Dec. 26 (AP).—Wiley Post, globe-circling flier, will leave here for New York this week-end in his rebuilt plane, the Winnie Mae, for a series of conferences concerning future plans, he said today.

The Winnie Mae was badly damaged when Post crashed as he was taking off from a field at Quincy, Ill., several weeks ago. The plane was rebuilt here and was taken on a test flight by Post today.

Coal Company Raises Wages.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 26 (AP).—All monthly employes of the Glen Alden Coal Co. have been given advances in wages ranging from 2 to 10 per cent, it was announced today. About 500 will be affected.

Radio Waves and Ripples

PLEADING "enlightenment" and "true temperance," C. B. S. yesterday sought permission of Speaker of the House Rainey and Senator William H. King to broadcast hearings and discussion on the District liquor bill when it comes before the House, January 4.

Suggesting the broadcast might be sent throughout the country, WJSV wishes to share the occasion with other stations in Washington.

General Manager Harry Butcher, of WJSV, suggests that other means having failed, temperance best can be achieved by education and bringing the public in on the little scene to be enacted in Congress.

Butcher says commercial programs would interfere with broadcasting the proceedings during the forenoon, and that WJSV would like to put on the show at 1:30 or 2 p. m.

The week-end was not without its tragedy . . . even radio actors [illegible] twinges of the heart, sw[illegible] their feelings, while [illegible]gh and regale the a[illegible] their accustomed li[illegible]ness. The show m[illegible] and tears don't t[illegible]ough grease paint [illegible] human sympathy [illegible] broadcasting studio [illegible]ts and the microph[illegible]e.

Aunt Sue (Dorothy Stewart), who [illegible]s with Polly in a ch[illegible]'s program over WRC at [illegible], has two children of [illegible], a boy and a girl. On [illegible]y, just before they [illegible] the air, word came to [illegible]er laddie, eight years [illegible] been killed accidentally [illegible]ile playing with his [illegible]ends.

[illegible]tudio staff was saddened, [illegible]one went about his task [illegible] but Aunt Sue and her [illegible]w were in all hearts. No [illegible] loves children more or told [illegible]etter story for them than did [illegible]orothy Stewart. Those who [illegible]njoyed her program will share [illegible]er sorrow.

Monday's program went on without her with Arthur Godfrey, announcer, filling in. The studio has not assigned a successor.

Echoes of the Great Commoner . . . Wiliam Jennings Bryan, who, as the "Boy Orator of the Platte," thrilled audiences here and [illegible]n packed halls from coast to coast when he proclaimed in strident tones the challenge—"Coinage of silver at 16 to 1." More people were enchanted . . . hoodwinked by his rousing forensics . . . than ever understood what coinage of silver at that rate would mean.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, will raise aloft the torch on the silver question tonight during the National Radio Forum on WRC at 10:30 p. m.

The Senator is one of the leading members of the so-called "silver bloc" in Congress and an advocate of unlimited coinage of silver. At the last session of Congress he was one of the sponsors of legislation which permitted the recent executive order of the President authorizing increased monetization of the metal.

The best way to start an argument is to boast about the "positively swell music" of Dot Whoozis' Orchestra or the "keen rhythms" of Snozzie Hell-man's gilt ensemble or Clarence Pilver and his Applejack Boys . . . "they simply slay you, darling," emotes Doris, wilting in George's arms.

Most collegians . . . and they are the principal contenders in this discussion . . . agree that Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians are the "creme de la creme" of the dance orchestra melanges. But there you stand in the way of an unending argument. Someone will roar, "What! Don't tell me you've never heard Don Bestor."

But we're just reminding you that Guy Lombardo . . . and this is unbiased . . . will be reunited with Burns and Allen in the same studio tonight in Los Angeles, when their program will go on the air over C. B. S. at 9:30 o'clock.

Hitherto, while the orchestra was playing in various cities in the East, the comedy team was in California making movies, and it was necessary to use a 6,000-mile circuit in order to bring them together.

Ripples.

Beginning Friday, December 29, the "Masked Marvel of the Air," a romantic 29-year-old Italian opera singer, will start a new local program on WJSV at 5:45 p. m.

The minds at that studio . . . or rather a mind who goes in for red velvet pajamas . . . tells us it's a secret about his name . . . but that he will be called the "Song Vendor" and his first program will include "Mother Mine," "Love Me Tonight," "Nina" and "A Vuchella."

Since the inauguration of radio announcers and more latterly "crooners" . . . the maligned American public has exercised more than mere interest in voices that come to them over their sets . . . some suave and smooth as a floorwalker . . . others raucous and blasting . . . many laboring in Oxonian accents. The latter being chiefly identified with music comment.

It's certain that radio, siding with not too recent tendencies on the stage, has dealt a sure influence on America's manner of speaking. So the effect on the country's diction exerted by radio will be discussed over WRC tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. by speakers at a convention of the National Association of Teachers of Speech.

Dr. Lee Emerson Basset, professor of speech at Stanford University, will discuss "Our American Speakers;" Dr. H. L. Eubank, of the University of Wisconsin, on "Coordinating Speech Work With Radio," and Prof. John Dolman, jr., University of Pennsylvania, on "What the Listener Hears."

Booming Russian rhythms sounding the austere majesty of the Czarist regime, and the hilarious antics of peasants tossing their vodka mugs high, will creep into an all-Russian program presented tonight by Egon Petri, world-famous pianist, over WMAL at 10:30. Frank Black will conduct the symphony orchestra accompanying.

Tschaikowsky, Rachmaninoff, Arensky, and Glinka are the composers whose works will be performed. Petri will play the Tschaikowsky Concerto No. 1 in B flat minor, one of the best known of all piano compositions. The second movement of this work, with its lullaby and pastoral themes, is particularly appropriate to the Christmas season.

Rachmaninoff's G-minor prelude and the little-known G-major prelude by the same composer will be included. The orchestra will open the concert with the overture to Glinka's folk-tale opera, "Russlan and Ludmilla." Following the concerto, the orchestra will be heard in Arensky's Variations on a theme by Tschaikowsky.

Admirers of Pavlowa and her mystically beautiful dance creation will listen in tonight when Albert Spalding, eminent violinist, gives a recital featuring "The Swan," probably the best known of Saint-Saens' descriptive tone sketches. The program goes on at 8:30 o'clock over C. B. S.

Depicting the pitiful death of a lovely swan in graceful and moving melody, the music was immortalized by the famed dancer, who died, we believe, just as the swan did, gracefully drifting into the world of beauty she created.

Accompanied by Don Voorhees and his orchestra, Spalding will play the andante and rondo from Lalo's colorful "Symphonie Espagnolde." Conrad Thibault, assisting artist to Spalding, will offer two barytone solos: Rachmaninoff's "To the Children" and the martial song by Dix, "The Trumpeter."

Kentucky Couple Held In Colorado Slaying

Jamestown, Ky., Dec. 26 (AP). William Cody Kelly, 30, and his wife, 20, were in the Russell County jail here today, held on request of Delta County, Col., authorities in connection with the slaying of James Browning, a ranchman.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly said they spent 20 months in Delta, leaving there October 17, the day after a man had been killed. They denied knowing the victim and said they had no connection with the case.

Garment Workers Overcome by Gas

Seven Sent to Hospitals as 50 Collapse.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Seven persons were rushed to hospitals today and 50 others were affected by carbon monoxide gas on the nineteenth floor of a building in the garment district, where all the windows had been closed due to the snowstorm. A number of gas-operated machines were in operation in the building.

Before emergency crews and ambulances arrived more than 50 men and women had collapsed. Police used 12 tanks of oxygen on the gas victims for two hours.

None of the seven taken to hospitals were in a serious condition tonight, but physicians feared pneumonia threatened them as a result of the carbon monoxide they inhaled.

Grand Jury to Quiz Report of Robbery

Lawyer Tells Police He Lost $34,500.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 26 (AP).—C. E. Heidingsfelder, attorney, who yesterday reported to police a bandit robbed him of $34,500 belonging to Mrs. Adele Pipkin, New York, a client, after drugging him in his downtown office, was called before the grand jury late today.

The attorney told Police Capt. B. W. Payne that he was called on the telephone by a man who wished "to discuss some legal matters."

Heidingsfelder said while waiting an armed man appeared and commanded him to open the office safe, where, he explained, he had put the money after withdrawing it from a bank Saturday, preparatory to taking it to New York to deliver to Mrs. Pipkin, who had been awarded the money in a divorce settlement.

The gunman, Heidingsfelder said, forced him to drink from a bottle, and he said a moment later he became unconscious.

Reporter's Wife Dies In Gas-Filled Kitchen

Baltimore, Dec. 26 (AP).—The body of Mrs. Adelaide Ranft, 27, with blood flowing from the nose and facial bones broken, was found in her gas-filled apartment today. Gas was flowing from the three open burners in a kitchen range. Dr. Ferdinand Link, district coroner, and police began investigations.

Mrs. Ranft was the wife of Joseph L. Ranft, jr., Baltimore newspaperman, and a daughter of Francis P. Curtis, former speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates.

Old Oaken Bucket.

The old oaken bucket, the modern and pump, the hydrant and tap have encountered a slump; at recent elections the voters decreed that water's too thin for the popular need; the eighteenth amendment is firmly repealed, the doom of the old oaken bucket is sealed; the old water wagon we've ridden so long will go to the yard where such ruins belong. John Barleycorn's friends are triumphant at last; for years they've been mourning, distraught and aghast; the old oaken bucket seemed destined to wave till this generation was safe in the grave, and no one believed that its downfall was near, to usher in oceans of bitters and beer. And now people say it will never return, no more like a beacon the bucket will burn, its friends and defenders are down in the dust, too weary and beaten to voice their disgust. But those who have studied the prohibs will know they never have wavered or sidestepped the foe: they doubtless have failings and faults by the score, they talk through their hats when their feelings are sore, but no one can say that they shiver with fear when scraps are in order and foemen appear. When they are knocked over they rise with such pep opponents will wisely watch out where they step. And now we shall witness the scrap of our lives; the prohibs will come with their aunts and their wives, and fight till they sink to their rest in the grave, that the old oaken bucket forever may wave.

RFC Received Insull Bonds As Collateral

Senate Committee Gets Report on Loan to Dawes' Bank.

A meeting of a special Senate Banking and Currency subcommittee will be called today or tomorrow to consider a report from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, disclosing Insull securities and German bonds among collateral posted by the Central Trust Co. of Chicago, in obtaining its $90,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan.

The subcommittee, under Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher (Democrat), Florida, several weeks ago called on the corporation to report on the status of the loan to the bank, headed by former Vice President Charles G. Dawes

While details of the report filed yesterday were not made public, it was said that nearly 7,000 items of collateral listed are believed to cover the amount of the loan still outstanding.

Chairman Jesse Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, recently advised the committee the loan has been reduced to $62,000,000.

The amount of Insull securities deposited as collateral was said by one committee member to be in excess of $8,000,000 while foreign securities, including German federal and state bonds, were said to number several million dollars. The balance was said to comprise commercial paper, mortgages and stocks and bonds.

The loan drew widespread comment at the time it was made, Dawes having previously resigned as chairman of the RFC to take over presidency of the bank.

Backfiring Psychology.

Experts pride themselves principally upon their keen knowledge of psychology. They employ certain bidding styles against conservative players, and make an about-face to bid in exactly the opposite fashion against aggressive players.

It is granted that this sort of discrimination furnishes the final and most important touch which raises a player into the championship class. Yet there are some cases in which the psychological reasoning turns out to have been wrong, sometimes with most amusing results (amusing, that is, except to the psychologist).

In the following hand the keen discrimination of two outstanding experts backfired, and the result was a net loss of 980 points. The deal was played in the qualifying round of the Vanderbilt tournament last month.

West, Dealer.

Mr. David Burnstine sat North and Mr. Oswald Jacoby South. West passed and Mr. Burnstine decided that he would deceive the opponents as to the nature of his holding by passing on the first round and reentering the bidding later. In this way he hoped to convince East and West that he was attempting a sacrifice and thought he might possibly coax a Double from them at a reasonably low contract. East passed and Mr. Jacoby, South, had a great deal less than a Fourth Hand bid. Against players he knew to be especially aggressive he might have opened the bidding nevertheless, but in this case he considered it far more likely that his opponents might be underbidding than that his partner had passed a hand of better than average strength. So he passed the deal out, so no points were scored by either team.

At the other table at which the board was played (for the Vanderbilt tournament is a team-of-four contest) Messrs. Burnstine and Jacoby's teammates were Michael T. Gottlieb and Howard Schenken. Against them the North and South pair bid six hearts, and the Opening lead of the King of spades allowed the contract to be made, for North was able to take an immediate discard of his losing diamond on South's King of clubs. The Ace of diamonds Opening would have defeated the contract one trick. Six hearts bid and made, counting 980 points, the Burnstine-Jacoby team showed a net loss of that amount on the board. A remarkable feature of the story is that, despite this major loss, Messrs. Burnstine, Jacoby, Schenken and Gottlieb finished 1,800 points ahead of their opponents in the total of five boards played, meaning that in the other four boards they picked up 2,780 points.

New York Dock Company Fund Held Misused

Stockholder Asks Full Accounting; Wiggin Is Named in Suit.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—Laurence J. Gallagher, a holder of $400,000 stock in the New York Dock Co., filed a motion today in supreme court for examination of the company's officers prior to hearing of suit for an accounting.

Gallagher charges that Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the Chase National Bank, and officers and directors of the dock company freudulently diverted more than $7,000,000 of the company's funds and dissipated its capital surplus.

His motion today seeks to have David L. Tilley, president, and Clifford E. Hicks, secretary, of the dock company, examined about this "waste dissipation."

Wiggin is a defendant in the accounting suit along with the Chase Bank, the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., Manufacturers Trust, the Kings County Trust and officers and directors of the dock company.

Gallagher charged dissipation of funds came after Grigori Benenson acquired control of the Dock Co., in 1925, and had Wiggin made a director.

He alleged Benenson and Wiggin, with the approval of the directorate, organized the New York Dock Company Trades Facilities Corporation, with broader powers than those of the Dock Co.; that the funds of the Dock Co. were misused in a stock pool; and that directors of the Dock Co. authorized the purchase from Benenson of property worth $3,000,000 and a price of $7,000,000 in order that Benenson could pay indebtedness.

Secrets of "15 Miles Up" Yield To Science's Little Balloons

Canadians Find 99 Below; Hope to Perfect Weather Data.

Toronto, Dec. 26 (AP).—Small, brightly colored balloons released by Canadian meteorologists during 1933 have given added information about the upper air and its influence on the earth's weather.

Dr. J. Patterson, director of the meteorological service of Canada, said 20 out of 24 balloons sent aloft from Calgary were recovered.

Fifteen of the little spheres reached the tropopause, the next highest level to the stratosphere. One of them pentrated the stratosphere to 80,710 feet, more than 15 miles. Its thermometer registered 71 degrees below zero.

The coldest temperature of all, however, was recorded by a balloon released April 13, which reached only 42,060 feet and showed 99.4 degrees below zero.

Explaining how the temperature varies with the height, Patterson said:

"It has been found the temperature falls at a fairly constant rate height this 'lapse rate' of temperature ceases and the temperature remains constant or increases.

"The atmosphere in which the temperature falls with increasing height is the troposphere, and the part where the sudden change in temperature lapses is the tropopause. Above this, where the temperature is constant or slowly rising with height, is the stratosphere."

The meteorological service is perfecting meteorographs for measuring humidity in the distant layers of air, with the hope of a new system of weather forecasting.

PRESSLY R. BALDRIDGE.

ONE of the outstanding tax authorities of the country, Pressly R. Baldridge, has resigned as special deputy Commissioner of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, effective January 1, it was learned yesterday. He will join the law firm of Parrish, Cohen, Guthrie & Watters, of Des Moines and Washington, his resignation states.

Mr. Baldridge was Acting Commissioner until the appointment of Commissioner Guy T. Helvering on June 7. During Mr. Helvering's absence from Washington last summer, he was again in charge at Internal Revenue. He was appointed Special Deputy Commissioner by President Coolidge in 1926 upon creation of that office.

During development of the processing taxes on agricultural products last spring, Mr. Baldridge was Treasury representative before Congress and the Department of Agriculture. Since then all the regulations relating to processing taxes have been drafted under his supervision. He was also chairman of the Bureau of Internal Revenue legislation committee, making recommendations to Congress on proposed changes in the revenue act of 1932.

He is a native of Iowa and a member of the Iowa bar. He was graduated from National University in 1921 he was appointed chief field deputy to the Collector of Internal Revenue for the Iowa District, remaining in that office until his appointment here in 1926. As special deputy he was given supervision over miscellaneous taxes and acted generally as technical adviser on income, excess profits, estate, gift, processing and other taxes.

Always popular with his coworkers, a banquet is being planned in his honor at Internal Revenue under direction of Paul C. Croarkin, attorney.

District CWS To Aid Nurses

Teachers to Get Jobs; Sewing Unprofitable, to Be Dropped.

Allotment of $135,000 to the District for Civil Works Service projects was announced yesterday by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. The grant brings the District's Federal relief allotments to $792,181.

District Relief Director Leroy Halbert said the fund will be used to provide jobs for teachers and nurses. Such service jobs could not be legally included in the civil works program.

Halbert indicated the grant will permit reorganization of the C. W. S. program. Most of the sewing work will be dropped by putting women involved back on relief. More skilled workers will be hired in their places for teaching and nursing.

Halbert said the sewing work was far from profitable.
